The first step in the Americanization movement is teaching the English language to those unfamiliar with it. From there on the field broadens without limit. Just now the important thing is to make a start, and to that end the state stands ready to assist local communities showing a willingness to take up the work.

This matter is at present being given consideration by the Chamber of Commerce, with the object of securing the assignment of this section of an instructor qualified in inaugurating a course of rudimentary instruction along the lines set forth above. Many of the foreigners are not only willing, but anxious to acquire the desired knowledge, and the movement once started, it is certain to gain momentum. It is a subject which should interest all citizens and merits their hearty co-operation.

THE TAX RATE

The prospect of an $18 tax rate should not be a cause for alarm in Peabody. There are a whole lot of cities and towns in Massachusetts where a similar prospect would be accepted as a cause for rejoicing. A much higher rate prevails in many municipalities where at the end of the year the public eyesight is strained looking for something tangible to show for the expenditure necessitating a high rate. Here we have not only a low rate, but on every hand is the evidence of a liberal portion of the city's funds having been expended in permanent improvements. In the vernacular of the day the taxpayers are certainly getting a "run for their money" at a rate for which they should be extremely grateful.

STANDS FOR ALL TIME

Famous Phrase of Thomas Jefferson as True in This Year 1919 as in 1776.

"GOVERNMENTS are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed." This famous phrase was written by Thomas Jefferson, in the preamble to the Declaration, on July 4, 1776.

"Mr. Jefferson," wrote John Adams in his autobiography, referring to the events of 1776, "had been now about a year a member of congress, but had attended his duty in the house a small part of the time, and, when there, had never spoken in public. During the whole time I sat with him in congress I never heard him utter three sentences together. It will naturally be inquired how it happened that he was appointed on a committee of such importance. Mr. Jefferson had the reputation of a masterly pen."

The committee which was appointed to prepare the Declaration consisted

ed of Benjamin Franklin, aged seventy; Roger Sherman, fifty-five; John Adams, forty; Thomas Jefferson, thirty-three, and Robert E. Livingston, twenty-nine. Franklin was the patriarch of this immortal body, and Jefferson and Livingston were both young men, with their lives practically before them.

"I gave Jefferson my vote for chairman of the committee," said Adams, "and did all in my power to secure the votes of others. I think he had one more vote than any other, and that placed him at the head of the committee. I had the next highest number, and that placed me second."

"A committee was appointed to prepare a Declaration of Independence," wrote Jefferson in his notes. "The committee was J. Adams, Doctor Franklin, Roger Sherman, Robert R. Livingston and myself. . . . The committee for drafting the Declaration desired me to do it. It was accordingly done, and, before approved by

*I am, my dear Friend,
Yours most affectionately, Benjamin Franklin*

them, I reported it to the house on Friday, June 28, when it was read and ordered to lie on the table."

Amid all the changes in the phraseology of the Declaration before it was finally adopted, the sentence of the headline remained intact, and just as Jefferson originally presented it.

The paragraph which led up to the quoted words is always worthy of being printed, and never more so than now:

"We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights; among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. That to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed."

Continental's Dark Days.

In the first part of the Revolution the states were taxed to provide money for feeding the army, but later they were required to send the food itself instead of money. It was then that things were at the lowest ebb for the Continental armies.

ROUND ABOUT

Arthur W. Sims is entertaining his friends with the following story: A man recently escaped from the Danvers State Hospital, took possession of a visitor's automobile and sped away. On the way down to Danvers he was stopped by a couple of Chinese who wanted a lift. They got in and hit the high spots for Danvers only to grief when the machine skidded and jumped over a wall and hit a tree. At this juncture in the story, the narrator pictures the hospital attendants pursuing post haste in another machine. Then he pauses to ask "What do you suppose they found?" Then, with ghoulish glee he announces "A 'nut' and a couple of 'washers.'"

The man who invented the seven-cent Bay State fare tokens wasn't such a nut, after all. Large numbers of the famous cross between a beer check and a Chinese coin are being kept the souvenirs and the poor, old decrepit Bay State is that much stronger financially.

Judge Fay had as guests at the Homestead Golf club the other day a bunch of local city officials. At the first tee another player made a peach of a drive just before the Judge got ready to start, and a certain tax official offered to bet the judge a dollar to a nickel the judge could not equal it. "You're on," said the judge, and a moment later bang went the ball on a flight about 25 yards beyond the mark set. The dollar was forthcoming, but the judge made the loser carry his bag of sticks and then passed the "buck" back as a fee for caddying.

Celebrating his 43rd birthday anniversary will always be an event which "Billy" Elwell, the electrician, will cherish. He passed his milestone last Saturday and a five pound lobster and broiled chicken on his home table made the banquet board a thing fit for any doughboy home from France. Of course, Billy didn't see France, but those who know, allow he did all any family man could do to back up the fighting Yanks. Another reason for the natal day event to be remembered was the presentation of a dozen handsome neckties. Billy likes cravats.

Rev. John J. Starr, former curate at St. John's church, who was transferred to Whitman some months ago was a visitor in this city this week. He was kept busy shaking hands with many citizens who held him in the highest regard.

Supt. Coombs of the cemeteries has "dressed up" the Main st. burial ground in a most pleasing manner this week so the visitor to this city will affirm when entering the Main st. from Salem. Coombs seems to prove the right man in the important work of his department.

Few home gardens will go ahead of that at the corner of Tremont and Wallis sts. where Warren Blake is frequently one of the toilers with the hoe. His corn is nearly three feet high and his beans are a pleasure to behold. Blake is fire marshal at the big A. C. Lawrence Co. plants.

The building of the big stack of boxes and barrels for the night before bonfire in the Eastend has brought out hundreds of spectators to witness the work. I paid a visit to the scene last Wednesday night and was much impressed with the interest our alien residents took in the project.

Peabody playgrounds which open Monday will doubtless find hundreds of children eager to greet the instructors at the several playlots. New apparatus will not be a feature of the work this year owing to the limited amount of money available.

Then there's the congressional nomination to be considered. The idea has become general in the minds of the Republican leaders that the present Democratic incumbent, Congressman Phelan, can of a certainty be defeated next year by a strong Republican and Peabody's live wire mayor is looked upon as just the man to fill the bill. The question has been put squarely up to the mayor, and this, too, he has under consideration. He recognizes the great honor which the position carries and realizes that the opportunity is not one which can be lightly cast aside. Therefore he is giving the matter the consideration which it demands and in due time will make an announcement of his decision.

Cassidy Will Return From War With Remarkable Record In Many Battles

It is doubtful if any Peabody war veteran will have returned from overseas with greater claim to have passed through more harrowing experiences in No Man's Land or withstood more actual combat with the enemy than John Cassidy, still under age and the son of Mr. and Mrs.

JOHN CASSIDY.

Charles H. Cassidy of 11 Sutton st. Young Cassidy is in the famous Second Division and figured with the Fifth Regiment of Marines who achieved such glory at Belleau Woods and Chateau Thierry.

Despite the incessant fire to which his regiment was subjected, this well known Crow Village lad came through without so much as a scratch, always on duty with the advancing troops into the thickest of the fray. The history of the Second Army Division which reflected the glory of America in the war, is replete with instances of heroism and achievements and young Cassidy will return home to Peabody with a most enviable war record.

Unaccompanied by letter, in keeping with his modesty, the Enterprise received from him this week a book which epitomizes the history of his valorous division given so much of the credit for stopping the victorious advance on Paris by the Prussian army July a year ago. It is a thrilling story of action, of commendation from commanding officers and sets forth officially only too clearly the enviable claims to a distinguished service in defense of the Allied cause.

Like so many war veterans who have faced death calmly, young Cassidy has never been given to bragging about his experiences, and those who know him best affirm that his tales of actual combat with the enemy will be far and few between when he gets home. His home letters, brief generally, and somewhat irregular, have merely affirmed his good health and safety. He has been with the army in Germany since last November.

With the history of his division which he mailed to the Enterprise is a leaflet bearing the name of Major General John A. Lejeune, commander-in-chief of the Marines who played such an important part in bringing the war to a close. Here is the leaflet in full:

"A Message From the Skies, by Maj. Gen. John A. Lejeune, Commanding Second Division, A. E. F."

"1. One year ago, the enemy was at the high tide of success. His great offensives of March and April in Picardy and Belgium had with difficulty been checked, when on the verge of attaining decisive results; and at the end of May, he launched a powerful surprise attack against the thinly held Allied lines between Soissons and Rheims. This attack had been successful and many enemy divisions were marching victoriously towards Paris. The way seemed open; the opposing Allied forces had been defeated; and there were few available reserves with which to stem the enemy's advance.

"2. On June 1, when the Allied hopes were lowest, the Second Division was brought up by camions and deployed north of the Marne near Chateau-Thierry, across the Paris-Metz highway. It stopped the advance of the enemy, in spite of heavy attacks by strong forces and, on June 6, it assumed the offensive and attacked successfully. It seized Hill 142, Boursches, and the southern part of the Bois de Belleau. The news of this victory, coming at a psychological moment, spread like wild fire throughout the world. It filled the Allied nations with a hope of ultimate victory and correspondingly depressed the morale of the enemy. For over a month the Second Division continued its fierce attacks, and in spite of bitter opposition cleared the Bois de Belleau, captured Vaux, and advanced its lines along its entire front.

"3. It is very fitting that we should celebrate, on German soil, the first anniversary of this great battle. It was in that battle that the American established his moral supremacy over the enemy, and this was the prelude to his final defeat. All honor, therefore, should be given both to the living and to the dead of the "Immortal Second Division" for their glorious victory in the Chateau Thierry Sector."

Hymn for Independence Day

Eugene C. Dolson.

O Thou, who through the long years gone Hast guided us in safety on,— God of our native land, to Thee,
The guardian of Liberty,
Our hearts today in one accord
Acknowledge all, and thank Thee, Lord.

Beyond the swift-receding past
The world moves on, through changes vast;
Beyond the reach of ways outworn
Our restless age is onward borne.
Oh, keep us one in heart henceforth,
From sea to sea, from South to North!

On this, our nation's natal day,
For world-wide amity we pray;
For peace, good-will, disarmament
In lands by war and faction rent;
For all which trends to common good
And universal brotherhood.

But first and most of all things yet,
Our own trust let us not forget:
Be ours to guard that freedom won
At Bunker Hill and Lexington,—
Be ours true loyal hearts and free—
True to our sires and true to Thee!

As a reminder of the dark days in our history, a replica of one of the huts that sheltered the Hessian troops on Inwood hill, Manhattan Island, in Revolutionary times has been reconstructed at Broadway and Two Hundred and Fourth street, New York. It is built of stones excavated from the ruins of some 40 of the barracks that have of late been uncovered on the east slope of the historical ridge, and of timbers of a Long Island barn erected in the latter part of the eighteenth century. It contains many of the relics that have been recovered during the excavating, which has been carried on for several years.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

NORTH CAROLINA WAS FIRST

Published Declaration of Independence Long Before the One Which Has Become Immortal.

North Carolina not only disputes with New England the honor of the first battle of the Revolution, and the credit of holding the first "tea party," but points with pride to its Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence, antedating that of Philadelphia by two months. The battle of Alamance was fought in 1771, admitted by at least one New England historian, Bancroft, as being the first of the Revolution. The tea party was held in front of the governor's palace at least eighty years before Boston dumped her tea in the harbor.

Therefore, all North Carolinians have a right to consider themselves descendants of the real and original "founders of liberty."

that without the assured co-operation of the formidable fleet of De Grasse the siege of Yorktown would never have even been thought of. At the siege the French supplied a large part and the best-equipped of the allied troops engaged, and, as Bancroft says, "thirty-seven ships of the line and the Americans not one."

PERKINS FINDS SUPPORT HERE

Lieut. Col. Frank S. Perkins of Salem has announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for state treasurer, and he has assurances of strong support from all over the state. He is a bank official and eminently qualified for the position. Politically considered, the fact that he served with marked distinction as commander of the so-called Cadet battalion of the 101st Field Artillery overseas makes him a formidable candidate. Everybody in Peabody knows him or knows of him, and he is certain of a strong support here. Battery E of the 101st, composed largely of Peabody boys, was under his command.

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS IN $264,000 FILM MONDAY

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS in "The Knickerbocker Buckaroo"
An ARTCRAFT Picture

Folks who are wondering how to kill the first part of the evening before going over to the bon-fire will find the Strand's program well worth taking in. Bryant Washburn in "Putting It Over" is the feature and it is a mighty good picture. Ruth Roland in "The Tiger's Trail" and Pathe News will also be shown this evening.

As a special attraction for the "Fourth" and Saturday, Mgr. Chet Bent has secured Mabel Normand in the rip-roaring farce "Sis Hopkins." It concerns the adventures of a young hoyden who stumbled onto love and bumped into a fortune. One of Mack Sennett's comedies "Love's False Faces" and Marie Walcamp in "The Red Glove" will be the other attractions for the holiday. This "Red Glove" is the most fascinating and thrilling serial ever filmed and some of Miss Walcamp's stunts are little short of marvelous.

Madge Kennedy in "The Service Star" and Mae Marsh in "The Glorious Adventure" will be the attractions for Sunday. "The Service Star" is a timely story of the flag of all mothers.

Beginning Monday and continuing throughout the entire week, the Strand will offer a week of super-productions that will linger long in the memory of the amusement seeking public. Douglas Fairbanks in "The Knickerbocker Buckaroo" will start the ball a-rolling Monday and Tuesday. This production cost $264,000 and took six solid months to make. It is the longest and most pretentious, the funniest and most exciting picture Fairbanks has ever appeared in. Six thousand, seven hundred feet of film, hundreds of actors, magnificent sets, the lease of a complete railroad system, engines, cowboys, Mexicans, New York clubmen, pretty girls, villains in fact pretty nearly everything ever shown in films is to be seen in this picture. An all-star cast supports Mr. Fairbanks, his leading lady being Marjorie Daw.

will also be shown Monday and Tuesday. "The Knickerbocker Buckaroo" was originally scheduled for a three-day showing at the Strand, but the management had the opportunity to secure one of the big hits of the season for Wednesday only, and jumped at the chance.

Nazimova in "The Red Lantern" is to be shown for Wednesday only. Here is a photoplay which will challenge attention with any special production ever presented. "The Red Lantern" has a fine pictorial appeal brought out in vivid and colorful backgrounds, and a compelling story that is enhanced by Nazimova's really wonderful acting. If you are looking for rare entertainment, don't miss this picture.

Earl Williams in "The Diplomatic Mission" will be presented Thursday only. Ruth Roland in "The Tiger's Trail" will be shown Wednesday and Thursday.

Wallace Reid in "You're Fired" and Marguerite Clark in "Girls" will be shown at an early date.

He will occupy his pulpit at the South church during this month and plans to take his annual vacation in August which he will spend at his summer home in Deerfield, N. H.

Miss Mary Biene of Stevens st. has accepted a position at Sawyer's.

HUB MEMORIAL AT M. E. CENTENARY

A life size model of Morgan Memorial, the great industrial and social center of Boston, is one of the principal points of interest in the Home Mission exhibit at the Methodist centenary celebration, which is now in progress at Columbus, Ohio. In the Morgan Memorial section a printing press, furniture repairing, exhibit tinkering, a salvage department, a sorting department and a store, are all in full operation daily. This industrial activity is a demonstration of work that the church is actually doing.

FATHER MATHEWS.

The F. M. C. T. A. S. of Peabody will hold their second annual lawn party and dance at Bresnahan's field, Friday evening, Aug. 22. One of the many attractions will be a 10-mile marathon open to all amateurs. The start will be at City Hall Square, Beverly, and the runners will finish at the grounds. The exact route of the marathon will be given out next week. Some of the best runners of Essex county have already signified their intentions of entering this event. All applications should be addressed to John Devaney, P. O. Box 158, Peabody, Mass.

THE NEED FOR HOT WATER in the home is fully as great, if not actually greater, than the need for cold water. Yet you have running cold water at the turn of a faucet—positively no delay.

JOHN MEAGHER GETS AWARD FOR HANDSOME MEMORIAL

From a large field of competitors the John Meagher & Co., monumental designers of this city, were awarded the contract for a handsome memorial to be placed in the park opposite the Immaculate Conception church of Salem in recognition of the 415 sons of that parish who fought in the world war.

The accompanying illustration is a fac-simile of the monument. It is a monument entirely new as a war memorial, and besides its historic significance, it combines the most practical ideas of memorial art. It is a heavy, massive affair, executed in granite, and supplemented with bronze figures life size, representing the Army and Navy. This monument is made up of five members, and is supported by four columns of the Greek Doric Order, which seem very fitting to the design, in as much as this order in memorial architecture spells "Solidarity" wherever used; in designing this monument the makers catered particularly to four columns of this order to represent the four great wars this country has engaged in for the furtherance of liberty, viz: The Revolutionary, Civil, War with Spain, and lastly the World War.

On the front of this monument will appear a bronze statue, bas relief of the "Dough-boy," below which will appear a very attractive bronze tablet, with border of bound rods, (representing "lasting peace"), bearing the memorial inscription, which is as follows:—

A PERPETUAL MEMORIAL TO THE 415 BOYS OF THE IMMACULATE CONCEPTION PARISH WHO SERVED THEIR COUNTRY IN THE WORLD WAR 1914-1919.

On the back of the monument will appear a corresponding bronze figure of a "Sailor-boy," and below this will appear the autographed inscription forwarded by President Wilson, viz: "THESE GALLANT MEN OF OUR ARMED FORCES HAVE FOUGHT FOR THE IDEALS WHICH THEY KNEW TO BE THE IDEALS OF THEIR COUNTRY."

WOODROW WILSON.

Woodman Cited For Leadership Under Fire

France, in the work of constructing barbed wire entanglements and beating off a strong enemy attack. His leadership of his men of the Seventh Engineers displayed great courage according to the citation published herewith.

First Lieut. Woodman went to France with the 101st Engineers as a corporal. In less than a year he had been picked out for a commission because of his handling of men when a non-commissioned officer and his transfer to the 7th Engineers followed. He crossed the river Meuse under the hottest kind of fire and succeeded in escaping wounds. Lieut. Woodman stands out in the history of Peabody World War veterans as having won the greatest honors in France. He hopes to be home by Sept. 1.

Many thoughts are so dependent upon the language in which they are clothed that they would lose half their beauty if otherwise expressed.—Ruekin.

Helpful Charlie.

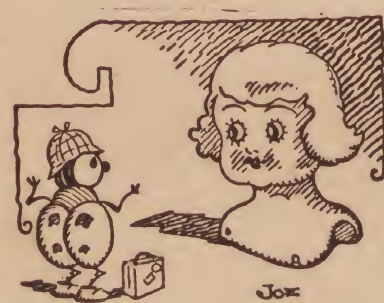

Little 4-year-old Charlie was missing one day. His mother going in search of him finally found him in the library sprinkling a valuable book that was on the table. "Why, my boy, what are you doing spilling that nice book of dad's?" "I was just wetting it for him because he said it was too awfully dry," he replied.

2 Peabody Men In Picked Troop Under Pershing

Two Peabody soldiers, both former A. C. L. Co. employees and shopmates, find themselves in Uncle Sam's picked regiment today doing body guard for "Black Jack" Pershing, commander in chief of the American forces overseas. They are Horace Bodge and Malcolm Morrison and they were chosen for the Composite Regiment. Soldiers picked for this regiment had to be nearly 100 per cent perfect. The regiment officiated at the dedication of the Pershing stadium in Paris.

Both Peabody men had expected to make the visit to London with their regiment as body guard to Gen. Pershing but the threatening bluff of the Germans not to sign the peace terms kept them ready for action at the front again.

The Amaroc News, the official U. S. army paper in France, says King George of England is in for a treat when the Composite regiment marches by. West Point four year cadets have nothing on them when it comes to swing and eyes right and platoon fronts. Parisians have gone wild about the outfit.

He is the son of Rev. and Mrs. J. G. Miller of this city.

Peabody championship ball some years ago as a regular diet, has the strongest kind of a line-up to bring home the bacon from the visiting players and he is pinning his faith on Fitzpatrick, the star twirler of Boston College to pilot his team to victory. A sensational player in Louis Urban, catcher on the Boston College team will be found handling the receiving end.

Emerson Park was never in better condition than today for the Park Commissioners eager to help strong baseball have had a corps of men at work all the week and the fans will see a big improvement.

Manager Quinlan announces the following line-up for the A. C. L.: Fitzpatrick p, Urban c, McLaughlin 1b, Gildea 2b, Mullen 3b, Moquin ss, Gourley cf, Clothey rf, and Dempsey lf. Moquin, Clothey and Gourley are all former star players on Peabody High. McLaughlin is a college player of renown. Dempsey is a Ty Cobb in college baseball.

MAYOR DEFENDS GARAGE

Mayor Donnell took up the cudgels in defense of the Municipal Garage last night on his appearance before the City Council and aided by figures showing the expenditures of that department since the first of the year argued that the showing made more than justified the retention of the garage.

In substance His Honor, the Mayor, declared that the expenditures proved that the garage as a business investment for the city in the care of practically 20 city machines. The cost of gasoline at the city garage was lower by a few cents a gallon than obtainable anywhere and he believed the city saved much money because of the institution.

His defense of the municipal garage was to back up his item in the new budget for $4700 for the balance of the year to be applied to the garage appropriation which up to June 24 had a balance of $2273.58 out of the original $11,000 Jan. 1. The three largest items of expense have been labor, $3345; gas, $2269, and supplies $1182.35.

ENTERPRISE NEXT WEEK.

The Enterprise will observe July 4th by issuing its edition on Thursday of next week instead of on the holiday. Newsdealers and newsboys will please take notice.

$30,000 More For Streets

On plea of the Mayor following a special loan order introduced by him, the City Council last night authorized the borrowing of $30,000 more for permanent street construction. Councilman Duggan alone opposed the order.

The Mayor explained that this sum was needed to complete the new work already laid out and which was to be paid for out of the original bond issue this year of $225,000. The deficit, he said, was due to damages caused in laying sidewalks together with several short stretches of concrete which has been laid on intersecting streets where the new pavement has been laid.

MAYOR FOR EXPERT TO STUDY EFFICIENCY OF ELECTRIC LIGHT PLANT

Is the Peabody Electric Light department being run efficiently, and should not the present rates be reduced? These questions Mayor Donnell put to the City Council last night, not he said in open criticism of Manager Warren D. King, but on the grounds that inability to have any surplus to use for street light extension he believed it highly important that the city hire an expert at a cost of $1000 to come here and give a detailed report of the business in the hands of the electric light department. While the Council did not take a vote on the question of furnishing the money, it was the sense of the meeting last night that some action be taken to employ the expert.

The remarks of the Mayor followed a question put to him by one of the Councilors as to why no street light extensions were being made in response to the many demands throughout the city. In his answer, the Mayor declared he realized that the Council knew practically nothing about the workings of the Electric Light Department, and he admitted in the same breath that he knew but little more himself about it. He did know that some manufacturers who were using much power believed that they should be given a reduction in the cost. He declared further that although it was admitted that the installation of the new turbine had saved money in the consumption of coal, that this fact had not given any money with which to extend lights, and he was at a loss himself to understand why there was no surplus.

More than a year ago Mayor Donnell let it be known that he believed an expert should be hired to investigate the electric light plant with a view to establishing whether the department was being run efficiently, whether it was losing money, or if not, why not? He expected to institute measures which would have this expert engaged but the demands on his office in supervising the new street construction have kept him too busy to tackle this proposition of estimating the municipal light plant.

No money for street light extensions was included in the supplementary budget presented by His Honor last night and on which he dilated at some length. It was this omission that led Councilman Duggan to open the way for the remarks from the Mayor on the light plant.

STRIKE CLOSES PLANTS

Strike on the part of the tanners sees a dozen Peabody leather shops closing down tomorrow for an indefinite period throwing out of work over 1500 men of the allied branches of the industry, so it is announced. According to the manufacturers they are forced to shut down owing to the absence of the tanners.

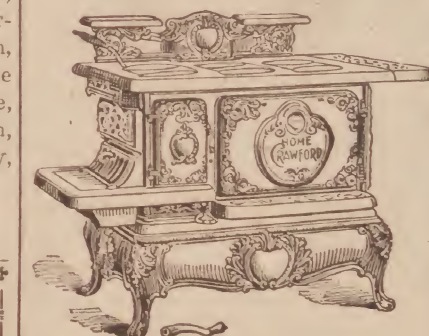

The manufacturers whose plants are involved in the present strike held a meeting Wednesday of this week when it was voted to close down pending further developments. The tanners have been getting 18 cents a dozen and asked for 22 cents from July 1 with the increase retroactive from May 1. The manufacturers offered an increase of two cents and retroactive pay at that increase. The strikers demand that the price be 22 cents.

It is understood the hitch now centres on the retroactive pay and that the manufacturers are willing to raise the increase to 22 cents beginning July 1 with the back pay figured on 20 cents a dozen from May 1. The strike has been in progress nearly two weeks.

EMERSON CONFIRMED

Confirmation of the appointment of City Engineer Frank Emerson against which certain amusing forces have been working for the past two years was one of the features of the business transacted by the City Council last night. He received the votes of every Councilor, save that of Messrs. Hogan and Duggan, the vote being 8 to 2, Councilor Brown being absent. Brown would have voted for Emerson had he been present.

CITY HALL GOSSIP

Report has it that the city lockup may be built in the rear of the present court house on Lowell st. The project has the backing of some of the city officials.

Lynn City Councillors came over strong to the adjourned hearing on the jitney charges last Monday night headed by Walter W. Pyne, who is the floor whip for President Walter McDonough. Others solons from the shoe city were Messrs. Ray, Ryan, McAuliffe and Hemelin.

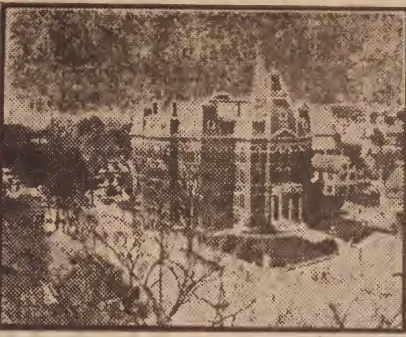

It might have been interesting to hear what line of information Councillor Hogan tried to inject concerning alleged graft in Lynn. From a legal viewpoint, however, it was not up to Mayor Donnell to act as a grand jury for whatever charges are in the air over in Lynn.

Among the spectators at the hearing Monday night were many city officials and the Council Chamber found seats at a premium with a surging crowd of spectators eager to hear the testimony.

There's only one M. L. Sullivan, attorney-at-law in Essex county, and he was in fine form last Monday night when he got back on the job.

Confirmation of the appointment of city engineer Frank Emerson was a foregone conclusion last night. We have Mayor Donnell's word for it that Emerson has saved the city many times his salary by being on the job. Contractors know Emerson is on the job.

Councillor John A. Jones, war veteran, who represents Ward 2 in the City Council is the youngest member of that body, being only 25 years old. A graduate of Peabody High, where he acquired a fine reputation as a catcher on the ball team. Jones is sure to handle the duties of his office.

It's only natural that Councillor Hogan should be the man to set off fireworks, isn't he in charge of the plans for the big Night Before bonfire over in the Eastend? Those who know this city solon will admit he is honest and anxious to give everybody a square deal most of the time.

It is hinted that a new ordinance may be introduced in the City Council soon which will deal with the municipal garage.

Anent the garage, it stands to reason that Mayor Donnell would insist on patronizing Peabody concerns for needed supplies for the garage whenever they can be bought as cheaply.

The proposed grass plot on the sidewalk on Chestnut st. will help to set off City Hall.

A few short hours after the Enterprise was issued last Friday, Cottage Park was being cared for and the tall grass cut.

Activities of the CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Statistics of building permits for the month of May from 164 cities officially reported to the Chamber of Commerce by the American Contractor indicate clearly that a "go-ahead" policy for construction is under way. Only 28 cities out of the 164 show a loss compared to last year's statistics, and the total of $105,470,299 for May of this year is 110 per cent gain over the total of $49,163,085 for the same cities during the corresponding period of last year. This is encouraging when compared to the record for previous months of this year, as the following table shows.

Month	Cities	1919 Value	1918 Value
Jan.	152	$23,869,215	$27,291,218
Feb.	153	$22,058,628	21,680,314
Mar.	199	64,884,325	36,529,620
April	165	84,914,008	44,516,828
May	164	105,470,299	49,163,085

$311,196,475 $179,781,065

In comparison to 1918 figures for the corresponding month, January, 1919, showed a loss of 12 per cent; February a gain of 48 per cent; March a gain of 77 per cent, and April a gain of 91 per cent.

These totals give a gain of 73 per cent for the first five months of 1919 over 1918.

Normality Shown by Comparing With Previous Years.

Comparison of May, 1919, figures with previous May figures is shown in the following tabulation:

Year	No. Cities	No. Permits	Estimated Value
1919	164	39,203	$105,470,299
1918	164	24,516	49,763,085
1917	117	26,479	75,168,153
1916	112	31,877	113,904,515
1915	112	25,608	86,469,429

By reducing these figures to the number of permits per year per city for the month of May the average value of May permits per city per year 1914-1918 inclusive is $689,865. The average value of permits per city for May, 1919 is $643,111. Bearing in mind that the larger the number of cities the more small cities are included makes these figures look very favorable for the past month's activity. The conclusion may be drawn that normality is shown by the comparison but it must be noted that the purchasing power of the 1919 dollar is much less than that of some included previous years.

The average value of permits for May is $2,614. This is a marked improvement on the average of $1,700 for January of this year and shows that less of the permits are being taken out for repair work and small undertakings.

The Chamber of Commerce is in receipt of a letter from U. S. Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C., asking for aid in securing employees. List of employees wanted, together with salary paid, is on file at the Chamber office.

The committee on Civic Improvements reports that some of the citizens are sowing grass seed in the space between the walk and curbing. This is a little matter but it will mean a great improvement to the city from visitors' impressions. The committee asks that every one carry out this suggestion.

Ballots on Referendum No. 5 of Mass. Chamber of Commerce and Referendum No. 28 of the Chamber of Commerce of the U. S. A. have been mailed to all members, who are urged to vote on these questions at once.

Copies of the act relative to the hours of employment for women and children have been received by the Chamber of Commerce and those desiring same can secure copies by calling at the office. This act pertains to what is commonly known as the 48-hour week for children under age of 18 and all women employed. This law takes effect July 18.

A. C. L. Co. Team Will Stage First Class Semi-Pro Ball

Peabody baseball fans are assured of worth while ball this summer at the hands of the A. C. Lawrence Leather Co.'s fast team which will take on many of the best semi-professional teams. The opening game will be July 5, when the fast United Shoe team of Beverly comes here.

Manager John Quinlan has succeeded in rounding into shape a smart lot of ball tossers and the adherents of the national pastime will no longer be compelled to leave the city to take in the week-end games.

With Fitzpatrick and Urban, crack battery of Boston College, in the points for the A. C. L., the Beverly shoe machinery players will have to travel to win. Both the infield and outfield on the local team is a stonewall of defense and includes some tall nitters. The best kind of baseball is certain.

Nearly 1500 employees of the big leather plant are members of the athletic association which is backing the team, and with this financial help the best kind of rival teams are sure to come to Peabody. The general public can help to make the project a success by turning out in large numbers at the games.

Some of the strongest teams in the state have been booked for future games, among them the Boston Navy Yard team, General Electric, Cornets of Lynn, Bertel-Peterson, So. Boston, Granton & Knight of Worcester, and other fast reputed teams to be announced later.

Hundreds of New England soldiers, lying ill or wounded in the great Army Debarcation Hospitals of New York are receiving their first special welcome and often their first touch of home as a result of the efforts of volunteer women workers at the New England desk in the Hall of States in that city. While some states are using large appropriations, such as Massachusetts's $50,000 and Kansas's $35,000, in welcoming their home-coming sons, Connecticut, New Hampshire, Vermont, Maine, and Rhode Island are leaving this work to the Society of New England women. Without the aid of state funds even for the clerical hire, incident to writing to from 50 to 150 wounded men a day, women of this organization are doing the best they can to see that New England's wounded men are welcomed as warmly, if not as generously, as those of sister states.
More funds are urgently needed. They can be sent to Miss Elizabeth Dexter, New England desk, Hall of States, New York.

The giving of the home-touch to the welcoming of returning fighters centres at the Hall of States, which the War Camp Community Service maintains at 27 West 25th Street, close to the Victory Arch. There
"Buddies" meet at the war's end;
there the soldiers meet for the first time folks from their home communities. Some of them are "blue" and these are taken to dinner and the theatre or are put in touch with men from their communities, who give them heart-to-heart talks.

Others want jobs back home and for these the War Camp Community Service maintains a nation-wide employment service which, under Dr.
W. D. Fisher, seeks jobs in New England and in other states for soldiers and sailors.

The hospital work of the Hall of States is, perhaps, the most important thing done there. Under a system perfected by the War Camp Community Service the names of all wounded men, sometimes to the number of 4,000 arrivals a day, are immediately divided into state groups and put in the hands of the Hospitality Committees from the various states. The women at once write to the boys asking them to call at the Hall of States, or, if that be impossible, to indicate whether they wish to have a visitor call on them.

The New England desk is in the active charge of Miss Elizabeth B.
Dexter. She is assisted by Mrs.
James Ward Warner, chairman for the New York Colony of the Society of New England Women, and Miss Lizzie Woodbury, treasurer.

We make no claim to absolute perfection. The larger the business, no matter how well organized, the more possibilities there are that mistakes will creep in, but as every day goes by we try to live up to the axiom of Pickering service. The slogan, "The customer must always be satisfied," is one that is impressed on the minds of every person in our company from the humblest to the highest.

BIG CALL FOR LEATHER MAKES DEALERS HUSTLE

Any old leather will sell today. It is only the question of getting the skins with enough money to pay for them. I know of a lot of skins which a concern is holding for a customer which costs $55.00 a day interest. A million dollars does not go far toward doing business as formerly. A shoe buyer has a fixed capital. That is he has a limit of credit, and when that limit is reached he must realize money on his output. He cannot buy over one-third as many shoes for the money, therefore he does one-third as much business.

The manufacturer of shoes do likewise for most of his customers purchase one-third as many shoes. Only scarcity of skins in the hair keeps the situation healthy. Just so long as these conditions exist, just so long will the child live. But let us imagine that skins become plentiful, and there is opportunity to run full in all leather factories. For a time all will go well. But when the time comes that leather is being piled up, and at present prices they would eat themselves up in interest, then something must happen. This world may have changed, there may not be a repetition of years gone by, but I do not think so.

Perhaps the present war overshadowed all previous ones, but when Napoleon Bonaparte had Europe in his hand and practically dominated the world, except ourselves, whom he did not consider of enough importance to bother with, I can imagine conditions were far worse than today, for his power lasted for 12 years. It took the combined efforts of all Europe to best him, as it did the world to best Germany. But Germany never got there, and Napoleon did. The world came back then and came back fast. I believe it will come back fast this time, and old conditions will return not fast, for that would be unhealthy. A gradual return will do the trick.

Meanwhile, when these changes do come, prices must return, and all of us wonder how it will come about. I presume the big fellows are doing out the situation, and with brains at their command they should get it right. Waste is one of our great failings. Every family wastes enough each day to feed several persons.

How many of us wear our shoes out? Every pair would do us weeks more of service. They would not look as well I admit, but this idea of being groomed is carried too far in so many cases. I have two friends who own from 12 to 20 pairs of shoes each. I wish I did at this time, but the fact remains that the difference between ourselves and our grandfathers is so marked as to appear ridiculous. Two pairs were the limit then but now there is no limit. All these things enter into the high cost of living or existing. The laboring man has received such wages as to turn his head in some cases. The business man has coined money so fast as to make a $5000 automobile appear on the same plane as a toothpick. I wonder if we will fall hard?

The local factories are generally busy. I hear the tanners are demanding more money. This applies to sheepskins. The others are working.

The leather workers must realize they are on top of the wave of prosperity. Many of the thinking ones do realize it, and are satisfied. Those who do not, continue to try to boost wages believing they will succeed. I am not qualified to advise, but were I one of them, I should counsel conservatism.

The Boston Mat Leather Company have emerged from their financial difficulties, and are busy finishing varieties of leather for the Hunt-Rankin Leather Company. In an experimental stage today, it is liable to develop into a steady business, of goat and side leather.

I saw smoke emerging from the Lawrence chimney recently. I do not know whether it is a steady diet, but am curious to know whether it will distribute its soot about the neighborhood. Let us hope not. I do not hear any more from the ball team. I understand they will gather some star players to represent the company, and that many of them will go on the firm's payroll. Many years ago this company had a ball team that created considerable interest, and I can remember Dan Gorman as one of the stars of the team. He was not only a good ball player but a comedian of no mean ability. A team such as is planned will keep many of the fans at home. Go to it, Mr. Kelley.

With leather so high, they tell me canvass shoes will have their inning.
Before we became rich, such shoes were worn extensively. They required little leather for the uppers, but the only thing to do in wet weather is to take them off. Perhaps some of the substitutes which take the place of leather for chair coverings and lining of automobiles may come into use. Science has accomplished wonders and is liable to repeat in the leather game. Get busy you inventors and chemists, for this is the time, place and shoe.

Transportation has never been a serious problem for the tanner. To be sure since the war started it has been more of a problem, but the cost per foot is fractional. I note many concerns are using trucks between here and Boston, and it seems it is constantly increasing. Costs are said to be high for maintenance, but they must be attractive or the tanner who knows how to figure would not be dabbling in the game. Express companies tell you they cost too much money for maintenance, but why are they increasing? Good roads, such as Peabody now has, is an added attraction for a truck.

THE "JITNEY" CASE

Complete exoneration on all the charges and prompt dismissal of all of them was the only thing Mayor Donnell could do in the now famous jitney hearing, held as the result of charges made by Charles H. Burns, an applicant for a jitney license, against Thomas J. Sexton, superintendent of the Peabody municipal garage, on the evidence brought out at the hearing. There was an absolute failure to introduce any evidence that would in any way tend to bear out the charges, and the mayor was perfectly justified in his scathing denunciation of a member of the Peabody Council who was quoted as declaring he "wanted to show up grafting in Lynn," without a scintilla of evidence to bear out such a serious intimation.

Aside from freeing the accused official from unjust charges, the result is a great source of satisfaction to the citizens as it effectively puts a stop to loose talk of "graft" in municipal affairs, something which it is earnestly hoped will never develop in this progressive young city.

Genuine regret is also felt by citizens in general that such an unwarranted intimation reflecting upon the honesty and integrity of members of the Lynn City Council should emanate from this city, an intimation that was given wide publicity in the press. Happily, the result of the hearing effectively established the absolute innocence of all the parties concerned, and it is sincerely to be hoped that there will never be a repetition of such baseless and unwarranted intimations on the part of any Peabodyite, either public official or private citizen.

Incidentally, Mayor Donnell's entire course of procedure in the conduct of the hearing emphasized the fact that in its chief executive Peabody has a man eminently qualified to fill the position, and one possessed of a keen judicial mind.

THE NEW HIGH SCHOOL

Although the new high school building, tentative plans for which are already beginning to take shape, involves the expenditure of a large sum of money, public sentiment is rapidly aligning itself with the project. The necessity of the new school is apparent, the location selected is ideal and it is only a question of time before the steps necessary to make the project a reality are taken.

With the acquirement of the land proposed to be taken, the way will be paved for the planning of a stadium, such as was recently outlined in this column. In these modern times, when the athletic training of the youth of the country has been so generally included in the educational course, it is fitting and proper that a stadium such as proposed be included in the construction plans of the school department.

Whatever Peabody has, let it be the best obtainable with the means at hand, school or stadium, or both.

A PEOPLE'S ORGANIZATION

The Enterprise feels called upon to again say a few words relative to the Chamber of Commerce, in the hope that the effort will not be barren of results. In the local chamber, as is true of all similar organizations, a wide field of endeavor presents itself, and its results in accomplishment will be measured largely by the spirit in which business men in particular and the public in general back up its efforts. The Chamber of Commerce is an organization of multitudinous duties, its scope taking in everything from consideration of the best way to stop unnecessary noise up to advancing Peabody's business interests to the highest degree. It is not solely and simply a business men's combination, as some few persons, we are sorry to say, imagine. It is a people's organization and it is here to serve the community's interests as well as those of the business men. It is in a position to discuss and handle matters that fall outside the scope of the city government, and it has sources of information and advice on subjects affecting the interests of every man, woman and child in the city. Our news columns each week present a few of the great variety of matters in which the Chamber is interesting itself, and in a number of instances results have already been obtained which are eminently satisfactory.

Secretary Thomas has proved himself an earnest, energetic worker and gives every indication of being the right man in the right place. He is easily approachable, is a pleasing gentleman to meet, and lends a willing ear to any and all suggestions made to him.

With the members of the Chamber displaying the proper interest in the work, and with the citizens solidly behind it, the Chamber of Commerce is certain to be one of the greatest and most potent factors for the public good that could be conceived.

BUILDING OPERATIONS

It is a regrettable fact that the resumption of building operations, particularly in the form of tenement houses and other types of abodes for rent payers, shows no signs of immediate materialization. Under the inexorable law of supply and demand, however, it is bound to come, and the view of a certain large real estate operator on the subject at this time, based on a careful study of conditions, is particularly interesting. First of all, he says higher rents must come before building will be resumed on a scale that amounts to anything. At first thought, this idea will strike the average man as unreasonable, but further consideration will convince the thoughtful ones that there may be a great deal in it after all. His theory, which he backs up by figures, is that at the present scale of rents and the prevailing costs of building, the return on the amount of money necessary to build a house would not be sufficient to warrant the outlay. Capital in general is not philanthropic. It demands a fair return, and in the case of a house for rent, that return is in the shape of rent. The matter of costs cuts no figure if the return on the money invested in the form of rent is satisfactory. This, briefly, is his idea, and it certainly is worth thinking over.

ROUND ABOUT

Twenty years ago this month Mayor Donnell was one of the class of 1899, P. H. S., to receive his sheepskin of graduation from the platform of the then town hall. Last Friday night he presented the 46 graduates with their diplomas prefacing his happy remarks with a reference to his own graduation.

A Peabody boy who is making good as a disciple of Blackstone is Attorney Louis O'Keefe, former postal clerk in this city, who is now attached to the law office of Asst. Dist. Atty. George Harvey of Middlesex county. He worked his way through the law school by aiding Uncle Sam in whose courts his friends believe he will soon be heard from.

City Collector Earl Hershenson, eligible bachelor, can appreciate a joke as well as any of his colleagues and his genial smile is a pleasing asset, his friends will opine. But one night last week he made a social call in Beverly and while his motor car stood in the street some designing friends tied white ribbon aplenty on the rear. It was a nice evening for a motor ride and when the Peabody city official had completed his evening's ride with a young escort, he discovered the white ribbons. Cupid surely plays pranks.

Principal Joseph Gilmore of the South school has accepted a call to Petersboro, N. H. where he will take charge of the Adams playground having several hundred kiddies in his custody during the summer months. Parents in South Peabody tell me that Principal Gilmore is doing wonders with their children and it is certain that the pupils of his school attest his popularity. He has always been willing to give more of his time to his work than his contract called for and the pupils have benefited as a result. As an instructor in playground work Mr. Gilmore possesses ideal traits which are bound to spell success for him in his new temporary duties. Incidentally, it might be noted that Mr. Gilmore laid aside his school duties to enlist in the war service giving more than a year to Uncle Sam and the Allied cause. He is a native of Peabody.

There is no more popular territory chosen for walks in Peabody than the so-called Blaney meadows and adjoining fields which lead to the city's reservoir where well beaten paths lead one into all kinds of havens of rest and shade and afford the Sunday afternoon "hiker" a vista second to none within the confines of the city. It is only fair to assume for these reasons that such a recreation tract should be free from the petty annoyances so often ascribed to heedless boys and young men. My attention was called last Sunday to the fact that a crowd of boys had engaged in uncouth repartee with some young girls who were walking thru the fields and the insults of the boys were quite enough to make one's mother abashed at the conduct of her son. There is no excuse for any such conduct and a word to these boys ought to be all that is necessary to guard against repetition.

I observed on my walk toward Cedar Grove cemetery last Sunday afternoon the fact that the crop of blueberries is sure to be abundant this year, if these fields mentioned are any criterion. Farmers tell me that most all bush and tree crops are to be big this season. I ran across a patch of wild strawberries which were being picked by some young men with evident relish.

Twenty-fifth wedding anniversaries were observed by several well-known people this month. In chronological order the observants of silver weddings were Mr. and Mrs. Herman G. Barnes, June 5; Mr. and Mrs. John F. Moore, June 7; Mr. and Mrs. Edson F. Gardner, June 14; Mr. and Mrs. John D. Jeffers, June 18.

COAL SHORTAGE ON WAY; GOVT. SAYS BUY NOW

May Be Repetition of 1917-18
Conditions Next Winter Says
Geological Survey.

MINES IDLE WITHOUT ORDERS.

Those Who Delay Ordering Longer May Not Get Their Fuel Later On.

The United States Geological Survey announces from Washington the probability of another general coal shortage next fall and winter. The announcement is based, the Survey states, upon a nation-wide study of conditions in the bituminous field. Unless steps are taken at once, the Survey says, to place the mines upon a basis of increased production there is every prospect of a repetition to some degree of the situation that prevailed in the United States during the winter of 1917-18.

The only way production can be stimulated at the present time, it is said, is by placing orders with the mines for coal which will be needed later on. "Production during the first five months of the year," reads the statement, "fell 57,292,000 net tons, or approximately 25% below production during the first five months of 1918. Mines are producing coal now at the rate of from 8,000,000 to 8,500,000 tons a week. An average output of 10,700,000 tons a week must be maintained from June 1 to January 1 next if the country's estimated needs of 500,000,000 tons this year are to be met."

Evil of Delayed Orders.
At no time during this year has the rate of production approached the required tonnage. The tendency on the part of buyers to hold off placing their orders is limiting production, as the mines cannot store coal at the point of production, and when the rush of orders for the winter's needs comes next fall there is grave danger that the mines, with depleted labor forces and the probability of less adequate transportation, will be unable to meet the demands. The result of such a situation would be an insufficient supply for the requirements of domestic consumers, public utilities and industrial users generally.

"It is believed that requirements for this year," reads a Survey statement to Fuel Administrator Garfield, "will be about 530,000,000 tons of bituminous coal, of which approximately 30,000,000 tons have been used from stocks accumulated last year, leaving 500,000,000 tons to be produced. Of this 500,000,000 tons 178,000,000 tons were produced during the first five months, leaving 322,000,000 tons to be produced in the remaining 30 weeks, or an average of 10,700,000 tons a week."

"Thus far this year production has been at the rate of 8,200,000 tons a week. In 1918 production was at the rate of 11,300,000 tons a week."

"This production will be difficult of accomplishment. The capacity of operating mines at the present time with labor now on the payroll is about 10% lower than it was last year. This deficiency may be made up in part or wholly if the mines have orders sufficient to run them five or six days a week unless the threatened exodus of foreign-born labor occurs."

May Be Car Shortage.
"Present wage agreements between operators and miners expire with the proclamation of peace by the President. A suspension of mining operations while a new wage agreement is being negotiated would, of course, seriously interfere with the production of coal and if it should occur during the fall would cause a panic among buyers and consumers of coal."

There is no use in gambling upon this or any other contingency, fuel administration officials say. The firm or individual who wants to be sure of an adequate coal supply next winter can be certain by buying coal now. There is no other way such assurance can be obtained. Transportation also promises to be a limiting factor if the flood tide of demand comes at a time when the country's record crops are being carried. In some districts it would appear certain that, notwithstanding the utmost endeavors of the Railroad Administration and the utilization of its experience last fall, car shortage will be a cause limiting bituminous coal production, and for that reason it is problematical whether the expected production of 500,000,000 tons can be attained this year.

Shortage of labor already is a factor that is cutting down the output in some coal producing sections, according to the Survey's report. The operators report that from 36,000 to 40,000 foreign-born miners expect to return to Europe as soon as they can get passports and that many have already returned. If continued this movement will be capable of producing but one result—a reduction of the amount of coal mined in districts where the mine labor is largely foreign-born, and there are many such districts.

He who needs coal should hesitate no longer. Now is the time to buy coal.

PAULINE FREDERICK SHARES STRAND TODAY---CHAPLIN ALSO

The Strand has certainly arranged a wonderfully attractive program for today and Saturday with Charlie Chaplin in "Police" in the headline position. Pauline Frederick in her greatest emotional triumph "The Woman on the Index" is the feature picture. Adapted by Willard Mack (Pauline's husband) from George Broadhurst's stage success of the current season, it affords Miss Frederick magnificent opportunities. A wonderful story with a plot so baffling that the climax is guaranteed to keep the most sophisticated guessing until the very last scene, the star's progress through it demands test after test of her histrionic powers. Every scene pulsates with suspense. Almost every scene shows Miss Frederick in a different costume. Each more delectable than its predecessors. Cast, direction, skill—all have been combined to make "The Woman on the Index" the whirlwind success it is. Marie Walcamp in "The Red Glove" is another big attraction for today and Saturday. Miss Walcamp's stunts are the talk of the city and she continues her hazardous work in this episode.

Mabel Normand in "Joan of Plattsburg" will be the principal attraction Sunday evening. This is adapted from the story by Porter Emerson Browne and is chock full of romance and adventure. Gladys Hulette and Creighton Hale in "For Sale" will be the second feature for Sunday.

A double feature bill of striking excellence will be presented Monday and Tuesday. Ethel Clayton in "Men, Women and Money" will be the headliner. It is a story of society and shows the homes of many elaborate functions are staged. The picture abounds with highly dramatic situations and Miss Clayton receives fine support from a capable cast headed by Lew Cody, who will be remembered for his work in "Don't Change Your Husband."

Tom Moore in "Go West, Young Man" will be the other picture Monday and Tuesday. It is the story of a happy-go-lucky young Irishman who took Horace Greely's advice and hopped out to the Golden West. The way he captures the town and wins the girl of his dreams is captivatingly depicted as only Mr. Moore can do it.

Next Wednesday and Thursday will bring and old favorite in the person of Bryant Washburn who will appear in his latest Paramount picture "Putting It Over." Ruth Roland in "The Tiger's Trail," Pathe News and Pictograph will also be shown.

Wallace Reid in "You're Fired," Charles Ray in "Hay Foot, Straw Foot," Elsie Ferguson in "The Avalanche" and Marguerite Clark in "Girl," are a few of the big coming attractions.

An Urgent Celebration

By Willis Brooks.

My father was Marshal one Fourth of July,
And made a long-lasting impression,
With his sash and his sword and a plume waving high,
As he gallantly rode a gay thoroughbred by
At the head of the gorgeous procession.

In a garlanded chariot next to the band
My mother was Liberty's Goddess;
With a cap on her head and a sword in her hand,
Begowned in the stripes of our glorious land,
Set off with a star-spangled bodice.

You see, this was ever so long, long ago—
Before they were known to each other;
And, of course, since he wasn't so much as her beau,
Neither one of them had any reason to know
That they were my father and mother.

Now the Marshal, you know, is expected to ride
Up and down the whole length of the column;
And the Goddess is always supposed to preside
As the guardian of Freedom, America's pride,
With a dignity stately and solemn.

For a Marshal is one who's appointed to see That the marchers are all in their stations;
And a Goddess, of course, is expected to be
So far above earthly enticements that she Will indulge in no human flirtations.

But I've heard people say 'twas the talk of the town
That this Marshal was so patriotic
He pranced and cavorted his steed up and down
Within sight of the red, white and blue of that gown
As if held there by fetters despotic.

And that Goddess, I'm told, without turning her head,
Saw each of these purposeful prances,
And reflected her colors from cheeks blushing red
Under temples of white; and her eyes, it is said,
Were bright with the blue of her glances.

So, that's how it comes that the Fourth of July Provokes me to glad celebration.
If the Marshal and Goddess had let it go by
And taken no part, who the dickens would I Have been in the scheme of Creation?

DESIGNED FAMOUS OLD HALL

Philadelphia Lawyer Architect of Building Where Immortal Declaration Was Signed.

Independence hall stands not only as the place of rest for the Liberty bell, but as the old Pennsylvania statehouse, and the building wherein the Declaration of Independence was signed in 1776, with John Hancock at its head. It is still in excellent preservation, and its quaint red and white front and brick belfry give it an air of romance and antiquity.

For many years it was unknown who was the designer of the old statehouse, now better known as Independence Hall.

Independence Hall.

ence hall. But the discovery about forty years ago of the identical design, now in the Pennsylvania Historical society's collection, set the question at rest.

It was none other than Andrew Hamilton, who not only held high office in the province, but as a lawyer made the reputation of the Philadelphia bar. This was accomplished when he was invited to New York to defend the printer, Zenger, and contended successfully for the liberty of the press, the first time the subject had been settled in a court of law in this country.

Nation's Great Destiny.

Our country is a fact so fast, so tremendous in its import and bearings, that the mind can hardly grasp it. It reminds us of the Almighty. It suggests omnipotence.

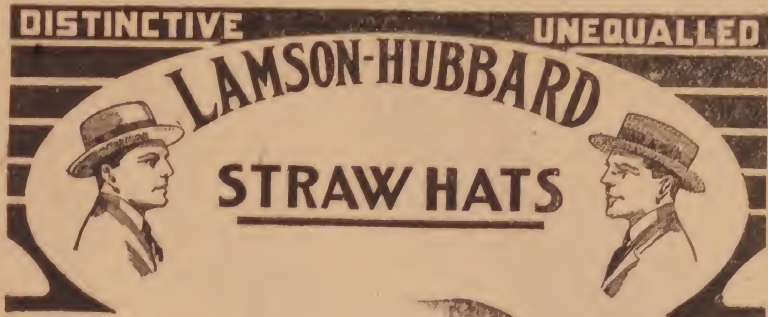

And yet it may be truthfully said that the nation has scarcely begun its career. Great as it is, it is but an infant compared with what it is destined to become.—Rev. T. B. Gregory.

A very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Beckett, 117 Lowell st., Wednesday evening, when their daughter, Lucy, was married to Chester George, of Medford. Rev. F. D. Taylor, of Medford, officiated. The house was tastefully decorated with palms and cut flowers for the occasion. The bride was charming in a gown of white satin with veil and carrying white roses. Clara Beckett, in light blue messaline, carrying pink roses, was bridesmaid. The wedding march was played by Ruth Beckett, wearing coral messaline. Both were sisters of the bride. The little ring bearer was Elva Beckett, neice of the bride, who looked dainty in baby blue voile. The bridegroom was attended by his brother, Raymond George of Medford. Friends of the bride acted as ushers; Misses Marion and Eleanor Bliss, Isabelle McKinnon and Helen McMath. Mildred Court, Blanche Goodwin, Clara Fellows, Helen McKinnon and Annabel Sinclair assisted in serving. The guest book was in charge of Gladys Wiley, of Ipswich, and the gift room was in charge of Mrs. Bessie Parker. Mr. and Mrs. George were the recipients of many beautiful gifts. Upon their return from their wedding trip they will make their home in Medford.

FIGURED IN HISTORY

Old Blue Bell Tavern, Near Philadelphia, Is Famous Revolutionary Relic.

OF THE several far-extended roads reaching outward from Philadelphia, the Darby road leading along the highland southward to Chester has, from the beginning, been of the most importance in our periods of war. Strictly considered, the road to Chester is not a highway. It is maintained as a turnpike under the control of a company which exacts a rate of toll which yields an income. It is stated, nearly equal to the capital stock involved.

There is testimony that the first float bridge spanning the Schuylkill river was built on this road at Gray's ferry under the direction of Gen. Israel Putnam. It was removed a few months later to keep the British out of Philadelphia. Captain Montross's clever engineers, however, replaced it.

The Famous Blue Bell Tavern of Revolutionary Days.

There was plenty of going and coming at Gray's ferry in the winter of Valley Forge, as a considerable portion of Howe's army was "hunted," as Maj. John Andre recorded in his diary, along the Darby road for three miles. When the British withdrew from Philadelphia, in June, 1778, they destroyed the float bridges.

In April, 1789, the Gray's ferry float bridge was decorated in honor of the journey of Washington to New York. At the foot of the hill, close by Cobb's creek, a border stream of the city, is the "Blue Bell" of Paschalville, now happily saved and safe upon park soil of the municipality. The original bridge across the creek was built about forty years before the Revolution. At that time a very old grist mill, which had been built by the Swedish Governor Printz, stood beside the creek. It is said to have been the first mill operated in Pennsylvania. In Penn's time it was acquired by William Cobb, hence the name of the stream. The original Blue Bell tavern was a small wooden building, but the existing structure antedates the Revolution, at which time it was a popular stage house conducted by the Paschal family. Robert Morton, a youth of Philadelphia, wrote in his diary under date of November, 1777:

"This evening Lord Cornwallis with 2,500 men marched over the bridge at the middle ferry. With the intentions, as supposed, to attack the fort at Red Bank."

The next morning, while on their march toward Darby, an American picket, concealed in the Blue Bell, fired upon the advance and killed two grenadiers. Five of the Americans were bayoneted in the tavern.

Great Patriot's Worthy Life.

Patrick Henry retired from office, a popular man, but a tired one, and went to live on a new estate, called Leatherwood, consisting of 10,000 acres. The people were not willing that he should live a quiet life and elected him governor again in 1784, after which he practiced law and won great renown as a criminal lawyer.

He died very peacefully at Red Hill in 1799, taking great comfort in the Christian religion, which throughout his life had given him not only comfort but courage and hope.

Birthday of Liberator.

The Fourth of July, as it happens, is the birthday of a great Italian and lover of liberty, Garibaldi, born July 4, 1807.

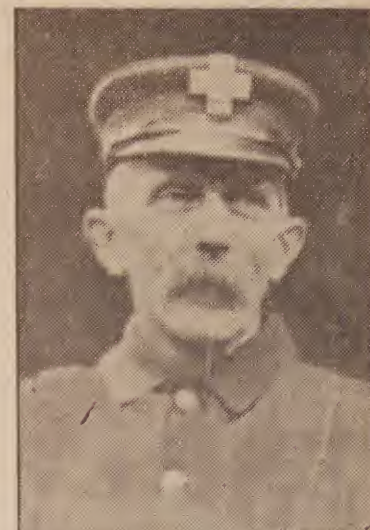

Capt. 'Bill' Brown Begins 27th Year As Veteran Driver--- In Charge of Headquarters

Capt. William Brown is Peabody's second ranking veteran fire driver for he became a regular back in February, 1893, and so is now on his 27th year in the service of the fire department. He is in command of headquarters and is the man at the wheel on the big hook and ladder. He also has the distinction of being the tallest man in the department, measuring close to six feet and three inches.

With the eventual increase in permanent men which will call for commissioned officers, Capt. Brown is sure to have first call and his friends hope that the honors will come in the near future.

He was born in Bethel, Me. where he lived up to the time he was 19 when he came to Peabody to join a brother who was then with the Abel Proctor Leather Co. of this city. He was in the leather business for nearly 10 years before answering the call that gave him a regular berth in the fire department as a driver. He became a spare driver in 1892 when he took the position of driver George Morgan who had suffered a few broken ribs when he was pinned under his firekit at a fire on Allen's lane. His first job was driving the steamer. Later he went on the truck.

Like all of the permanent drivers some years back Brown had to drive one of the town teams, always ready to hurry his hitch to headquarters to get out the fire apparatus. He served under Supts. Besse, Davis and Hooper of the street department. He always recalls his becoming a regular driver in 1892 by referring to that year as the one Peabody first saw a macadam highway built. Central and Foster sts. were given that construction that year. He was the man who stopped the stone crusher and helped to extricate former street superintendent Hooper when the latter lost an arm.

The fire engineers in 1893 were Stephen S. Littlefield, Charles H. Hooper, Thomas Hutchinson, Walter Curtis and Ulric Brophy.

Capt. Brown buried his wife four years ago. He makes his home with his daughter, Edith, at 14 Franklin st. Chester Brown of this city is his son. Capt. Brown is a popular officer in the department.

Eastend All On Edge For Mammoth Bonfire July 3--- Stack Reaches Nearly 100 ft.

The celebration of Independence Day is one of the events in the East End that the citizens of that section of the city support to their last effort. The East End Improvement Society has arranged a program of events this year that will make Peabody the center of attraction during the holiday.

The huge bonfire is a fine piece of work and when completed will be the largest and best ever staged in Essex county. Its supporting base is about 40 feet in width and its finished height is estimated at 120 feet. The stack alone has nearly 2500 boxes, not counting the hundreds of barrels that will be added to the finishing touch. There will be a concert from nine o'clock up to the time of the fire.

It has been arranged to have the mayor and members of the city council, accompanied by the park commissioners to march to the grounds, escorted by the East End Improvement Society with Beverly Cadet band. A fine program of sports has been arranged for the afternoon of July 4th when suitable prizes will be awarded. This event is not alone for the citizens of the East End, but for the whole city. The man behind the project is President Dennis Pender.

The chairmen of all the committees are: Bonfire, Councillor Dennis Hogan; grounds, Manual Foster; midway, James J. Yelverton; refreshments, Anthony Foster; transportation, William Ruby; tag day, C. F. Sheehan; band, Dan Driscoll; lighting, Dan Tumelty; sports, Arthur Flynn.

There will be a tag day tomorrow. The tags will be sold all over the city by school children picked from the different schools. They will be on the streets early.

CIRCUS IN PEABODY JULY 5

Irwin Bros. big new show will give two performances in this city, afternoon and evening, on Saturday, July 5. Irwin Bros. need no introduction to the showgoing public, as their name is known in every city from coast to coast. This season they have endeavored to outdo all previous efforts, and have put together a show of unusual excellence in both point of artistic merit and novelty. Helliott's comedy bears, five in number, do bicycle riding, dance with the lady who handles them, wrestle and tumble, displaying an almost human intelligence; the Cycling Reynolds introduce a trick cycling act that has to be seen to be appreciated and present a most wonderful exhibition of juggling on a slack wire; the three De Homans, one lady and two men, in a high class acrobatic act that is strictly up to date and also give a scientific exhibition of chair balancing.

Madame Irwin presents a troupe of 20 trained dogs that excel anything of their kind ever seen.

The Renos, who present a high-class double trapeze act and flying rings, are acknowledged to be the best in their line. The famous Le Claire Ponies, long a feature act in the big time vaudeville houses, are also one of the feature acts, and Violet and Lewis, in a daring aerial act of artistic merit, help to make up the feature acts. There are, of course a troupe of funny clowns to amuse the children and an unriddable mule that never fails to entertain both old and young.

There will be no street parade.

Whole City Mourns Tragic End of Henry W. Lawrence, Jr.

The tragedy which claimed the life of Henry W. Lawrence last Sunday evening when his motorcycle crashed into a tree on Washington st. saw the passing of an exemplary young man that caused genuine grief in many Peabody homes in which he was held in high esteem.

At the age of 25 he was just shaping his life's career and in whatever direction he would have chosen to give his energy, certain it is that his future would have found him attaining his object. He possessed all of the personal attributes that made him the type of young man of whom any community may be proud to number among its citizens, and so it was only natural that his tragic end was the subject of universal sorrow.

He enlisted in the aviation corps, being made a sergeant-major, and it was while with this unit in England that he became familiar with motorcycles, so it was not surprising to see him again take up the sport following his return from the war service. He had recently acquired the motorcycle.

He had an excellent voice and was always a prime favorite at many of the local minstrel shows and concerts. He was the oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Lawrence of Washington st., with whom he made his home. He was a member of the A. O. U. and Leo Council, A. of C. and Republican city committee.

His funeral, held from St. John's church, Wednesday was one of the largest ever held and attested only too well the esteem in which he had been held by a wide circle of friends. City officials were numbered among the attendants at his funeral which was conducted by Rev. P. J. Sullivan with a requiem mass. The following musical numbers were sung at the church:

"Pie Jesu" at the offertory sung by Misses Marion McBride and Alice Mullen. "Liberia Me," sung by the choir, with Mary L. McCarthy, soloist. "De Profundis," sung after mass by Misses McBride and Mullen.

He is survived by his parents and five brothers and two sisters. The brothers and sisters are Frank, Fred, Herbert, George, Mary and Harriett.

EXPERT PROBE OF ELEC. LIGHT

Mayor Donnell intimated the tax rate would be at least $17.50 if not more when he discussed the supplementary budget last night before the Council. He said further that he almost wished the rate could be $25.00 so that those citizens who failed to appreciate improvements and a low tax rate would have a keener appreciation of his efforts in city hall.

He declared that every house and factory in Peabody was undervalued by the assessors, not with any fling at that department, but rather to approve his assertion that Peabody citizens had failed in part to appreciate his custodianship and the new improvements.

The supplementary budget calling for virtually $70,000 was sent to the committee on finance after adopting the item for $30,000 for streets. A detailed sheet showing the extraordinary expenditures of the city so far in its history was presented the Councilors last night.

Councillor Sullivan asked the Mayor last night to report an estimate of what a financial report of the city for the past two years would cost to print. The Mayor stated that he believed it a waste of time, since any citizen could obtain figures from the city auditor.

The city will make a taking of the land near the Carroll school.

On recommendation of the Mayor the Council approved the hiring of a band for the Eastend celebration July 4th.

Pony express permits were voted from July 1 to August 1 last night to the General Transportation Co., P. J. Sheehy and Hellenic Express.

Councillor Ryan got through a motion that the cost of street sprinkling be taken from the tax levy.

Timothy F. Mahoney and Fred Hockenhall, was veterans and formerly in the employ of the city, were allowed claims for extra pay given service men. Bernard Nangle was allowed $150 for water damages.

Mayor Donnell went on record as favoring increasing the pay of the police and firemen to $4 a day and intimated more might be allowed with the receipt of the income tax return.

A batt flew into the Council Chamber last night and until his departure there was some little excitement as the solons ducked, swatted and did everything in vain to stifle the pest. Councillor McKee got bitten by the visitor.

Councillor Jones made his maiden speech in a request for some service to Ward 2 playground.

Councillor Horrigan got through a motion for the city to pay a bonus to the city hall janitors and a raise in salary is predicted.

Tag Day For Visiting Nurse Is Tomorrow

Peabody will be asked to contribute upwards of $1500 tomorrow with which to buy the Visiting Nurse an automobile so that the calls among the sick may be attended to with greater dispatch than ever before. That Peabody will respond seems sure and the amount desired will, it is confidently believed, be quickly raised.

There is no more far reaching or important civic work than that done by the visiting nurse and in her hands lies much of the health of the community. By how far she succeeds in stamping out disease by her expert ministrations depends in a large measure the general health of all citizens for her duties call her to homes throughout the city.

Peabody is fortunate in having such a skilful nurse as Miss Catherine Noonan holding this position and her work in the past is a good criterion of her work in the future. Thanks to her interest in the work Peabody has been helped to check epidemics and in the scourge which claimed many victims last fall, Miss Noonan gave heroic service and saved many lives. The Enterprise appeals to all of its readers to buy a tag tomorrow and pay as much for it above the customary dime as each reader can afford.

SEXTON HEARING HINTS OF GRAFT

CHARGES AGAINST SUPT. SEXTON

1 That he refused to grant a permit to John T. Keane, a jitney owner despite the fact that Lynn inspectors had pronounced the keane bus all right in every way.

2 That he used his influence with Lynn City Councillors to prevent messrs. Keane, Burns and Isaacson from getting jitney licenses in Lynn.

3 That he told Charles H. Burns and Morris Isaacson, jitney owners, they must "give over money" to procure jitney licenses in Lynn. That the sum of $50 might secure the coveted jitney licenses in Lynn.

A gallery of over 200 citizens witnessed pitiless publicity for Peabody last night in the City Council Chamber when the much heralded charges preferred against Thomas J. Sexton Superintendent of the Municipal Garage came up on the boards at a special hearing before the Council.

Instead of the Council hearing the charges as a jury of peers they gave way to Mayor Donnell who said he was ready to hear the evidence and a hearing of two hours ensued at the end of which time His Honor adjourned the hearing until Monday night when Supt. Sexton will be heard in defense.

Before this turn of affairs a five minute recess was declared for Attorney Sullivan for the defense and Attorney James E. McVann for the respondent until the defense attorney could prepare his case. The Council later voted to adjourn after Mayor Donnell said he was ready to conduct the hearing.

Mayor Donnell and Attorney McVann engaged in a verbal tilt that abounded in sharp repartee during which each virtually accused the other of "passing the buck." Attorney McVann charged that Mayor Donnell had compelled him to go before the Council with his charges. On the other hand, His Honor stoutly proclaimed that Attorney McVann had failed to present to him definite charges against Supt. Sexton and that he stood ready to hear charges when properly presented.

Attorney McVann answered this report by declaring he was ready to proceed with his case and Mayor Donnell jumped into the breach which

The Peabody police have been asked to find the man and they have been aided by identification being made by the owner of the jitney. CITY HALL GOSSIP

The Peabody schools are stressing oral language at the Chief factor in language training. The children of a certain second grade had been told the story of the "Pied Piper of Hamelin" and had then been asked to reproduce it in their own words. It will be recalled that the people of Hamelin were so troubled by rats that they called on the Mayor to adopt some measure of relief. One little tot in the second grade described this part of the story as follows: The people had so many rats they didn't know how to do so they called on Howie Donnell.

sadly missed by many local plants whose teams were good customers.

City Solicitor Horace P. Farnham, who is slowly but steadily regaining health after a long siege of illness, was one of the busiest men in the parade last Saturday, doffing his hat in response to the salutations of friends who showed their pleasure at seeing him out and about again.

City Solicitor Farnham and George A. Blaney are enthusiastic golfers, and members of the Homestead Golf club. Just at present, the former through illness and the latter through suffering a broken leg several months ago, they are unable to play the popular outdoor game, but this does not stop them from sitting on the club house veranda and challenging all their friends when they are "right again."

Some of the Councillors are asking what happened to Manager King's automobile which not so long ago was handsomely and emphatically painted "Citw of Peabody, Electric Light Dept." The newly painted letters have disappeared and it is rumored that something will be said about it at the next Council meeting.

Residents of Sutton St. are asking if the City has acquired a dump in their district for a general delivery of waste material is being deposited where the town of Peabody once maintained a public dump. It is said the Board of Health knows nothing about the new dump.

Lynn City Council ordinance committee will recommend $1600 per year as the new salary for the patrolmen of that city when they hold their next meeting Tuesday night. It is understood that the increase in salary is sure to be adopted. Lynn police work eight hours a day, the force having three shifts for the 24 hours.

Peabody police have reason to believe that their request for an increase in pay will be recommended by the Council at the next regular meeting next Thursday night. The eight hour day and at least $4 a day is said to be the probable increase voted. It is hinted that the firemen will ask for an increase in pay also.

Edward Averell who has been transit man for the City engineers office has resigned his position to enter the summer school at M. I. T. His place will be filled by Harold Powell now employed in the department.

Activities of the CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Members of the Peabody Chamber of Commerce are asked to vote on the report of the Committee on Railroads on Remedial Railroad legislation, as submitted by the Chamber of Commerce of the U. S. A. through their referendum No. 28. These questions are of interest to every member of the Chamber and it is the desire of the directors that they receive an expression from the members.

A committee to consider the suggested plan for Organization of State Department of Agriculture, as adopted at Worcester June 4, has been appointed. This committee consists of Edwin Durkee, H. A. Harrington, and Charles Reynolds. They will meet in the office of the Chamber this evening at 7 o'clock. Any person interested in this question is invited to attend this meeting.

The Visiting Nurse Tag Day, June 21, committee are using the office of the Chamber as headquarters.

Fourteen members attended the annual outing of the Essex County Association of Boards of Trade at Fern-Croft yesterday. Chief among the speakers was Roger W. Babson, the statistician, who has been in the employ of the government for the past two years. Edgar J. Rich, former general counsel for Boston & Maine railroad, explained his plan for the return of railroads to private ownership. Those to attend the outing were: Patrick J. Woods, Frank H. Sawyer, Edward H. Merrill, Joseph A. Ryan, Raymond E. Porter, Hyman S. Isenberg, Dr. Harry Halpern, Bert E. Cox, Timothy A. Sweeney, Louis P. Osborne, Charles C. Hills, David A. Barry, William A. Shea, Ralph E. Thomas.

Reports of solicitors working in New England show that recently five men have been working on schemes that would not stand investigation. When called upon for contributions, ask solicitor for endorsement card issued by the Chamber.

Have you made a grass plot out of that bare strip of ground along your curbing? We have noticed that some have sown grass seed, have you?

At times we hear that certain members say "What is the Chamber of Commerce doing?" to which we reply, "What is the Chamber of Commerce?" Is it simply a single, corporate being, functioning with one intellect, or is it a large group called members functioning with a single purpose. The answer is obvious. In other words the member who asks, "What is the Chamber of Commerce doing?" is questioning himself. The Chamber is doing, can do, and will do, just what its members are wishing it to do. Let everyone, inclined to make an inquiry, ask himself first what he is doing to make the Chamber of Commerce fulfill its purpose. Ignorance of what the Chamber is doing is truly ignorance of one's own business and to express the criticism is in fact self-criticism.

The Chamber has secured several hundred copies of the "Home Canning Manuals" published by the National War Garden Commission. The manual contains much useful information for housewives and covers a wide variety of methods successfully used in canning and drying fruits and vegetables. The books are distributed free to ladies who apply at Chamber headquarters for them.

The Chamber has Hendrick's Commercial Register of the United States, which is a directory of practically all firms in the electrical, engineering, and iron and steel business and kindred industries; also Donnelley's National Classified Telephone Directory, which covers most of the larger factories in the iron and steel business. These directories are available for the use of any of the members.

VISITING NURSE TAG DAY.
All workers are asked to be at the headquarters, Chamber of Commerce office on Lowell st. at 8 o'clock Saturday morning to receive their tags and boxes.

The factories have been supplied with tags and the committee believes that every employee will want to contribute to this fund, by so doing they will show their appreciation of the wonderful work done by the association during the past year.

PYNE-WHITCOMB.

Miss Annie B. Pyne, daughter of Mrs. Florence Pyne of Salem and sister of Miss Evelyn Pyne of this city, was married Tuesday afternoon at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Charles Olsen of Lunenburg, to Howard Robert Whitcomb also of Lunenburg. The bride, becomingly attired in white georgette crepe and bridal veil and carrying a bridal bouquet of bride's roses and sweet peas, entered the spacious lawn to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, played by the bride's aunt, Mrs. Jessie Townsend of Lynn, accompanied on the violin by Miss Helen Proctor of Fitchburg, and took her place under a beautiful arch of mountain laurel. Miss Pyne was preceded by four little girls, Miss Jeanette Townsend and Mildred Hamilton acting as pillow girls, Florence Elliot as ring bearer and Marie Whitcomb as flower girl.

Miss Eva Mason of Fitchburg as maid of honor wearing pink georgette with large picture hat to match and carrying pink roses. The best man was Otis Elliot of Lunenburg.

The gift room was in charge of Misses Evelyn and Alice Pyne; the punch bowl by Miss Louise Olsen, and the guest book by Miss Carrie Olsen. Miss Pyne is a graduate of the Burbank Hospital of Fitchburg, and Mr. Whitcomb a graduate of Amherst. They immediately left on a wedding tour and on their return will make their summer home at Whalon Park.

HERLIHY-SEXTON

The marriage of Miss Margaret J. Sexton, daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Sexton of 4 Pierpont st., and Jeremiah I. Herlihy of Salem took place last Wednesday evening at the St. John's rectory. Rev. Nicholas J. Murphy officiated. A wedding reception followed at the home of the bride. The bride's wedding gown was of white georgette crepe over white silk and she carried bridal roses. The bridesmaid was Miss Minnie A. Ward of Haverhill, while the groom was attended by Fred A. McElligott, brother-in-law of the bride. The couple were recipients of many handsome gifts attesting their popularity. The bride is a sister of Supt. Thomas J. Sexton of the municipal garage. Following a honeymoon in New York the couple will make their home at 43 Aborn st., this city.

A strange family had recently moved into the neighborhood. Time.

Time is a mystery which we have arbitrarily divided into a past and a future, that we may understand something of it. In itself we may be almost certain that it is but an immense, eternal motionless present, in which all that has taken place immutably, in which tomorrow, save in the ephemeral mind of man, is indistinguishable from yesterday and today.—From "The Double Garden," by Maurice Maeterlinck.

Peabody Leather Plants Are Now Fully Unionized Skins High and Scarce

(By Energy)

The harp is still working. Prominent leather manufacturers with whom I have conversed recently predict $15. shoes within a short period.
This means that the shoe we formerly purchased for $5. will bring that money. And why not, when calfskins have sold for 80 cents a foot in the hair. There is an actual scarcity of skins and leather today. The more exported the more scarcity. I enumerate shoes but other commodities are the same. A school boy's shoe is selling for $7. a pair and it may be later we shall have to buy them on at a time. One always finds one shoe to wear longer than the other, and by buying one perhaps we can lengthen out our pocketbook. Common side leather at 3/4 cents a foot when 20 cents was a normal price. Harden up your feet for the time when no shoes may be a necessity.

Peabody is now unionized. With conservative leaders, I can see no reason why the situation is not as safe as under no unions. The time has arrived when the manufacturers and the employees, both essentials, should agree on wages and hours of labor.
When universal, all will be well. But looking backward to the trouble in 1885, Peabody was the goat so to speak, and the business passed to other section. It changed the whole outlook here, and let us hope such an occurrence will not take place again. I understand that the manufacturers have come together and are treating with the unions collectively. I do not understand that they have a compact organization, but it may lead to such an organization later. Certainly to get proper results, both sides should be properly organized and differences settled through one head.

The sale of the T. H. O'Shea plant on Main street, will give Peabody an added enterprise. I am told that the Snyders will move their business from Salem, doing it all in this plant.

The celebration under the management of the city government was a grand success. It cost money, a lot of it. Tax payers must settle, which perhaps has been little thought of.
But such a celebration will not come again in our time let us hope, for none of us want to witness the results as shown by some of the boys returned from overseas. Those who thankful for, while the maimed must bear their troubles, with the knowledge that the community are with them. The way the tanners have given employment to returned soldiers is a distinct recognition of their services for their country, and while some may say it was a duty, there was nothing obligatory about it.

The former practice of shoe manufacturers selling shoes and purchasing the leather afterward, has now changed. They must now buy the leather first, in order to obtain costs.
Shoe manufacturers in normal times could hammer the market so to speak.
They could generally figure leather at a price and purchase it at a fraction less than their figures. But now, they must own the leather or face a loss on their shoes as leather advances while you sleep. It must be some satisfaction to some salesmen to inform the buyers they must pay the price without jockeying, for these salesmen have many black and blue spots where they were hammered.

The death of Louis Winslow in the automobile accident on Newburyport turnpike was a sad affair. He was widely known in the leather trade, and had arrived at the point where he could enjoy life. A hard worker, he enjoyed the company of his friends.
I had the pleasure of bowling with him one season, and found him game escaped disability have much to be at that sport as he was in business.
Such is life.

If the peace treaty is signed shortly, I

Driver "Con." Duggan Makes Ideal Fireman For Dept. City Should Boost Wages

It was natural that Cornelius J.
Duggan should sooner or later wear the uniform of a permanent fireman and so when the fire engineers were called on to add a new regular back in 1917 they voted solidly to give "Con" Duggan the job. They made no mistake for ding fire duty to this young stalwart is just as natural a habit as picking up fast wallops at third base is to the major league star.
(Take your pick)

Driver Duggan while the youngest permanent man in Peabody's prized fire department is perhaps as well known through-out the city as a result of his uniform as any of the older men for he roams the city and fills the gap when the regular driver is having his one day off in five. Ask any kiddie who sees the fire apparatus tear away from its station and he'll tell you "Con" Duggan is the man he dreams about and how he is only biding the time when he, too, can mount the seat of the motor driver or horse drawn vehicle and run to fires like "Con" does in various parts of the city.

It was back in 1912 that Duggan first donned the blue uniform of a fireman as a member of the crack Hose 1 at fire headquarters. It wasn't long before his daring and his energy as a fireman made him sought after to relieve the permanent drivers at headquarters. He was employed as a clerk at Edgerly's market on Lowell St. when he first joined the ranks of the callmen and his proximity to the central station, plus his love for action at fires, paved the way for him to render valuable service before the call to a regular position came on October 28, 1917.

DRIVER CORNELIUS J. DUGGAN

Duggan now would prefer being just a plain fireman and it calls him to have to stay with his firekit and watch his fellow laddies brave the flames and smoke and squelch fires. What's more it's going to be hard to keep young men like Duggan in the fire department unless the city raises the pay of its permanent men and makes it more of an inducement than the $3.75 a day is right now.

Duggan is married and lives at 7 Buxton St. He is the proud father of a two months' old son who some day will have an added zest in seeing the fire engine or chemical clang by, provided his "Dad" is still doing duty on the driver's seat at that future day.

PEABODY'S DISTRICT COURT RANKS WITH BEST IN STATE

Going to court will be almost a pleasure when the new district court for Peabody is opened in the near future. No doubt some of the individuals who are called upon to face the judge may look at it in a different light, but to court officials, attorneys, witnesses and spectators the change from the present cramped and unattractive place to the new, well-lighted, commodious and convenient temple of justice will certainly be a welcome
one. The E. H. Porter Co. has certainly planned and built an ideal structure of its kind.

The main entrance on Lowell street is, in the center of the building, between two high-studded, finely-finished and well-lighted stores, one of which is now in use as the headquarters of the Chamber of Commerce. Entering an oak-paneled doorway and vestibule, one passes on to a spacious hallway and corridor with dark natural wood finish.

From this corridor runs a wide stairway leading to the main court room on the second floor. On the lower floor at the extreme end is the juvenile court room, a good-sized apartment, with convenient offices adjoining. In the rear of this is a back stairway leading to the court room above. Through this stairway the prisoners will be brought in for trial.

The entire second floor is given over to court purposes. In the rear is the court room proper, all in dark natural wood finish which is certain to prove restful to the eyes. The judge's bench is of ample proportions and back of it is a set of shelves large enough to accommodate a good-sized library for the convenience of the presiding judge. Directly in front is the clerk's desk, both that and the judge's bench raised somewhat above the level of the floor. To the right, looking from the bench, is the probation officer's desk and at the left is the prisoners' dock, in front of which is located the witness stand.

The centre is a railed-in space for the attorneys. Back of this is an open space all around and still further back is the space reserved for spectators, also separated by a rail.
The room is high-studded and airy, has plenty of windows, and the artificial lights are hanging shades of a beautiful design.

The judge's office leads off to the right, convenient to the bench. Below that, on the same side, come the offices of the probation officer and clerk and between the two has been installed a mammoth modern safe fitted with the latest receptacles for records, legal documents, etc. The safe is partitioned off and there are entrances to it from both offices.

On the other side of the corridor are offices that may be used as witness rooms, attorneys' rooms or whatever purpose the court officials may require.

All in all the building meets every requirement for an ideal municipal court, and that's what competent judges declare it to be.

G. O. P. League To Come Here

The Republican League of Massachusetts, a new organization which bids fair to play a prominent part in the affairs of the state this year, and is planning a still greater part in 1920, is to form a branch in Peabody in the near future. One was formed in Salem last week with a membership of around 100, and Secretary Robert N.
Turner is authority for the statement that one of the league's field agents would visit Peabody shortly and arrange for a meeting at which the objects of the league would be explained by competent speakers and steps taken to form a local branch. The league's announced purposes include this extremely laudable one: "To carry on a constant campaign of education, by speech and writing, along lines of genuine Americanism, upholding the fundamental institutions of our government and of society against the destructive tyranny of Socialism and Bolshevism."

EVERYBODY BUY A TAG

Although we have had drives and tag days without number, none has had a more worthy object in view than that which is scheduled for tomorrow, and every person appealed to should not only be willing but anxious to contribute his or her mite. The purpose of tomorrow's tag sale is the securing of a sum of money sufficient to provide the visiting nurse with a moderate-priced automobile. This is not to lessen her arduous duties any, but to enable her to extend their scope. Peabody is a city covering an extensive area, and as the calls for the nurse are often from sections far apart, it can readily be seen how much more ground the nurse would be able to cover in a conveyance that was always at hand. Everyone knows the faithful service rendered the year around by the visiting nurse, and the solicitors should meet with little difficulty in securing the sum desired.

THE SOLDIERS' WELCOME

The welcome home celebration in honor of the 800 odd Peabody young men who in some form or other participated in the successful task of subduing the atrocious Huns and their allies was a credit to the city of Peabody. It fittingly closed an epoch in the city's history in a manner which will never be forgotten either by the gallant veterans thus honored or by the citizens in general. From the time the first batch of Peabody boys were cheered and bidden Godspeed on their way to the training camps up to the closing event in celebration of the return home of the boys, Peabody has shown conclusively that it stood patriotically behind every national war move and that it had at heart the interests of the youth who went out to lay down their lives if necessary in answer to the nation's call. It sent the boys away with light hearts and smiling faces, provided them with countless little comforts and luxuries, and then, when their work was done, it gave them a welcome home that showed each and every one of them where they stood with the folks at home. Such a record makes every citizen and every soldier proud of the fact that he belongs in Peabody.

EAST END PLAYGROUND

The East End playground is a source of considerable enjoyment to the people of that section of the city, but it could be made immeasurably more so by judicious planning and the expenditure of a comparatively small sum of money. The chief need of the playground and the one that it lacks is shrubbery and shade trees. These cannot be added at a moment's notice. It takes a few years for them to grow and it requires judicious planning a long time in advance. With proper planning, and the planting of a few trees and shrubs each year, it would not be a great while before satisfactory results could be obtained, and the cost each year would be comparatively slight. This restful feature, in addition to the regular playground equipment, would provide a park for the East End that would be a source of both additional pleasure and pride.

Seats of some kind are also as much to be desired. Mothers take their children and go there to rest and should not be obliged to sit on the ground. A few of these, conveniently distributed, could be added each year at comparatively little expense.

MORE SHADE TREES

Good roads are a great thing, a wonderful asset to a city, and Peabody is justly proud of its splendid roads already built and the others that are in the making. But there are other things besides roads to be considered, and one of these is the matter of shade trees. Peabody has a number of streets noted for their shade trees, but it needs countless more. New sections of the city are being developed each year and in these sections and on many other streets where there are no shade trees at all, a start should be made. The inauguration of a system of new planting each year, in addition to replanting where necessary, backing up the excellent care the present trees are now receiving, would bring much-to-be-desired results in a short time. It is generally understood that the department having this matter in charge is hampered by lack of funds, and if this is so, it is a matter to which the members of the council might well give their attention.

EDITORIAL BRIEFS

Regular epidemic of soldiers' welcomes.

And none in this vicinity had anything on Peabody's.

Ten days more and the United States becomes a Sahara—perhaps.

No more wrangling and pangling over pony express licenses, which ought to help some.

Those who have heard of "der tag" and don't know what it is can find out by buying one tomorrow.

Although the nation is supposed to go "dry" after July 1, don't expect the South church clock to be the only thing illuminated right away.

If you should think of something that would be of benefit to the city, don't keep it under your hat. Call around to the Chamber of Commerce and confide it to Secretary Thomas, who is a mighty pleasing gentleman to meet.

Whassa Matter With You, Man? "Why won't I do?" demanded the lady of 300 pounds displacement, as she indignantly waved the want ad section in his face. "Didn't you advertise for a stout woman to do housework?"—Indianapolis Star.

BREAKING IT GENTLY. Can you keep a secret? Yes. Well, auntie has eloped with the chauffeur, and they've borrowed your motor.

NOW HE GOES AFTER IT. Times have changed. What now? I was just thinking that I can remember the time when a man bought life insurance merely to get rid of the agent.

ROUND ABOUT

Friends of William C. Beckett the first letter carrier to be appointed for the Peabody postoffice, will be sorry to learn that he is to make his permanent home in North Newcastle, Me. He removed there this week and would have gone last week but for his desire to assist in the welcome home celebration to the world war veterans from this city. He is a member of Union Post G. A. R. of this city and has a fine war record himself. He plans to keep busy as an agriculturist. He will always be assured of a welcome back to Peabody.

Young Americans are asking "where is Brian Healey, the fruit man, this summer?" His familiar cry, "strawberries, they're all good ones," is lost to Peabody for he has exchanged his seat on the fruit team for a permanent berth as crossing tender at Proctor's. The little boys and girls miss him about the city and none more so than in Crow Village where all knew him and liked him. I have heard many compliments for his upkeep of the station at Proctor's Crossing. Alas, alack, what of the new city clock? It stopped at 3:50 last Wednesday afternoon, presumably to prove that it could emulate the role of its predecessor unless it was pure cussedness that caused it to miss strokes of its pendulum. Councillor Horrigan had something to say about the new $1600 timepiece at the meeting of the Council last week and it strikes me it is fair to echo his question, "Who takes care of the clock?" Why not have the Western Union take over the contract?

I am told that one of the sailors who came to Peabody with the contingent from Hingham declared that at no public function in honor of returned war veterans had he ever found enough to eat in the way of refreshments as he did at the military ball given Peabody's veterans last Monday night. He ate his fill and he frankly admitted it was the first time he had ever done so at any similar function. This is best proof that Peabody's ball committee did the thing up brown. I have heard much favorable comment for the ball committee. Councillor Joseph A. Ryan who was chairman and his committee may well feel repaid for their efforts.

Cottage Park, a strip of land owned by the City and under the jurisdiction of the Park Commissioners who are anxious to have the playground presentable is not improving with age. Grass that is going to hay attests too plainly the lack of care and makes the spot as viewed from Cottage st. a decided contrast to other days when short green grass set off shrubs and flowers. Looks mighty as if the P. C. needed a new caretaker.

Residents on upper Lynnfield St. deserve to have electricity fed to their houses inasmuch as the juice now goes right by their residences. I am told that some of the taxpayers preferring to live in that section are hoping that Manager King of the P. E. L. D. will soon see his way to stringing necessary wires into their homes.

Arthur Barry former P. H. S. star athlete who last week was elected Captain of the Exter baseball team day will have an added zest in seeing for 1920, takes his new honors lightly and is not at all puffed up over his good fortune. He has been a stalwart player on the team this year and the students at this foremost Prep school are fortunate to have the Peabody boy among their athletes.

Among the Peabody boys who helped to put over the last Liberty Loan was Gordon Randall of State st. who secured $2300 in subscriptions. He is a pupil in the eighth grade, Wallis school, and lives with his grandfather, Fred Forness.

The A. C. L. employees have "come through" in grand style on every "drive" that the citizens of Peabody have been called upon to put over, but this had no effect upon them when called upon to "chip" for the new A. C. L. ball team. The way the half dollars poured into the treasury was a treat, and a sum sufficient to put the team firmly on its feet was easily secured. It certainly is a fine spirit of co-operation.

"Some stack" is the proper expression to use in describing the material collected by the young men of the East End for their annual "Night Before" bonfire for the Fourth. It promises to be the biggest affair of its kind in this vicinity, and will prove an attraction for thousands.

O'ROURKE-COMEAU.
A pretty wedding was held at 6.30 Monday evening at the parochial residence of St. John's church when Marie L. Comeau, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Comeau was united in marriage to Michael J. O'Rourke of Salem by the pastor, Rev. N. J. Murphy. The bride was dressed in white georgette crepe over white silk, her veil being caught up with orange blossoms, and carried bride roses. The bridesmaid, Miss Helen Maher, wore pink georgette crepe with hat to match and carried pink roses. The groom was attended by his brother, Francis J. O'Rourke. A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents from 7 to 9 p. m. After a two weeks' trip they will reside in Salem.

Almost everybody in Peabody watched the aeroplane that flew over the city Tuesday, the 17th, but few were aware that it was carrying a woman passenger. Miss Lottie L. Hodgkins, a Swampscott society woman, was the passenger, and Everett A. Terhune, Jr., was the aviator. They flew from the Tedesco club and after circling over Peabody, alighted at Rockdale Park.

Edward J. Collins, junior clerk in Pushard's pharmacy, will spend his two weeks' vacation with his aunt, Mrs. Patrick J. O'Shaughnessy of Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island.

Composer of 'God Bless America' Thanks Enterprise For Publicity

Messrs. Frank and Newell Penniman, Editors of Peabody Enterprise,
Peabody, Mass.

Dear Friends:

I cannot refrain from writing to thank you for the good work you have done to help me place my new anthem in the hundreds of homes in Peabody.
To you, and to Mrs. Hartwell, music teacher in the Public Schools, must be given much of the credit in placing,
as I did, more than 500 copies of God Bless America in as many homes.

I have placed them in the homes of the following nationalities: Americans, French, English, Irish, Scotch, Portuguese, Greek, Italians, Finns, Poles, Jews and Swedes. Don't you think that in all these homes the seed of true Americanism has been planted which will, in the future, bear fruit.

I have been surprised at the wonderful enthusiasm exhibited by the children of our foreign-born citizens.
Many of them have insisted on their parents to buy it, having heard about it in the school or from some of their chums. A Portuguese family, on Harris St. where I made a call showed some real American patriotism. I knocked at the door. "Come in" said some one.
I entered and was about to say something when the man said: "I don't want to buy anything today." I pulled out a copy of the anthem a boy saw it and said: "I heard that in school to-day, Papa." Papa saw it, read the title, put his hand in his pocket, took out a dime and said: "I cannot sing nor play, but the title 'GOD BLESS AMERICA' is good enough for me." Wasn't that a true American sentiment that will be reflected in his children.

Among the 700 homes I have visited, so far, I have heard very few discordant notes. Among them, more than half have been from those who call themselves American citizens. I offered to furnish one person with a free copy if he would read it but he refused.

"God Bless America" was sung at the Federal Theatre recently, and was accorded a fine reception. I, also, heard the Salem Cadet Band play it at their room and Mr. Missud considers it a beautiful piece of music. It was sung, at City Hall, Decoration Day, by pupils of the High School.

I have ordered the second edition which will be here shortly. I expect to dispose of more than 1000 copies in Peabody and I am proud of the record made so far. Peabody seems to have a faculty of going "over the top" in everything of a patriotic nature, despite the fact that a large part of its population are of foreign nationalities. I hope that other towns will make as good a showing until this new national anthem has reached every corner of these United States.
When this is done and the children are singing "GOD BLESS AMERICA," then it's good bye to all the un-American propagandas that, octopus-like, are spreading their poisonous and slimy tentacles all over the country in an endeavor to crush the institutions that it has taken this nation more than one hundred and forty years to build up.

They shall not succeed. We may jail them; we may deport them; and we may use gatlins guns on them, still the seed they planted will germinate

ARMY MOTORIST IN FRANCE

Perils and Pitfalls Are Described by Colonel Tyndall in Letter to Carl G. Fisher.

"There will be a couple of million real 'Road-Boosters' back in the United States when the war is over, as I think all of the men over here appreciate how good roads can be made invaluable. In my mind there is no doubt that the good roads of France saved her in two instances."

Col. Robert H. Tyndall of the One Hundred and Fiftieth field artillery thus writes from "over there" to Chairman Carl G. Fisher of the A. A.
A. touring board. It will be remembered that these two were closely associated several years ago in the transcontinental tour from Indianapolis to San Francisco, at which time much of the route of the Lincoln highway was decided upon. Colonel Tyndall is an inveterate road driver and has covered thousands of miles of good, bad, and indifferent American highways. In his letter "home," he goes on to say:

"I have seen movements of troops made in the dark which would have been impossible in any other country

Troops Being Transported in France.

than France. Here the roadmakers have scientifically planted trees that absorb drainage on the side and at the same time shelter the highways so as to keep them just moist enough.
In some instances you will find a tall poplar standing higher than the rest of the trees bordering the road, at every kilometer, so that you can readily measure distances with the eye.

"One of the great things they do here is to repair a road and even make an entirely new surface without interfering with the stream of traffic.
In one campaign we were in, over a thousand trucks passed my regiment, each carrying 22 soldiers. This was for re-enforcement on the flank and was done without the slightest confusion. One does not find here the little holes that cause so much trouble remaining in a road. The potted places are immediately filled and drained, right up to the front line almost."

"As far as being able to orient one's self, I think from now on I can drive blindfolded any place in the United States, as most of my driving on the front has been at night, and the roads wind around considerably over here.
I don't have lights and neither do the trucks and other vehicles coming in opposite directions. We are not allowed to use the horn, as this is the method employed for a gas alarm.
Sometimes I really wonder how we get through with it all, but it shows how a person can become accustomed to most any thing, and we train ourselves to see in the dark."

GOOD ROADS IN NEW JERSEY

State Has Standardized Upon Concrete Construction—Will Build Nothing Else In Future.

W. D. Thompson, acting highway engineer of New Jersey, says the macadam-surfaced Lincoln highway in New Jersey has been seen to rapidly disintegrate and fall away under the terrific strain imposed upon the road by the heavy motortrucks now traveling it day and night.

New Jersey has standardized upon concrete construction and hereafter will build nothing else on its main routes of travel. Future building will be of concrete of a minimum width of 18 feet with a foot penetration shoulder on each side and laid upon nothing less than a 30-foot right of way.

Two miles of such construction are now being completed upon the Lincoln highway in New Jersey, near Iselin, the cost of which will be $146,000, indicating in no small measure the ideas of the New Jersey commissioners that a heavy initial expense is, in fact, economy in the long run.

Ventilation for Pigs.

See that the pigs get ventilation, and in the ordinary gable roof house openings should be made in the peak and under the eaves.

Hogs Most Preferred.

The food administration seems to prefer hogs weighing around 210 for shipping abroad. Hogs of about that size will probably command a premium.

Poultry Essential.

Fresh air is one of the prime essentials in poultry houses.

Coney as a Venice.

Coming up toward Sandy Hook on a perfectly placid sea we were blessed with just that amount of haze which turned Coney Island into Venice, Arthur E. Shipley writes in Scribner's Magazine. The sea was an Adriatic lagoon; we might have left Trieste overnight! The same merciful mist changed the clear-cut outlines of the skyscrapers into Turner's pictures and the Boy and the Poet became ecstatic with the ecstasy of youth.

To the Honorable the Justices of the Superior Court within and for the County of Essex:

RESPECTFULLY libels and represents George F. Hicks, of Peabody, in said county, that he was lawfully married to Grace E. Hicks, now of parts unknown, at Lawrence, Massachusetts, on the eighteenth day of May A. D., 1890, and thereafterwards your libellant and the said Grace E. Hicks lived together as husband and wife in this commonwealth, to wit, at Lawrence, Stonham and Peabody; that your libellant has always been faithful to his marriage vows and obligations, but the said Grace E. Hicks being wholly regardless of the same, at Lawrence at divers times during the year 1914 committed the crime of adultery. And that said libellee on divers days and times during the years 1915, 1916 and 1917 committed the crime of adultery at Bridgeport, Connecticut and at Hoboken, New Jersey with one Norman Torrey. And that said libellee in 1914 did, without right, desert your libellant at said Peabody, which desertion has continued up to the present time, being more than three consecutive years in duration.

Wherefore your libellant prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony may be decreed between your libellant and the said Grace E. Hicks.

Dated this eighteenth day of February A. D., 1919.

GEORGE F. HICKS.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts
Superior Court,
Essex, ss.

Upon the foregoing libel, amended by inserting the name of and charging adultery with Norman Torrey co-respondent, ordered, that the said libellant give notice to said Grace E.
Hicks, libellee, by causing an attested copy of his said libel, and of this order thereon, to be published in the Peabody Enterprise, a newspaper printed in Peabody, in the County of Essex; once a week, for three weeks successively, the last publication, to be fourteen days at least before the return day of this Court, at Salem, within the county of Essex, on the first Monday of July next, and by mailing, forthwith, by registered letter to the libellee at her last known place of residence an attested copy of said libel and of this order thereon: that she may appear at said Salem within six months from said first Monday of July, and show cause, if any she has, why the prayer of said libel should not be granted.

And it is further ordered that the said libellant give notice to said Norman Torrey co-respondent, by causing an attested copy of said libel, and of this order thereon, to be sent, by registered letter, to his last known residence, or, if such residence is unknown, to the place where the adulter-ous act is alleged to have been committed, fourteen days at least before said return day.

Attest:
A. N. FROST, Clerk.

The foregoing is a true copy of said libel and of the order thereon.

Attest:

ONE WAR WORKER TO COMPANY

A. E. F. stock-taking finds Y. M. C. A. alone averages secretary to every 170 men.

Paris, May.—Although the tumult and the shouting have died over here, and the captains, having assisted in effecting the exit of the kings, are themselves beginning to depart, the American program of war with the A. E. F. "carries on" with increased resources and effectiveness.

The other day the A. E. F. took stock of the agencies from the homeland that are serving the doughboy. The stock-taking was preliminary to the newly instituted General Headquarters program for co-ordinating the work of these agencies to the best advantage of the men. And the results are illuminating.

With approximately 1,500,000 doughboys still in France and occupied Germany, there is now one American war worker over here for every 150 men and one but operated by an American war work organization for every 900 men.

The totals as given in the resume for all the war agencies, exclusive of the American Red Cross, are 9,618 men and women workers and 1,650 huts. Of the total number of workers, 8,350 are representatives of the Young Men's Christian Association, leaving the overseas war work strength of all other organizations at 1,268. Of the total number of huts, 1,507 are operated by the Y. M. C. A. and the remainder, 141, by all other war work agencies.

Incidentally the stock taking showed that everyone of the American agencies has increased its personnel in the five months since the signing of the armistice—the Y. M. C. A., for instance, having added 726 workers to its strength. This increase is attributed to the recognition, both by the military authorities and by the executives of the various agencies, of an increased need for war work among the men, now that the concentration upon the objective of victory has been eliminated and eagerness to get back home is intensified, with weeks and even months of waiting ahead.

With these resources at hand the General Staff of the A. E. F. has undertaken to supervise and regulate the service given to soldiers by the auxiliary organizations. General welfare officers are to be appointed, one to each combat division, each similar unit of the Service of Supplies and each higher headquarters. Their duties will be to supervise athletic and amusement programs; determine the proper disposition of huts, restaurants and entertainment halls; recommend readjustments where recreational facilities are in adequate or where there is duplication of effort, and to notify war work agencies of the locations of all units. They will decide whether there are too many or too few war workers in their territories and, where necessary, will obtain details of non-commissioned officers and men to aid the war workers.

The welfare officers will have jurisdiction over free distribution of food and supplies by the various war work organizations. Indiscriminate giving away will be discouraged, and free distribution will only be countenanced when ordinary comforts and facilities for the men are not available, especially for sick and wounded and for troops in transit or otherwise separated from the usual sources of supply.

The Y. M. C. A., which is operating 1,600 huts in France, is said to have expended half the amount which will be available to it for use in France. It has operated the canteen service at a loss. With the army taking over the canteen service, however, the expenses of the Y. M. C. A. will be reduced.

Some idea of the expenditure made for war work in the period which passed with the institution of the program of co-ordination is shown in the record of the Y. M. C. A. This organization had invested $4,500,000 in overseas huts and their equipment up to the first of the year, with an average maintenance cost of more than $10,000 a month. It gave away in combat areas, from last May to the end of November, goods valued at more than $700,000 and its Christmas gifts to the doughboys last year represented a value of more than half a million.

Its loss in the operation of canteens, done on borrowed capital, was $600,000. It has expended $1,750,000 for sporting goods for free use of the soldiers. It has leased and operated 37 chocolate and biscuit factories and seven sawmills in France to meet the needs of the work. It has distributed more than $2,000,000 worth of books, literature and Bibles, free to the soldiers.

The entertainment bill of the Y. M. C. A. overseas for the last six months had increased to $400,000 a month in February. In three months after the signing of the armistice it gave 11,181 moving picture presentations, representing an aggregate of 85,085,000 feet of film.

Incidentally, the Y. M. C. A. has transmitted free of charge for the soldiers up to April 5 of this year, 312,316 remittances to the value of $18,627,797.65.

Big Bill At Strand

If you were to have the opportunity of seeing one of the world's foremost motion picture stars in one of the greatest stories ever written for the stage, wouldn't you jump at the chance? The star? Marguerite Clark! The story? "Come Out of the Kitchen!" This is the play in which Ruth Chatterton was carried to fame almost overnight and which has delighted millions in story form and upon the stage. It will top the Strand's program for today and Saturday. Eugene O'Brien is co-starred as Clark in the picture.

Mr. O'Brien will star in his own right next season, his pictures being handled by Marie Walcamp in a chapter of "The Red Glove" is the second big attraction for today. This is certainly the most thrilling serial ever filmed and many of Miss Walcamp's stunts are little short of marvelous. As an added attraction the Strand has secured one of Mack Sennett's gloom dispensers entitled "Love Is Blind" with Ben Turpin as the head run-maker.

Baby Marie Osborne, known to millions as "Little Mary Sunshine," will be presented at the local playhouse Sunday evening in "Dolly's Vacation." Little Sambo, the colored lad, plays opposite Baby Marie and these two children romp through five reels of delightful comedy drama. Gladys Ruelle and Creighton Hale in "Wails" will be the second feature for Sunday evening. Both of these pictures are new and they make up a program high above the average run of Sunday evening photoplays.

Maipet Normand and Vivian Martin will divide the headline honors Monday and Tuesday. Miss Normand will be presented in "Peck's Bad Girl." As the title would indicate it is a comedy-drama but despite its great store of mirth, the picture has many tense moments and once again does Miss Normand demonstrate that her success in drama is as great as in comedy. Miss Normand is cast in the part of the village scamp who puts one over on the big city vamp. Vivian Martin will be offered in her latest Paramount picture "An Innocent Adventuress." Miss Martin is a clever little actress and it is said that this vehicle compares favorably with her past releases.

Beautiful Dorothy Dalton in "Other Men's Wives," will be the banner attraction on Wednesday and Thursday. Ruth Roland in "The Tiger's Trail" and the Pathe News will also be featured on the mid-week bill.

The Strand announces an early showing of William S. Hart in his new picture, "Square Deal Sanders."

Witnesses Against Sexton Tell of Talk of Money In Hearing On Charges

had threatened to cut short the hearing set for the evening and announced that he was ready to hear the evidence.

When President Giles called the Council to order at 8:40 on the arrival of Atty. Sullivan of Salem, he announced the business of the evening and requested the City Clerk to read the charges. Councillor Hogan interrupted to get in a motion that the Mayor be invited to attend the hearing and the chair sent the Eastend spokesman to the Mayor's office with the invitation. Mayor Donnell entered the chamber at once.

City Clerk Poor read the charges as filed last week by Charles H. Burns. In substance, this merely charged Supt. Sexton with conduct unbecoming a city official in discharge of his duties.

Atty. Sullivan argued that his client was entitled to a bill of specifications so that counsel might know what he must answer. He argued for a continuance in order to digest the bill of particulars and prepare his case.

Atty. McVann for the respondents said he was ready to file specifications at once if the Council so voted.

Before putting the question to the Council, President Giles declared he for one saw no reason why the Council could not hear what evidence was ready. Here Atty. Sullivan repeated his argument for a postponement and the chair asked for a recess of five minutes to permit of counsel conferring. Atty. McVann said he was ready to put in specifications.

At the conclusion of the recess Mayor Donnell addressed the Council declaring that he had been misquoted and that he had never told Atty. McVann that he wouldn't hear the charges against Supt. Sexton. He set forth his rights under the charter by which he alone had the power to remove and prefer charges against a city employee. This brought from the Council a motion to turn the matter over to the Mayor and on Councillor McKeen's motion to adjourn Mayor Donnell took charge of the meeting. It was 9 o'clock when Mayor Donnell swore in the witnesses.

Officer Charles Burns of the Peabody police force was the first to take the stand. He it was who preferred the charges. His testimony in part was as follows:

"On May 13, I went to the municipal garage to secure my permit to operate a jitney between here and Lynn. I produced my registration certificate to Supt. Sexton. Shortly afterwards Mr. O'Connell came into the garage and Mr. Sexton said to me, 'You won't have any trouble getting your license in Peabody but you will have to come across to get it from the City Council in Lynn. I asked him how much and he pointed to Charlie O'Connell who he said might be able to fix it up.'

"I told them I would think it over. Sexton said 'there's no use in thinking it over you'll have to come across. O'Connell asked me to have Isaacson come and see him.' Burns had admitted that he was interested in the bus formerly owned by Isaacson. He said he later talked over the incident with Isaacson and decided that if he couldn't get his license without passing money over, to use his own words, in a clean manner he would not run a jitney. He declared that Councillor Corcoran of Lynn told him Councillor Ray also of that city and both serving on the committee of licenses, had asked Corcoran to hold up on voting the permit to him alleging that he (Burns) had knocked Sexton and was in danger of losing him his job as superintendent of the Peabody City Garage.

Witness declared further that he and Grand Chaplain of the Grand Lodge. Evening service will be omitted until September. Monday 7:30 P. M.—Boy Scouts. 7:30 P. M.—Women's Guild. Wednesday 7:30 P. M.—Girl Scouts. Tuesday, St. John's Day. 8:00 P. M. Knights of Washington.

SOUTH CONGREGATIONAL. Rev. J. G. Miller, pastor. Children's Sunday. Morning worship at 10:30 o'clock. The children of the Sunday school will be in attendance. Rev. Arthur J. Benedict, of Arizona, will give an interesting account of his work. He will tell stories about the home life of the people. All should hear him. Several children will be baptized.

Sunday school concert at 7 p. m. in the auditorium with graduating exercises of different departments. Fathers and mothers are urged to attend.

recounted the talk about money it would cost to get the Lynn license and that Ray asked Corcoran to go down to his (Ray's) office and fix the thing up. Lynn held him up ten days and he lost nearly a month's business.

In answer to a question from Mayor Donnell, Burns reiterated his first charge that Supt. Sexton had told him to give the money to Charlie O'Connell and that the latter would push the permit through in Lynn. Asked if he was told who would have to be seen in Lynn, witness said no name was mentioned. Burns also declared Sexton had told him he couldn't bother to inspect Keane's jitney bus.

This ended Burns' testimony and Supt. Sexton was given a chance to ask him question. Supt. Sexton's query was if he hadn't told the witness that Charlie O'Connell had secured a jitney license in Lynn for Joseph Sydis through his brother George F. O'Connell on the grounds that Sydis was not a naturalized citizen.

Special officer John T. Keane next took the stand. His testimony which Mayor Donnell hinted was the most direct evidence presented against Supt. Sexton, had to do with alleged refusal on the part of the local inspector to approve of his jitney despite the fact that the Lynn inspector had found it complying with the regulations. He declared that Supt. Sexton on one occasion had said his brake did not work properly and had told him his car was unsanitary despite the fact that it was a brand new jitney. He said he had seen Sexton in Lynn in consultation with Councillor Ray. He charged that Supt. Sexton had refused to pass his jitney at least five times.

Isaacson testified that he had a conversation with Supt. Sexton regarding "coming across with money" to get a license in Lynn. He said that he asked Supt. Sexton if $25 was enough and Sexton had said no. Asked if $50 would get the license. Sexton was charged with saying that sum might lead the Lynn official to consider.

Isaacson testified that Councillor Ray of Lynn had held him up and said if he didn't lay off making alleged charges that he give him a good licking.

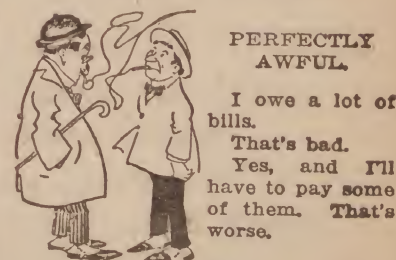

"You and who else?" Isaacson claimed he retorted to Councillor Ray while everybody in the gallery had a good laugh and someone clapped hands at this smart repartee.

Supt. Sexton asked by the Mayor if he wished to take the stand and be heard in defense of the charges asked that he be allowed a little time to prepare his case and expressed himself satisfied with the hearing adjourned until Monday night at 7:30. At that time it is expected that some of the Lynn Councillors may be present in behalf of the defense.

The tilt between Mayor Donnell and Attorney McVann was the spice of the evening's hearing. The Mayor declared he wanted Atty. McVann to get off his stomach the feeling that he couldn't get a hearing at his hands on the charges, declaring that he was ready to hear the evidence right away.

Atty. McVann quoted the Mayor as having told him he was sick and tired of hearing about the charges and that he didn't want to do anything in the matter. This the Mayor said was not his attitude and that until definite charges were placed in his hands he was powerless to take any action.

Councillors Reed, Hogan and Sullivan went on record as favoring a hearing on what evidence was ready last night and when the Mayor announced himself willing to take charge the motion of Councillor Hogan that the Mayor sit as the judge was quickly passed.

Miss MacKinnon Wrote Class Ode For Graduation

The honor of writing the class ode for the graduation exercises of Peabody High School, class of 1919, went to Miss Isabelle MacKinnon, one of the nine honor students. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archibald A. MacKinnon. Her sister Helen E. MacKinnon was among the honor graduates, class of 1917.

Here is the class ode which will be sung at the graduation exercises tonight:

CLASS ODE.

With a feeling of pleasure we stand here tonight,
For we've reached what we've striven to attain,
And life's journey shines bright with a glorious light,
As we think of success we can gain.
These four happy years we can never forget,
That we've spent here in Peabody High:
The knowledge we've gained, and the tasks we have met,
And the joys that in close friendship lie.

We all look for success in this life's winding trail,
With our goal as our beacon in sight;
Whenever temptations and dangers assail,
Let us ever be guided aright.
In whatever we do, we will never forget
What the words of our motto express,
When all of our duties with honor are met,
That ambition's the path to success.

Hogan who has been the man behind the committee having in charge the bonfire has secured hundreds of boxes which are being placed on the stack to make it soar skywards nearly 100 feet. The manufacturers have materially aided the project and everything points to a big celebration on Independence Day.

NEW PASTOR IS NEWSPAPERMAN

Rev. D. Rand Pierce, the new pastor of the Pentecostal Nazarene Church, Pierpont Street, has just recently arrived from the Pacific Coast, where he has been sojourning since August last for the benefit of his wife's health. At the time of their departure for the West he was pastor of the West Somerville Church. This is the third time they have crossed the continent on the same mission. They have spent their time during their last absence in Vancouver, B. C., Bellingham, Everett and Seattle, Wash.

Mr. Pierce is not a stranger to these parts. He was born in New Hampshire and reared from two years of age in the State of Maine. He was converted, educated and ordained among the Methodists, and was for several years a member of the East Maine Conference. About 18 years ago he accepted a call to the First Pentecostal Church of Lynn, Mass., and has continued to serve churches in this denomination (now known as the Pentecostal Church of the Nazarene) ever since. His other pulpits have included Providence, Fitchburg, Somerville and Brooklyn, N. Y.

While rated as a devoted successful pastor, Mr. Pierce has also been widely recognized as a writer of ability in both prose and verse. His poetic contributions began to find their way into the press when he was but seventeen years of age. These were soon followed by stories. At twenty he accepted an invitation to become assistant editor of the "Eastern State," a literary and news weekly published at Dexter, Me. From here he entered an institution to prepare for authorship and journalism. But before long felt called to the ministry, and for several years thereafter was engaged in preparation for his life work.

Although engaged earnestly in the pastorate Mr. Pierce's pen has not been editorially connected with one of the church organs, and for some time, with the assistance of his gifted wife, edited the "Senior Quarterly" of the denominations series of Sunday School helps. In 1909 he gathered the poetical waifs of twenty years into a tasty cloth-bound volume which was scattered extensively throughout the country. While in the West a few years ago he served for a year as religious editor on the staff of the "Daily Province," Vancouver, B. C., the most important Canadian newspaper west of the Rockies.

Being a loyal and appreciative New Englander, Mr. Pierce expresses pleasure in finding himself once more among the scenes and people made dear by birth and association.

Making Goodness Attractive.
It is not always the best people who are the most popular; and though popularity is no safe standard it counts for much in a person's scope of usefulness. If we have good things to offer let us offer them so attractively that others will be glad to accept; not so clumsily that what we offer will be rejected with scorn. If we can make goodness beautiful we make it beloved.—Exchange.

Everything is in readiness for the big welcome home tomorrow in honor of the several hundred Peabody war veterans who helped Uncle Sam and the Allies crush the merciless Hun into submission. Nothing has been left undone to make this day positively the biggest celebration Peabody will ever have witnessed and the men who gave up school, positions, business and even families to shoulder arms for the government will long have reason to remember how handsomely Peabody honored them for their part in the world's war.

The city is in gala dress for the occasion with the decorators still dressing up the stores and buildings by which the short parade will pass.

NINE HONOR GRADUATES

The nine honor students of the Peabody High School who will be presented with the George Peabody medal is announced. The students are Bernice L. Hayward, Louise F. Doyle, Agnes M. Jordan, Theodore R. Jeffers, Isabel Mackinnon, Helen C. Johnson, Mabel W. Ballentine, Stanley A. Morrell and Helen G. Russell.

Stanley Morrell enjoys the distinction of being the only member of the class of 1919 who has not been absent or tardy during his whole school career.

Mayor Donnell will present the medals and diplomas at the graduation exercises to be held in City Hall Monday evening, June 20. Hon. Payson Smith of the State Board of Education will give the principal address, being introduced by Theodore R. Jeffers, President of the class. Rev. Dr. Francis L. Beal will deliver the invocation. Music will be furnished by the high school orchestra.

CORRECTION

Through an error the names of Helen Russell of Prospect St., and Agnes H. Glencross of Tucker's Ct. were omitted from the official list of graduates, class of 1919, Peabody High School, as published in last week's issue of the Enterprise. Miss Russell has completed the Latin-Scientific course, and Miss Glencross the Commercial course. Both are held in high esteem by their classmates.

John J. Bellew, Jr., will also be among the graduates.

MANNING FOR G. O. P. DELEGATE

G. O. P. leaders are picking Attorney Daniel C. Manning, now assistant district attorney of Essex County and Clerk of Courts Archie A. Frost as delegates to the next National Republican convention. Their selection from the 7th Congressional district is said to have already met the approval of the big chiefs.

COUNCIL VOTES HEARING ON SEXTON CHARGE

Granting of four pony express licenses with a fee of $8 a month, appointment of Frank Emerson as City Engineer, voting to have the cost of street oiling taken from the tax levy and voting to hold a public hearing next Thursday night when reserve officer Charles H. Burns will present charges against Supt. Thomas Sexton of the Municipal Garage, featured the meeting of the Peabody Council last night. Much business was transacted and the meeting which consumed but an hour and a half was one of the snappiest recorded in some time.

Councillor John A. Jones, war veteran, who was elected to represent Ward 2 last Tuesday was sworn into office and his vote loosened the lid which has been on Peabody since May 1. He joined Messrs. Horrigan, Duggan, Hogan, Ryan and Sullivan in granting the pony express licenses. Councillor Brown, deputy sheriff is on duty at the Skeels murder trial in Lawrence and was necessarily absent. Messrs. Reed, Cotton, McKeen and Giles opposed the "ponies."

The request for a hearing at which time Reserve Officer Burns will present charges against Supt. Sexton of

JOHN A. JONES,
New Councillor.

BONFIRE STACK 100 FEET HIGH

Forty feet of the big bonfire stack that will be set off in the Eastend the night before the Fourth is now erected and at least 60 more feet will be added before the big stack is ready for the torch. Six tiers of solid boxes are now in place. It is estimated that nearly 1000 boxes will complete the stack. Councillor Hogan and his committee are working like trojans to complete the bonfire.

Peabody May Win Pennant

Peabody's claim to the championship of the North Shore League lives or dies by the game with Gloucester High here tomorrow as one of the features of the welcome home for the war veterans. If Peabody slips Lynn English is the winner of the pennant. A victory for the Tanners tomorrow sends them against Lynn English next week to the tie-off in the league for first place.

Peabody is determined to beat Gloucester and with its new pep and victory over Marblehead this week the local fans are touting Coach Gilmore's boys to win the pennant. It is possible that Capt. Moquin will pitch the game tomorrow to insure the championship game.

Council Will Probe Charge Against Sexton

the Municipal garage opened the way for spicing when Councilor Duggan, who amended the motion for the hearing, declared it looked as if the Mayor was passing the buck to the Council and that it was the duty of the Mayor first to prefer charges before the Council could act.

This opinion was not shared by the majority of the Council. Councilor McKeen, Hogan and Reed all expressed themselves as believing that it was anything behind the charges the Council was the place to hold the hearing. Duggan said it looked as if the Council was being made the goat. The nature of the charges were not included in the petition for hearing. Councilor Hogan said if there is any truth in the charges it is a matter even for the District Attorney's office to investigate.

Friends of Supt. Sexton say he will welcome the hearing.

The pony express licenses went to the General Transportation Co.; Munroe, Arnold and Merritt; Sheehy's Express; and the Helene Express Co. There were no other applicants.

Mayor Donnell sent in several communications among which was one transferring $330 from the Overlea water shed fund to that of the basin at Spring Pond with which to pay for land taken from Daniel A. Booker. This was passed as an emergency order. His Honor also submitted data to show that the city had lost no money on the $102,450 worth of Liberty Bonds that it acquired. Of the above amount, $16,000 was taken at par and $86,450 was converted into 4 1-4 per cent bonds and of this latter amount $85,000 is now security for a loan of $80,000 and the balance in a safe deposit.

Councilor McKeen fathered the motion that the cost of street oiling be taken from the tax levy and not assessed to the property owners abutting streets thus preserved by the coat of oil. The only dissenting voice was that of Councilor Duggan who thought the proposition "too big" to act hastily on and he gave notice that he would object.

Chairman Horrigan of the committee on claims reported no liability on the part of the city in the claim of T. Mahoney and heirs for land damage due to alleged improper drainage. He declared the only water he could find after a severe rainstorm May 18, on one land on Buxton St. was behind a barn owned by a neighbor.

A victualler's license was granted Alli Hassan at 158 Main St. after a debate in which an amendment, leave to withdraw, by Councilor Hogan, was lost 5 to 3.

Councilor Hogan got through a motion that the Chief of Police be requested to police the Eastend every night and to provide substitute police service when the regular patrolman is off duty. Councilor Cotton's motion granting the usual vacations with pay for the police was amended to include all city employees by Councilor Hogan and quickly passed.

Councilor Reed moved that the city make a taking of the land adjoining the Carroll school to permit of easy access to Gardner Park at that point and the City Solicitor was instructed to begin legal proceedings.

PETITIONS

There were several petitions laid before the august body including that of the police for $4.50 a day and an eight hour day. Councilor Reed presented one from residents of No. Central St. to have the street lights extended. Councilor Duggan had one from residents of Berry St. who want that street extended and the Sunday and Evening police officers asked that they be put on a working day of eight hours. Maurice J. Meaney, returned war veteran, asked for a license to conduct a lunch cart in Peabody Square near the monument. John J. Mannix of Haskell Pl. asked that the city do away with a drain nuisance near his land. The Russian Orthodox Church of Salem and Peabody requested the free use of the city hall on July 6. Daniel J. Lynch filed a claim for personal injuries alleged to have been sustained by falling into unlighted excavation on Aborn St. His claim was filed by his attorney Elmer J. Foley.

The Council after some debate last night established a precedent in refusing to grant an application for a garage at 65 Endicott St. Objection was made by John M. O'Connor a neighbor on the grounds that it would obscure a house he may build in the rear of his house.

2. PIN MARGIN WINS 10 STRINGS AT MANNING'S

Daniel J. Manning and Frank Warren are the newest bowling champions of Peabody. They won their honors last Monday night when they nosed out a 10-string contest with George (Pickey) Gill and "Wallie" Connors. The winning margin was a scant two pins, the scores being, Manning 986, Warren 841, total 1827; and Connors 927, Gill 898, total 1825. The match was for the dinners and a ball game in Boston. Gill holds the record single string total of 154 for the local alleys. According to Boniface Manning the contest was one in which age and science won over youth and hard luck.

Seeking Jobs For War Vets

All Peabody war veterans who are seeking employment are invited to attend meetings of the Soldiers' Employment Committee held in the office of Attorney Elmer J. Foley in the O'Shea building every Monday evening at 7 o'clock. Atty. Foley is secretary of this committee and is anxious to confer with any war veteran looking for a position. He may be seen at his office during the day.

Manufacturers who are anxious to provide employment to returned soldiers and sailors are urged to communicate with Atty. Foley who is making every effort to secure positions for all war veterans.

Charlie Chaplin Makes Bow Once More To Strand Patrons

As special attractions worthy of the celebration the Strand has secured for today and Saturday three all-star features, headed by the famous Charlie Chaplin in one of his revised successes, "The Bank." The second big feature is Shirley Mason in "The Final Close-Up." This is the story of a girl behind the counter in one of the big department stores, who wanted to live as they do in the movies. Then she goes on her vacation and things do happen as they often do on the screen. This bare outline does not detail the humorous and dramatic points that have a place in the picture. One must see it to appreciate it. Last but not least is Marie Walcamp in "The Red Glove." Patrons of the Strand will recall the awe-inspiring leap across a chasm made by Miss Walcamp at the close of last week's chapter and they can rest assured that the action in this episode continues at unabated speed. These three pictures combined make up a program that will surely please all.

Frank Keenan in "More Trouble" will head the bill for Sunday evening. This picture was the one selected to open the new million dollar Rivoli theatre in New York City and after praise from every photoplay critic in New York. Beatie Love in "The Great Adventure" will be the second feature for Sunday evening.

As a screen comedienne Dorothy Gish is in a class by herself. Her comical mannerisms always make the sourest faces turn to laughter. In her latest picture "I'll Get Him Yet," which will be presented Monday and Tuesday, she has succeeded in making a regular knockout. Richard Barthelmess, who has played opposite Miss Gish in all of her previous pictures, again gives a delightful performance as her leading man. Enid Bennett in "The Haunted Bedroom" is the second attraction for Monday and Tuesday. The mysterious atmosphere imparted by this picture fills the spectator with thrills and there isn't a dull moment throughout the action of the story.

Geraldine Farrar comes to the Strand next Wednesday and Thursday in "The Hell Cat." The international celebrity promises to acquit herself magnificently in this production, every scene of which was made in the heart of the Wyoming Rockies. The picture presents Miss Farrar as a Carmen of the Western plains, who is known to the men out there as the Hell Cat.

Next week Friday and Saturday Marguerite Clark in "Come Out of the Kitchen" will be shown. D. W. Griffith's, "True Heart Susie," Dorothy Dalton in "Other Men's Wives," and Vivian Martin in "An Innocent Adventure" will all be presented at an early date.

PEABODY'S $2000 CITY CLOCK HAS MESSAGE TO CITIZENS

View of Peabody Square Taken From South Church Clock by Curtis D'Eon, Expressly for the Enterprise.

As they say in the opening chapter of the popular novel: "It was a calm still night. The pale rays of the silvery moon filtered through the ether and lent a ghostly tinge to the city skyline. The hour was late and the stillness of the night was broken only now and then by the soft footfall of some belated citizen when a plaintive voice was heard, apparently coming from somewhere high above Peabody Square. There was no answering voice and the monologue ran something like this:

"I am the old South Church clock.
Many, many years have I been here and many, many things have I seen and heard in my day. Nobody speaks a kind word to me, and oh, the unkind things they have said about me.
Sometimes it has almost brought a blush to my several faces and I have even tried to cover them with my hands. Every night at midnight and again at noon, so that all may see, I hold my hands as high as I can raise them in protest, but to no avail.

Tales I Could Tell.

"I could get back at them if I chose to tell all that I have observed in my day; and in my countless nights if I revealed all that I have seen. Oh Boy, what ructions I could raise. But I am not spiteful, and even now that they have placed bright lights all about me so that all may try to gather my secrets by reading my faces, I shall still refrain from personalities.

"I have seen little children pass, watched them grow and become prosperous and some of them, I am sorry to say, I have seen turned from affluence to poverty. I have seen them grow old and finally have watched their funeral corteges as they were escorted to their last resting places.

"Daily I see the rushing, hustling groups that board the trains in the station across the way on their various missions in pursuit of wealth or pleasure and my heart yearns for the day when we may see a decent station there. All around within my range of vision have I seen the new buildings that have come with the march of progress, but that dirty, unkempt, smoke-blackened blot on the escutcheon of Peabody still remains. Do you wonder at times I have refused to move my hands?

"I have seen the gallant youth of Peabody go forth in defence of their country and have glowed with pride at the generosity of those who stayed at home as they cheerfully contributed to all the calls made upon their purses by the nation in wartime. I have seen these boys come drifting home, some bearing the honorable scars of battle, and some I hear will never return.

"I have seen strangers from many countries come here to gain a livelihood and some of the things I have seen them do makes me wish some of them had never come.

"I have heard the politicians spill their verbal camouflage and seen the smiles of derision on the faces of the unbelievers. I have seen the town become a city and the town fathers and city fathers come and go. I see them in their prime and in the heyday of their glory and I see them pass on,
for I am but a servant of old Father
Time, who gets them all in the end.

"I have noted the changing times and the coming of the motor cars.
Yes, and I have seen the joy-riders in the wee, small hours of the morning as they pass by from Lynnfield and Middleton and more recently from Danvers. Modesty forbids details on this subject.

Those Clubs, Oh Boy!

"What I have seen in some of the clubs within range of my vision would make spicy reading, but I'm no village gossip, so I will refrain from unpleasant revelations. Men are funny creatures and I've often wondered why they spend long hours of the night passing funny little picture cards to each other when it makes them so thirsty.

"And so I could go on and on telling you the things I see as I look out over the city year in and year out, but out of consideration for the good chaps who cause me to be wound up when I am affected with that "all run down feeling" and who wash my face once in a while, I will refrain for the present.

"Then again, the people may not believe me, for I stand before you a self-confessed prevaricator. In extenuation I want to say that it is not from choice, but by governmental order. When I tell you it is 12 o'clock, you have that faith in me that you believe me, but in truth it is only 11.
Thank heaven I'm a liar only part of the year, so perhaps when late October comes around and I am permitted to tell the truth again, I may let you in on a few things I observe in the meantime. I guess that's about all for now."

CALF LEATHER SOARS TO $1.25 SQUARE FOOT BUT DEALERS CHIEF WORRY GETTING SKINS

(By Energy)

Calf leather at $1.25 a square foot. more such concerns Peabody can man-
When everybody was sober before the war such leather brought 35 cents a foot. Some day we will be sober again in full force with no chance for an argument. But as prohibition does not enter into this column, I must dwell on leather even at these high prices. Four feet of leather for a pair of shoes equalling $5.00. Then how about the lining, the soles, the eyelets, the thread, the heels, not to mention labor which has soared to double normal times, not to mention some labor which has trebled.

The public may not worry, but I am sure the manufacturer is worrying for he can see the handwriting on the wall, a big loss some day. But place yourself in his position, and figure what you would do. He is in business, has customers who are actually crying for leather, and the only way out is to retire with his profits, or continue.
Fine for a man whose years tempt him to retire but the man of middle age, full of pep does not want to retire, so he buys skins and tempts

Leather For Golf.

The big golf tournament at Braeburn this week is no relation to leather you say, but if all the golf clubs were collected there and elsewhere, it would represent leather galore.
Every handle on a golf club is wound with leather and mostly calf leather.
Golf bugs demand the best, and a handle on a golf club must be smooth or the hands get sore. Strips of calf leather a yard long, two to three inches wide are wound on these grips and one can realize it takes leather and leather. One of our local concerns has made a specialty of this work, and their efforts have produced a volume of business. The golfer may kick at the high price of clubs, but a written list of what it costs to make clubs today will send him to the woods.

I note that Ernest A. Woelfel has associated himself with Louis Verza and others to manufacture leather.
Mr. Woelfel was the pioneer of embossing in this section. Time was when manufacturers did not bother themselves to emboss leather but if they had any to be embossed, it was done by specialists. The business netted good profits. Today, all large concerns do their own embossing.
Presses cost several thousand dollars each. They must be heavy for the leather that is embossed receives several hundred tons pressure in the process of giving such leather the impression wanted. What has increased the work has been the process of smooth plating, which is identical with giving the leather a figure, only that a smooth effect is wanted. Leather smooth plated is the last word in finish. Silk and satin has a competitor. The Verza Company has made a specialty of refinishing skins. This means to the uninitiated, that some fellow has a lot of leather on his hands which are poorly finished. This company takes those skins and refinishes them to a salable condition. It looks to me as though the combination of Woelfel and Verza would be a strong one. The

WELCOME HOME CELEBRATION

Peabody's welcome home celebration in honor of its soldiers is going to be an affair in keeping with the spirit shown by its citizens of all classes and all ages, and it is the duty of everybody to aid in every way in making it an event long to be remembered. Between 800 and 900 Peabody young men saw service of some kind in the various branches of the military and naval establishment of the country and they did what they were called upon to do in a manner reflecting credit not only upon themselves, but upon the city from which they enlisted, were commissioned, or were drawn in the draft. One striking feature of the program arranged will be the presentation of a suitable medal to each man, no matter to what branch of service he was assigned or elected to serve. Tonight the soldiers will be entertained by a carnival of boxing, one of the favorite sports of the army. Saturday comes the big parade and field day and presentation of medals, to be followed Monday by a great dancing party. Every attention will be paid the soldiers and the event will without doubt be one of the greatest in the history of the city.

HELP THE BOY SCOUTS

The movement to broaden the scope of the Boy Scout organization by the enrollment of associate members, the drive for which is now under way and which ends tomorrow night, should meet with the hearty co-operation of all citizens, and if Peabody maintains its proud record established on all the various war drives, the number desired will not only be secured, but exceeded. The Boy Scout organization, in which Peabody has been ably represented by several groups, has performed valiant service incidental to the war work here at home, and unqualifiedly deserves the support it is now asking for. Associate membership costs but one dollar a year, and everyone who joins may rest assured that it is money well invested.

"DRY" LAW INJUSTICE

Now that the country is going to become "dry" on July 1, barring presidential interference, why not make it dry all around? A great deal of stress has been laid, and reasonably so, upon the fact that anyone who has the price can lay in a supply of intoxicating beverages sufficient to last them until they have passed away from alcoholism or die of old age, while their less fortunate fellow beings are forced to pass their declining years with parched throats and envious longings. Prohibition may be a good thing. A lot of people believe it is. But if so, it is good for all, and not especially for those who happen to be poor or in moderate circumstances. Conscription took rich and poor alike for military and naval service. Why raise an army of dusty throats and confine it to the man without means?

GLARING HEADLIGHTS

"More power to them" was the favorite expression which greeted the announcement that 49 owners of motor cars had been summoned into court in Salem this week for violating the law regarding the operation of lights on their cars. Agents of the Highway Commission are responsible for the action thus taken, and we venture to state that the majority of Peabody citizens would extend a cordial invitation to these officials to visit this city and do a little similar missionary work. The operation of motor cars with glaring headlights that not only dazzle the eyes of pedestrians, but blind the drivers of approaching cars and thus frequently cause serious accidents, is a dangerous practice that should be stopped and the best way to stop it is by the wholesale imposition of fines upon the offenders. The law prescribes restrictions that safeguard the interests of operators of cars and the public generally and no sympathy should be wasted upon the offenders who violate the law and are forced to pay a penalty in the police court.

Peabody is to have a strictly local tag day on June 21 that should meet with the approval and support of every man, woman and child within its limits. The purpose of this particular quest for money is the raising of a sum sufficient for the purchase of an automobile for the use of the local visiting nurse—not an expensive car, but a moderate-priced machine that may be depended upon and one that will be a credit to the person operating it and the association that stands behind it.

In connection with this commendable effort, it may be well to look back a bit. It was not so many months ago that Peabody, in common with the rest of the country, was engaged in desperately fighting the disastrous epidemic of influenza which claimed so many victims. While the toll of life taken was regrettably large it would have been immeasurably larger but for the heroic work of a great number of public-spirited men and women who gave freely of their services and even risked their lives in aiding in the relief of the suffering. One of the outstanding figures throughout the run of the epidemic, and one who did heroic work day and night was the visiting nurse, Miss Catherine Noonan, who for the past couple of years has faithfully performed the duties of the position. At that time, although making a record of as high as 60 calls in a day, her only regret was that she could not have made more. That she could reach this number was made possible in part through the use of privately-tendered automobiles, and now the effort is about to be made to provide her with such a conveyance.

At that time, The Enterprise broached the idea of securing a car for the use of the visiting nurse, and it takes pleasure in again urging the public to do its utmost to aid this worthy object.

Isn't it about time some Good Samaritan rose up and suggested a tag day for the jobless bartenders around July 1st?

To those who shivered the first of the week—Cheer up! There was a frost on June 21 last year.

Now then, everybody, let the soldiers know you're glad they're back.

The best way to become a philanthropist—Build some tenement houses in Peabody.

ROUND ABOUT

A Central st. woman thinks of the Victory Liberty Loan every time she sees the new motor sweeper guide its path over the concrete paving in front of her home. It seems that the new motor sweeper made its appearance a day or so before the war tank was scheduled to arrive here, and Driver Hammond, himself a war veteran, now written on the sweeper a Victory Loan slogan. The woman saw the sweeper coming and yelled to one of her neighbors that here was the tank.

Nathan H. Poor, head of the N. H. Poor Leather Co., is Peabody's oldest manufacturer still giving much of his time to the business. Back from a winter in Florida he appears to have lost none of his old time vigor. He passed his 77th milestone on April 14.

I have heard many compliments for Richard B. Draper, the coal dealer, in his gifts of wall match-safes for the house holders. The safety-holder is large enough to enclose the box or matches. The gift is bound to be much appreciated.

Among the attractive window displays arranged especially in honor of the Welcome Home Day is that at the Peabody Electrical Shop where Albert MacNeil, war veteran of the navy with gold stripes, has many of his war relics on exhibition. A gas mask which he took from the body of a dead German found in a shell hole near Rheims has five bullet holes through it.

The inauguration of the Saturday band concerts appears to have made a distinct hit with the local public, and well it might. Primarily the object is to induce Peabody people to do more of their trading at home, but incidentally the concerts are bound to provide a great deal of pleasure to both young and old. Furthermore, they serve to bring more frequently before the public a distinctly local musical organization—the Peabody City Band—which, under the leadership of Edward E. Spence, gives promise of being a most excellent combination of musical talent.

Attorney Elmer F. Foley, one of Peabody's youngest lawyers, is receiving the congratulations of his friends on the recent transfer of the Thomas H. O'Shea model factory on Main st., the papers being passed through his office. It is not often that a lawyer of his age has the opportunity of figuring in such a big real estate deal. I shall not be surprised to see Atty. Foley being chosen to represent Peabody on Beacon Hill when he essays to win the suffrage at some future date. He is a war veteran, having given up his law office to enlist.

A Peabody girl has been recognized in the appointment of Miss Helen McMath as secretary to the principal of the Salem Normal School. She is the daughter of Mrs. Grace McMath of Clement ave. and has just completed her course of study at the Salem college.

Elmer E. Durkee, frequently acting Mayor of West Peabody, tells me that he saw a quail one day last week on his extensive farm, the first bird of this species he has seen in several seasons. The quail ran true to form also by his cries of "more wet" for the rain followed in a couple of days. It is reported that the State Fish and Game Commission have recently liberated a number of quail in this district.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Woelfel have been in New York this week attending the graduation of their son Ernest at the New York Military Academy for Boys at Cornwall-on-the-Hudson. Young Woelfel hopes to enter West Point in the fall.

During the naturalization of a number of Peabody men at the Salem court this week one Peabody man was asked "Who is the highest officer in Peabody?" He promptly answered, "Chief Grady." When the questioner asked "but who is over Chief Grady?" the would-be citizen quickly answered Howard Donnell.

Eben King, son of Mr. and Mrs. Warren D. King, has been elected captain of the Worcester Academy baseball team for 1920. He has played on the team all this season and was a big factor in the success of the nine. He is an outfielder.

County Commissioner "Gene" Grosvenor of Swampscott, whose three year term expires this year and who will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for re-election, already has one opponent. Frank H. Forsyth of Salem, shop officer at Salem jail, has shied his hat into the ring and announces that he is going to give the Swampscott man a run for the nomination.

The patrons will be Mr. and Mrs. Robinson Mr. and Mrs. Woodman Mr. and Mrs. Barnes of the School Committee. Reception tickets are becoming scarce already.

Leonard Kiley, S. H. S. '19, was a visitor at the school, Wednesday. He was a former Peabody boy.

The graduation tickets will be distributed to the Seniors next Monday evening at 7 p. m. at the City Hall. The tickets are all exchanged and will be drawn by lot.

The prospects of the class of '19 having a banquet are good. A committee has been appointed to make full arrangements, if money enough is left.

CITY HALL GOSSIP

A Ford runabout which could be used as a truck also would be a good investment for the Mayor to recommend for the school department. With schools in West and South Peabody, the Felton school at the Danvers and Peabody line and two growing schools in the Eastend there is license for the auto to be used by both the Superintendent and a Truant officer. The city of Beverly has a Ford touring car for use by its school department and the only thing Beverly has worth bragging about is the United Shoe Co. plant. The school superintendent's time at his salary is worth something to the city as compared to that of double crossers who now have city motor vehicles largely for their own use. The school committee should interest itself in this thing.

Contrary to the practise in some other cities, notably Salem, the Peabody school committee believes it is justified in giving positions to Peabody graduates or Normal schools who have completed their course of study in preparation for a teacher's position. Salem school heads like to get Salem teachers only after they have had some practical training in other towns and cities. In fact this is a set rule, it is said, that the Salem superintendent or schools follows. The best of feeling does not exist between the Peabody school committee and the similar civic board in Salem and largely, it is said, because contrary to the ethics of the profession Salem school authorities solicit Peabody teachers without the formality of conferring with the Peabody school heads. A Peabody school nurse and recently Principal Murray of the Peabody faculty were offered positions in Salem without any intimation being given the Peabody school committee. The result is likely to find that Peabody will trown on employing Salem girls as teachers in the Peabody schools.

If the welcome home celebration by Peabody to its war veterans is not a success it won't be the fault of Mayor Donnell. In this as in everything else he has undertaken to direct he has done the major portion of the work. The executive committee of the program has rendered a valued service and some of the lesser committees such as ball, carnival and boxing bouts have given much of their time to the reception plans.

If fire alarm boxes have been changed some kind of official notice should have been forthcoming before this. The confusion last week when box 23 rang in spelled volumes for the efficiency of the fire alarm system. It is not enough to notify firemen. The property owners have some right to be considered.

It was to be expected that Supt. Fred Wyman of the street department would be excused from serving on the jury with all of the demands now made on his office and they do say that anyway Mayor Donnell is getting tired of being an inspector for about everything that has to do with city business and progress.

City Solicitor Horace P. Farnham was given a pleasing reception on his initial visit to Peabody Square last Saturday. It was the first time he had been in the Square since last November. He is gaining slowly but surely and his legion of friends will rejoice at seeing him again assume duties of his office.

City Hall attaches are sorry to know that Miss Mildred Fader clerk in the water department is to sever her duties on June 28, but rejoice with her in the reason. Miss Fader is to become the bride of Edmund LaLime, a war veteran. She has endeared herself to all of the attaches at City Hall and has proved a most capable clerk in her position. The vacancy caused by her retirement will be filled by Miss Eva Griffin who is now in the city auditor's office but who secured her first training in City Hall as acting clerk in the city engineer's office.

A tax rate of $18 at the outside and with every indication that it will be at least $17 appears to be the inside dope at City Hall. The official announcement is set for next week as soon as the Mayor's supplementary budget figure is known.

The street list of polls have been distributed this week by the assessors. The book shows a healthy increase in the number of male residents above the age of 20 in Peabody and the city treasury is bound to receive a much larger amount in two dollar taxes which are due August 15. The date of payment has been advanced two months this year.

The salary of the Beverly Mayor has been increased from $1500 to $2000 equalling that of the chief executive of Peabody.

It has been suggested that the city build a private garage to house the city electrician's new truck which would help to keep it off of Washington St. where it often acts as a traffic post at "deadman's curve."

Work of relaying curbs and widening Aborn St. from Washington St. has been completed this week. It is up to the Electric Light Dept. to install a light at the junction of Aborn and Washington Sts. This is one of the heaviest traveled corners in the city.

LEG SAVED BY "Y" MAN

Captain in 26th Div. wounded at Chateau Thierry, tells of service rendered by "Y"

Boston, Mass.—That his leg was saved at Chateau Thierry by the prompt and fearless action of a Y. M. C. A. secretary, is the statement of Capt. Walter W. Austin, 47 School st., Brookline, Mass., who has just received his discharge from the 3rd Bat., 104th Inf., 26th Division. The "Y" man is T. B. Lathrop, pastor of the 1st Congregational church in Branford, Conn., a church which is soon to celebrate its 275th anniversary. Mr. Lathrop returned in January after nearly a year of service with the Yankee Division in the front lines, and marched with his men in the parade, April 25th. For his conspicuous valor at the field dressing station on the outskirts of Tourcy Mr. Lathrop has been recommended for the Distinguished Service Cross by Major James H. McDade, also of the 3rd Battalion, who will return next week to his former position in the advertising department of the Boston Transcript.

"The 3rd Battalion, 104th Infantry went forward on July 18, 1918, at two o'clock in the morning. The towns of Tourcy and Glevy were taken from the Germans in our advance that day. I was wounded at about five o'clock in the morning by a high explosive shell, a fragment of which passed through both thighs, tearing the left leg badly. I was taken from the field by the stretcher bearers to a dressing station in charge of Capt. Kirkpatrick, M. C. of Lynn. He had raised the flag of the army Red Cross over a stone culvert under the road. The Boche observers had spotted the flag and the place was under a terrific and constant shell fire day and night. Fortunately there were no direct hits during the time Capt. Kirkpatrick was stationed in the culvert, nearly 48 hours.

"When I was brought in there were 16 other cases lying on the earth under a stone arch where the doctor was working by candle light. If it had not been dry weather for several days before we would surely have been out of luck. A little rain fell that morning but not enough to get in under the shelter.

"The Captain finally came to me and attended to my wounds. The left leg he could not do much for and he said that if I were not rushed to a hospital I would certainly lose the leg. It was quite a problem to move me from that protected place to a hospital where I could get surgical attention. The motor ambulances could not back up to the culvert. The shells were falling as thickly as rain on every side of us. Before I was wounded I never felt fear of being under fire but believe me with both legs smashed I was scared cold to go out where the shells were breaking.

"Mr. Lathrop, the 'Y' secretary with our battalion, was assisting Capt. Kirkpatrick in his care of the wounded. He was at work every minute of those 48 hours of the advance in that place. The moment the doctor ordered me to a hospital, without an instant's hesitation, Mr. Lathrop picked me up in his arms, walked out of that culvert, and barely escaping death a dozen times, placed me in a motor ambulance that was about to leave for the rear.

"If as I understand, Major McDade has recommended Mr. Lathrop for the Cross, I for one am here, on any place, to back up that recommendation."

ADOPT "Y" HUT SYSTEM

Service to A. E. F. inspires Chinese.

Paris (By Mail)—Sixty-nine Chinese Y. M. C. A. secretaries have been so impressed with the work of the Association among the armies of the Allies that at a conference recently held at Versailles, they decided that similar methods should be adopted in China. The use of huts like those used so effectively in the Army camps will bring the work of the "Y" in China directly to all the people, whereas now it reaches chiefly the higher classes.

Chinese coolies by the hundreds of thousands were used in the labor units in France, and these men for the first time came into contact with the work of the Association. Native secretaries were provided as far as possible.

Some of these, it was decided at the conference, will remain in France and some will go to Great Britain to study in schools of practical arts.

There were thirteen students, as many preachers, half a dozen teachers, a cowster and a boy scout secretary among the professions represented at the conference. The men came from widely separated parts of the republic, Manchuria, Shanling, Toukien, Szechuan, Chi-Li, Tukien, Chekiang, Kavalang, Kiangson, Shansi, Auhnier and Hupeh.

To the Honorable the Justices of the Superior Court within and for the County of Essex:

RESPECTFULLY libels and represents George F. Hicks, of Peabody, in said county, that he was lawfully married to Grace E. Hicks, now of parts unknown, at Lawrence, Massachusetts, on the eighteenth day of May A. D., 1895, and thereafterwards your libellant and the said Grace E. Hicks lived together as husband and wife in this commonwealth, to wit, at Lawrence, Stoneham and Peabody; that your libellant has always been faithful to his marriage vows and obligations, but the said Grace E. Hicks being wholly regardless of the same, at Lawrence at divers times during the year 1914 committed the crime of adultery. And that said libellee on divers days and times during the years 1915, 1916 and 1917 committed the crime of adultery at Bridgeport, Connecticut and at Hoboken, New Jersey with one Norman Torrey. And that said libellee in 1914 did, without right desert your libellant at said Peabody, which desertion has continued up to the present time, being more than three consecutive years in duration.

Wherefore your libellant prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony may be decreed between your libellant and the said Grace E. Hicks. Dated this eighteenth day of February A. D., 1919.

GEORGE F. HICKS.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts

Hicks, libellee, by causing an attested copy of his said libel, and of this order thereon, to be published in the Peabody Enterprise, a newspaper printed in Peabody, in the County of Essex, once a week, for three weeks successively, the last publication to be fourteen days at least before the return day of this Court, at Salem, within the county of Essex, on the first Monday of July next, and by mailing, forthwith, by registered letter to the libellee at her last known place of residence an attested copy of said libel and of this order thereon: that she may appear at said Salem within six months from said first Monday of July, and show cause, if any she has, why the prayer of said libel should not be granted.

And it is further ordered that the said libellant give notice to said Norman Torrey co-respondent, by causing an attested copy of said libel, and of this order thereon, to be sent, by registered letter, to his last known residence, or, if such residence is unknown, to the place where the adulterous act is alleged to have been committed, fourteen days at least before said return day.

Raising Foxes on Ranches.
Raising ranch-bred foxes is an industry that is being carried on extensively in all the Canadian provinces, in at least a dozen of the northern-most states of the United States, and beginning in Japan and Norway, all lying in much the same climate belt, adapted to domesticating the black fox, under the most favorable conditions.

A Windfall.
The origin of "windfall," in the sense of "good luck," dates from the time of William the Conqueror. It was then a criminal offense to cut timber in the forests. Only such could be gathered as the wind had blown down; hence, a heavy windstorm was hailed by the peasants as so much good luck, and from this comes the modern application of the expression.

Dance Hall For Rockdale Park Slated

Edward C. Cann, the Lynn amusement manager who has staged several successful entertainments for the Peabody Moose believes that there is a big future for Rockdale Park, South Peabody and that it is bound to become a county wide attraction as a recreation center.

He has recently taken a 10 year lease of the property owned by the Gentlemen's Driving Club and is at work on plans for improving the Park. He plans the erection of a dance hall in the not far distant future. He hopes to make Rockdale Park a mecca for picnics and field day events which combined by horse racing should go a long ways toward booming the project.

Manager Cann has acquired a reputation for putting things across when he gets behind the project and his friends are as confident that he is the man to develop Rockdale Park into a worth while amusement center.

As a result of his initiative it is entirely possible that fares on the Bay State may be changed to permit of a single fare from both Lynn and Salem to the Park. Officials of the Bay State are said to be much impressed with his proposition and the chances are very good for the reduction in zone fares between Salem and Lynn by way of Rockdale Park.

South Peabody residents are to be benefited if this zone fare is changed for they are now obliged to pay two zone fares from both Salem or Lynn to Rockdale Park.

Manager Cann announces a special bill for Bunker Hill day next Tuesday when some of the best horse racing will be seen. He hopes to book running races with some of the best known horses to the line.

tomorrow afternoon. City Hall is resplendent in national colors and the stage is set for the big boxing bouts tonight which are staged for the veterans.

Col. William Armstrong received his final orders as chief marshal last night and his aides will do their part to see that the line of procession is made to rival a grand military review before General "Jack" Pershing.

The wounded Peabody boys will have the right of the line of the war veterans riding in an auto. Major Ernest Redmond of the Yankee Division, 101st F. A. is to be in command of the veterans.

Aides on the staff of the chief marshal are Angus McDonald, Leonard Conway, Louis Verza, Roger H. Smith, Josiah Gifford and Harry Harwood, the latter two men of Salem.

The parade will form at City Hall, Chestnut st. and march up Main to the Soldiers' manument, counter marching to Peabody Square, thence up Central to Wilson Sq. and counter-marching down Central to the Square, Lowell to Perkins and Emerson Park where the afternoon sports will be held.

Silver medals secured for the deceased Peabody veterans are being presented today to the parents of these brave boys who made the supreme sacrifice.

Chairman Joseph A. Ryan of the ball committee has arranged several pleasing features for the military ball, Monday night in City Hall. Ice cream and cake will be served free to all the guests.

Councillor Ryan has proved one of the most diligent members of the committee.

Not Helping Boy Scouts

Peabody citizens are allowing the Boy Scout campaign for associate members to lag and with only another day left in which to complete the canvass there is grave fear that for once Peabody will not go over the top in this latest nation-wide drive.

But 100 odd new members to the wonderful organization have been added so far in the week's campaign at a dollar each and Scout Master Lloyd G. Davies who is in charge of the drive makes an earnest appeal today through the Enterprise for another 100 members. Peabody was asked to secure at least 250 associate members.

Many of the Peabody organizations have been aided by the Boy Scout troops in this city and it is up to these organizations to get behind this campaign and help Peabody to make good.

Lyman P. Osborn, president of the Warren National Bank is treasurer of the local drive and will gladly receive contributions at the bank.

Tag Day June 21 To Buy Auto

In order to meet the demands made upon the Peabody Visiting Nurse, an automobile is a needed adjunct so that the nurse can respond to the many calls made upon her each day.

The officers of the Association have decided to hold a Tag Day on Saturday, June 21, for the purpose of raising the necessary funds to purchase the machine and meet the other expenses of the organization for the ensuing year. Mrs. Lucien G. Lewis will be in charge of the campaign.

Arrangements have been made with the various manufacturing plants to sell to their employees these tags at a sum not exceeding 25 cents each, and we believe that every employee of Peabody will be glad to contribute to this cause and help increase the good work done by the Visiting Nurse Association.

The wonderful work done by the Visiting Nurse Association, especially during the influenza epidemic, is such that it deserves the support of every citizen of Peabody and this is one way that we can show our appreciation to this organization for their untiring work during the past year.

During the year of 1917, the total number of visits made by the nurse was 1585, while during the past year, on account of the epidemic, the number of visits has reached a total of 2695, and new demands are being made daily upon the nurse.

The committee in charge of the Tag Day have made arrangements with the Peabody Chamber of Commerce to use their rooms on Lowell st. as headquarters for this drive.

GIRLS WIN HIGHEST HONORS AMONG CLASS '19 GRADUATES

BERNICE L. HAYWARD, Valedictorian.

MISS LOUISE DOYLE,
Salutatorian.

The two highest honor pupils of this year's graduating class were named Monday of this week. Miss Bernice L. Hayward, classical course, is valedictorian, and Miss Louise Doyle, latin-scientific course, is salutatorian.

Miss Hayward is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hayward of West Peabody. She has been a faithful and persevering student during her whole high school course. Graduating from the West school, she entered the ninth grade with a perfect record in every study, and has kept up a splendid rank in her advance studies. Miss Hayward will enter Boston University, where she will study for the A. B. degree. She plans to teach latin after receiving her "sheepskin."

Miss Doyle is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Doyle of King st., and is vice-president of the class. She is easily one of the most popular girls in her class, and is known to the teachers as a fine and willing student. She excels in stenography, and plans to enter Salem Commercial school.

The other honor pupils have not yet been named, but it is expected that they will be announced next week.

Last year's plan of announcing the honors from the stage, did not appeal to either the pupils or the audience, and it is improbable that it will be done this year. Gold medals will be presented to all the honor pupils of whom there will probably be eight.

Theodore R. Jeffers, son of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Jeffers of Holden st. is president of the class. He is held in high respect by his schoolmates, teachers, and all others who know him. He has been for sometime assistant Scoutmaster of Troop Two of this city and is prominent in amateur dramatics. He has been the high school correspondent of the Enterprise the past two years. The other officers are: Louise Doyle, vice-president; Roger Doyle, treasurer; Alice Lynch, secretary; Ray Anglin, Isabel Mackinnon, William Coffey, executive committee.

Graduation will be held June 20 in the City Hall, and will follow the plan of last year's program. Payson Smith, Commissioner of Education for Massachusetts will speak, and Miss Hayward and Miss Doyle will give valedictory and salutatory addresses. Decorations for the graduation and the

POLICE WANT $4.50 AND EIGHT HOURS

Peabody policemen want their pay boosted to $4.50 a day and eight hours to constitute a day's work. A petition setting forth the above requests is being signed now and will be presented to the Mayor and City Council next Thursday night.

Policemen interviewed by the Enterprise declare that the cost of uniforms and the cost of living in general makes imperative a raise in pay for them and they believe that the city government will take some favorable action on their petition which will have the signature of every regular patrolman.

Trousers that used to be bought for $5 now cost $15 and the men declare they must make a neat appearance on their beats and are anxious to do so. They point to the fact that other cities are increasing the pay of the police in acknowledgement of the high cost of living and the needed boost in wages.

The petition asks for both the increase in pay which is now $3.75 a day, and the eight-hour day, although it is known that some of the officers are making the working day a secondary consideration in the petition for their betterment.

HINT SENSATIONAL CHARGES

A petition headed by reserve officer Charles Burns of the Peabody police force and holder of a jitney license between Peabody and Lynn, will go before the Mayor and City Council next Thursday night asking for a hearing when charges will be made against at least one Peabody city official. It is hinted that a Peabody lawyer will also be mentioned in the case.

The alleged charges are said to be sensational and will be of some interest to members of the City Council of Lynn, so it is said. They have to do with a dispute growing out of the issuing of licenses for certain jitney owners of this city.

It is understood that the petition to be presented the Council will ask for a speedy hearing and the Council is most likely to accede to the request and set a night when the charges may be heard.

Special officer John Keane is to be one of the witnesses for the complainants.

O'Shea Plant Monument To Craft Leader

THOMAS H. O'SHEA.

Papers transferring ownership of the Thomas H. O'Shea leather plant on Main Street to H. S. and M. W. Synder, leather merchants of Boston, were recorded at the Essex County registry of Deeds, Salem, today.

The O'Shea leather plant is admittedly the best equipped factory ever operated by an individual manufacturer in any leather community in this country. From cellar to drying loft it is the acme of perfection for the trade, made so by Mr. O'Shea by whose enterprise Peabody gained a leather plant that is an accepted last word in plant facilities for handling a big leather business.

From a decrepid shell of a one time leather shop, Mr. O'Shea took over the factory in 1916 following the fire which destroyed his Grove St. plant and within a few months had shaped up a factory that was both an ornament to the city and the trade. The recent addition of a beam house facing Caller Street to handle heavy leather added considerable floor space and the equipment that went to furnish the new addition was the best thing obtainable in plant facilities.

What Mr. O'Shea did for Peabody Square when he tore down ancient frame structures and erected two handsome office buildings that now bear his name found him repeating in his efforts to aid Peabody by blotting out a miserable eyesore factory shell and replacing it with a model leather plant in the heart of the city and on its principal thoroughfare.

Thomas H. O'Shea has long been a leading manufacturer of India goat and sheep and his blacks enjoyed the reputation of having no superior in the whole leather trade. He will continue in the leather business, plans for which he may soon announce.

Summer School To Help Aliens Grasp Citizenship

Non-English speaking people in Massachusetts are to have every facility for education that the state can give them. In an attempt to secure an adequate supply of teachers properly trained for this work the Department of University Extension of the State Board of Education is offering a summer course at Hyannis State Normal school in the methods of teaching immigrants.

At this attractive resort on the Cape under ideal summer surroundings there will be the advantages of ocean bathing, fishing and boating and even the possibility of engaging in light housekeeping in well equipped tent houses on the beach. Training will be given by the University Extension Agent of Immigrant Education, Charles F. Towne. Mr. Towne was at one time principal of the Pickering school in Salem. Tuition and textbooks are free and board for the entire session from July 8 to August 8 need not exceed $35.

The classes are open to superintendents of schools, supervisors, teachers and those planning to direct this work in clubs, chambers of commerce, factories and like organizations.

The Thomas H. O'Shea Leather Plant on Main Street which changed ownership today. It is admittedly the best equipped leather factory ever operated by an individual manufacturer and stands a monument to the enterprise of Peabody's well known citizen and benefactor.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE IS BOUND TO PROVE BIG HELP TO PEABODY

The 12th annual outing and dinner of the Essex County Associated Boards of Trade will be held at Ferncroft, Thursday, June 19. Thirty tickets have been allotted to the local Chamber of Commerce for this meeting and any member who desires to attend can secure ticket by sending check for $3.00 to Secretary Ralph E. Thomas. On account of the limited number of tickets the rule is, first come first served. Reservations close June 12.

Secretary of Labor, William B. Wilson, has accepted the invitation of the committee in charge of the arrangements for the annual outing of the Essex County Associated Boards of Trade.

Secretary Wilson in himself is sufficient attraction to insure a good attendance. Those who have heard him speak will all want to come, and those who have not heard him should come — unless they want to miss a treat. Secretary Wilson is a foreign-born citizen, having come to this country with his parents from Scotland when he was five years of age.

A humorist of wide reputation, entirely new to most of those who will attend the outing, has also been secured. Community singing, led by a top-notch man who can make a wooden Indian sing, and some novel stunts in chorus singing will add life to the dinner. Harry Mansfield, back from Broadway, is to spread himself on the lunch, and everybody knows what that means.

There will be a ball game between picked teams of Haverhill and Lawrence, beginning at 11 o'clock.

At a meeting of the executive committee the secretary was authorized to offer a prize of $5.00 for the best slogan for Peabody. This contest is open to all citizens of Peabody subject to the following rules:

1. All slogans must not contain over seven words, and must be descriptive of Peabody.

2. All slogans must be mailed to the Chamber of Commerce, Peabody, Mass.

3. All slogans must be signed with writers name and address.

Each slogan will be copied and given a number before submitting to committee, and committee will decide by number. In event of two or more persons submitting the winning slogan, prize will be divided.

Acting City Solicitor Judge William H. Fay, and Ralph E. Thomas are attending the street railway rate hearing in Boston today. Judge Fay is representing the city, and Mr. Thomas the Chamber of Commerce.

The Chamber of Commerce received a letter from a Committee of Officers to secure employment for the members upon discharge from service of the 148th Field Artillery, located at Hohr, Germany, that they expected to be mustered out of the service about July 1st. From the report that they sent to the local Chamber only one man from Peabody is connected with this organization, Maurice Donahue, a member of Battery E.

CITY HALL GOSSIP

Under the plea of the public health and safety of the citizens, Supt. of Streets Fred H. Wyman may be excused from jury duty. He was drawn this week. His being compelled to serve as a juror comes at a time when he is needed most in the work of the city with streets opened and summer work at its full speed. His name should not have been included on the jury list prepared by the Council.

"Little Nemo," formerly Chief Grady's flivver, has been deprived of all its one-time pomp by being converted into a runabout truck for sundry small errands in connection with service at the municipal garage.

Trustees of the Peabody Institute got a helping hand from the Mayor this year in the purchase of their coal supply. Last year they paid $10.50 a ton and this year by getting it from the city paid only $7.36. They use 100 tons during the winter. Some comment said to have come from a former trustee had to do with open cellar windows at the Institute last week.
The windows had been left open purposely by the janitor to permit of the coal gas escaping from the freshly filled bins. The delay of carpenters to deliver new screens is not the fault of the janitor who has the approval of the present trustees.

When the new court house opens for business, it is to be hoped that some way may be devised to avoid morning parades of the unfortunates booked for trial from the police station to the court house. Salem did that for years when it marched its prisoners from the old pen on Front st. around to the court room in the Flint block on Washington st., and the daily spectacle was anything but a pleasing one.

Some interesting reports from various committees in the Council are booked for next Thursday night. The claims committee has several measures ready for the Council and the committee on streets hopes to report something more definite on the proposed extension from Aborn st. to Main st.

Police vacations will not begin until after the Fourth of July. Whether this is due to anticipation of lively times around the city when the nation becomes a gigantic oasis or whether it is simply because he desires a full crew on deck on the Fourth, Chief Grady remarketh not.

While that kind of publicity is not the most desirable of the various types, Peabody has twice within a week figured in extradition cases and at least police circles in two places outside of Massachusetts had reason to look the city up and find out where it is located. In the first instance the local police sent an officer to Bridgeport to bring back Harry A. Robinson, wanted here for non-support. The second case was that of a Turk located in Racine, Wis., for larceny.
The man wanted by the Peabody police put up a fight against the extradition proceedings, but the one whose presence was desired in Racine went along without making any contest in this city at least.

For the fifth time the torchion rod of the new police patrol broke down this week.

Vacancies in the public schools will not be filled for the present owing it is said to the possible resignation of one or more teachers. There are three vacancies now and four Peabody girls graduate from the Salem Normal school this month and each is an applicant for the position as teacher.
Later it is believed all four Peabody girls can be given positions.

Architects will confer with the Peabody school committee next Monday and Wednesday evening when plans will be submitted for the proposed new junior high school to be erected near the present high school.

At a teachers' institute in an Eastern city a speaker said that, in his opinion, "the trouble with the public school system of today is, the teachers are afraid of the principals, the principals are afraid of the superintendent, he is afraid of the school committee, they are afraid of the parents, the parents are afraid of the children, and the children are afraid of nobody!"—Life.

Special Officer John O'Brien who is caretaker of Peabody Square and approaching streets has started something, they say, by getting a complaint against a Central st. Chinaman who persisted in sweeping paper from his store onto the new pavement. He was warned and failed to understand the warning. His case is to come up in court.

Chief Barrett of the fire department attended a meeting of the Fire Chiefs Club in Waltham Wednesday. City Engineer Emerson also attended the meeting and met City Manager Bingham who went to that city from the town of Norwood.

With all of the work now under construction in new streets and that proposed for the balance of the year there is plenty of work for the entire number of attaches of the city engineer's office. The return from overseas service by Roger McDonald, former assistant engineer will not likely take from the city payroll the present assistant engineer Norman V. Crane who is admittedly a capable man and earning his salary.

Supt. Thomas Gilroy of the city farm is freer from crows on his garden tracts than ever as a result of the riot gun shooting which his foreman indulged in some days ago. Two at one shot was the record. Whole rows of sprouting crops were destroyed by the birds.

Reserve officer John J. Jackman has been assigned to cover Lowell st. evenings in place of Officer William Barrett who has secured a leave of absence.

Driver George F. Morgan Rounds Out 35 Years As Permanent Fireman

George F. Morgan has just rounded out his 35th year as driver in the Peabody Fire Department having been regularly appointed on May 1, 1884.
He is the dean of the permanent drivers and the oldest regular man in the employ of the department. What's more he appears to be assured of numerous more years in active duty.

As a matter of history Morgan who has relinquished reins in favor of the motor wheel, first drove Peabody fire horses when he was under 15 years, for his first town job was that of a driver of a town team which had to pull into headquarters and make a quick hitch to the Gen. Sutton steamer whenever a fire alarm sounded. In 1878 his job called for a 10-hour day on street work plus the fire interruptions and then 14 hours on duty in the fire station, asleep of course but on call at the sound of the fire gong.

Chauffeur Morgan first saw the light of day in Pembroke, N. H. His handling of horses while still a youth so recommended him to a contractor of that town that he got a job that brought him to Peabody. It was his first trip from home and he liked Peabody so well that he got permission to stay here. He's been here ever since.

When he stepped into the fire department as a regular driver the fire engineers were Chief Dependence S.

SCHOOL "FOUR-MINUTE MEN"

When the Four-Minute Men were appointed by the United States Government to deliver speeches on subjects connected with the war, the boys of the High School of Commerce in Boston took up the idea and became four-minute men to their classmates.

Thrift proved a subject directly in line with the policies of the school, and did much to increase investment in War Savings Stamps. Some of the arguments presented by these future financiers are good for grown-ups too:

"Before the war Americans were wasters. They did not seem to know the value of a reserve fund.
Today the large majority of the people in this country are saving. But they do not save enough. There may be soon a reversal of the money situation of America. Where there is plenty now, there may be need, and Americans must store the wealth of their nation for the future. To invest it is better than to hoard it.

"War Savings Stamps have all the backing of the Government—all that guarantees the billions of dollars invested in Liberty Bonds, safety. The War Savings Stamps, costing less than four and a quarter dollars at the most, yield better than 4 per cent.
as the interest is compounded quarterly, and the principal is due in 1924.
Buy War Savings Stamps and help your government while you help yourself."

"Some girls have money to burn and are always looking for some one to strike a match." Instead of burning the money, why not buy War Savings stamps. There is an affinity between matches and thrift.

Sunny Sue says: War Savings Stamps are the best investment against a "rainy day."

Essex Club First To Get Roosevelt

Announcement is made by the Essex club, the county Republican organization in which Peabody has a large membership and of which several Peabodyites are officers, that it will be the first political organization in the state to have as its principal speaker
Col. Theodore Roosevelt, soldier son date has not yet been decided upon, being left open to suit the convenience of Col. Roosevelt, but it will doubtless be around the middle of the month.

the event.

INSURANCE RATES

With the prospect of practically complete motorization of the fire department in the near future, with the addition of a new pumping engine and an aerial truck, to which we understand the mayor and a sufficient number of members of the council are favorably inclined, now is an opportune time for steps to be taken with the object in view of securing lower fire insurance rates for Peabody. This is by no means an easy undertaking or one with positive assurances of success. "What goes up must come down again" is an old saying that applies to some things, but we are in the class with the far-famed people of Missouri in the application of the saying to insurance rates, and must be "shown." It is a well known fact that Peabody's fire losses, year in and year out, are much lower than those of many other municipalities which certainly do not pay a higher rate for insurance. When these new additions to the fire-fighting equipment are made, that important department will be all that the underwriters could reasonably ask for. Hence the suggestion of getting an early start on the matter of securing a revision of the rates downward. Without attempting to place too many burdens upon the shoulders of the new Chamber of Commerce, we entertain the idea that the consideration of this matter by a select committee would not do a bit of harm.

SIDEWALK GRASS PLOTS

Although not a legal obligation it should be the duty of every citizen in front of whose estate there is a chance for a grass plot between the curbing and the walk, to develop such a plot. If too shady to properly grow seed, the spaces are not too large to make the cost of sodding them prohibitive. Many of the experts advise the use of sod generally as making a much harder and evenly-grassed plot than by the use of seed. At all events, with the liberal construction of granolithic walks, the least the abutters can do is to develop these plots as their part in the civic betterment. A line of these grass plots not only adds greatly to the beauty of the street, but it is restful to the eye, helps the dust problem, and is one of the things that gives an impression of a well-kept city to the stranger within our gates.

THE TENEMENT PROBLEM

Peabody's tenement problem continues to loom large upon the municipal horizon and it is becoming more and more apparent to those interested in the future welfare of the city that some action must be taken. Peabody is a growing city, a manufacturing community that must have homes for its workers. Only a limited number of these people are so situated in life as to be able to build their own homes, and tenements must therefore be provided for them. At present there are practically no desirable tenements for rent and seekers for homes are obliged to take what they can find. Rather than do that, some of the newcomers are making their homes in Danvers and Salem, and recently several families who have been here a long time have secured homes in neighboring places and removed there, although the wage-earners are still employed in Peabody. This is a situation that not only does not speak well for the city, but is also a serious detriment to its growth and progress. Builders claim that with the present standard of rents, the high cost of building material and the prevailing rate of wages in various building trades, the construction of tenement houses is not a profitable undertaking, especially with the uncertainty as to whether these items of cost are going up or down in the near future. Opinion appears to be forming, however, that prices in the building trades are about to be stabilized around the present figures and with something definite to work upon, it is hoped that some start may be made towards relieving the tenement stringency before long. It is certainly an important matter and one which demands attention and action. If the Chamber of Commerce has not taken the subject under consideration the suggestion is offered that now is the opportune time.

TUESDAY'S ELECTION

Next Tuesday the citizens of Ward Two are called upon to elect a member of the municipal council to fill an existing vacancy. Without passing upon the merits of the two candidates who won the coveted places upon the ballot at the recent primary, we would urge upon every citizen of the ward the importance of making a selection at the polls. As at present constituted the council is said to stand evenly divided upon a number of important matters and the candidate elected next Tuesday will have the casting vote on these matters. Included in the measures are the police pensions, police eight-hour proposition, druggists' licenses and liquor express permits. All these are important measures that will ultimately be disposed of by the council, aside from the countless other matters that require the exercise of good judgment upon the part of a councillor. Hence the advisability of getting out a vote at least large enough to preclude a possible minority choice being made.

Just Interested.

One day Jane was looking at the death notices and when asked why she was reading them she replied: "I want to see if Uncle Bim is dead yet."

Tablet to Horace Greeley.

The Vermont Press association placed a memorial tablet on the old building at East Poulney where a ragged fourteen-year-old boy, in 1825, began a painful apprenticeship as a printer in which he obtained a working knowledge of the most dynamic of all arts. The ragged boy was Horace Greeley, and the building was the office of the Northern Spectator—a county newspaper.

ROUND ABOUT

Present indications point to a banner strawberry crop this year, and when it comes to raising strawberries there is no section of the county of Essex that can compare in quality with the luscious berries raised in West Peabody.

Cedar Grove Cemetery in South Peabody drew no end of favorable comment on Memorial Day by reason of the evidence of the excellent work of those to whose care its well-kept appearance is entrusted. The entrance driveway, with its well-kept grass plots and flower beds at the cemetery end, its cleanly-raked paths, its evenly-trimmed lots and its exceptionally beautiful soldiers' lot, all bore the marks of careful thought and plenty of work on the part of the men assigned to the task by Superintendent of Cemeteries David W. Coombs.

Some time in the near future it is probable that a chapel suitable for holding services for the dead will be constructed at Cedar Grove Cemetery, and it will be a welcome addition to this natural beauty spot so happily selected as a resting place for the dead.

The substitution of growing plants for bouquets of cut flowers was more noticeable this year than ever in the cemeteries on Memorial Day. They make as pretty a picture as floral adornment as do the cut flowers and last ever so much longer, some of the baskets retaining their freshness for weeks. A walk through the cemeteries a few days after Memorial Day will convince anyone of the wisdom of the change.

Donald S. Whidden, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry S. Whidden, is home from Mitchell Military Boys' School, Billerica, where he served as manager of the baseball team. The team was the most successful in the history of the school having won 14 out of 15 games staged this season. The Mitchell boys scored 118 runs to 63 for their opponents. Young Whidden was given much credit for the success of the ball team.

The Ward Two drinking fountain, at the junction of Washington and Foster streets, is still as dry as the country is slated to be after July 1, even if the inscription on it does read "1918." Some comment has been made because no provision has been made for a place at which dogs may drink, and it is suggested that in drinking places planned for other wards this matter be attended to when the fountains are ordered.

The Warren National Bank has a clever little window display that speaks volumes for its safe deposit vaults as an inexpensive means of protecting valuable papers. In a glass jar are the ashes of $2000 in government bonds which a western man tucked away in the stove for protection against thieves. He fooled the thieves all right, but Friend Wifey built a fire in the stove and "goodbye bonds." Alongside is a newspaper clipping showing how thieves in Peabody recently overlooked $10,000 in securities in looting a place. How these dangers may be avoided at a slight cost by the use of vault space at the bank is shown and then a photographic reproduction of the 10-ton manganese doors of the big vault clinches the argument for their security.

Judge Benjamin G. Hall of Peabody's district court is hailed as a benefactor among his Lowell st. neighbors who are rejoicing that he has re-installed the weather vane on his barn. The vane has performed useful service for years on the estate. It is the only weather indicator in the district and as such is smiled or frowned at by many people.

Another benefactor in the upper Lowell st. district is Warren D. King from whose land a pipe line carries spring water to the public drinking trough at the junction of Forest and Lowell sts.

I have heard much favorable comment on the shrubbery which is in bloom in front of the Richard Young Leather Co.'s plant on Union st. Manager Jesse Wholley has left no stone unturned to improve the surroundings of the big plant.

Bertram Gerry, veteran of the Argonne Forest, received his discharge this week from the army service. He has been an inmate of Parker Hill hospital for the last several weeks. He received bad shrapnel wounds when a big German shell exploded killing two of his comrades.

"Y" HUT UNDER SHELL FIRE

The closer the "Y" got to the front lines, the more temporary became the domestic atmosphere which was always present under the sign of the Red Triangle, but it was none the less real for all the danger. This picture was taken during a lull between the showers of steel raindrops.

Taboo.

When anything is forbidden, or its exclusion has been ordered, English-speaking people sometimes say it is "taboo." The word is derived from an institution once common throughout Polynesia and New Zealand. It signifies something set apart or prohibited, because of its being either sacred or accursed. This has given rise to the use and significance of the word in English.

reception will be green and gold, the class colors. The juniors are at present hard at work making large green wreaths, and gilt circles, which will be placed around the balcony of the hall, and which will form very appropriate decorations. The class motto, "Ambition is the Path to Success," will be hung above the stage.

Patriotism has been and still is a splendid characteristic of the class. Two of the former class presidents, Resolute Ingraham, and Joseph O'Connor, entered the war service during their sophomore and junior years respectively. Harold Putnam, Harrison Viles, Edward McGurn, Horace Southwick and Gilbert Clothey also have seen war service, Putnam, McGurn, and Southwick entering the navy, whereas Viles saw service in the Marines, and Clothey in the South.

A $50 Liberty Bond of the third issue was purchased during the junior year, and this patriotic investment would doubtless have been repeated had not schools been closed during the fourth and fifth loan drives. The bond will probably be given to the school to be used for some purpose. Red Cross and other war charity drives have found the members of the 1919 class willing subscribers.

Among the affairs held by the class are two annual and highly successful dances, a class pung ride during the freshman year, and a senior night at the Strand theatre, a short time ago. Through the efforts of members of the class the attendance of the Athletic Association of the school was augmented to an unprecedented degree.

array of voices, singing all the latest song hits. Miss Newhall as a Parisian lassie made a big hit with her "Come On Papa," as did Miss Childs who rendered "Laddy in Khaki" to the queen's taste. Mr. Keith sang "Rip Van Winkle Slept With One Eye Open," which was also well received. The gem of the evening was a duet "Beautiful Ohio" which was very beautifully sung by the Misses Mary Radcliff and Althea Wilson. Miss Radcliff was also pianist and deserves much credit for the smooth manner in which the show was presented.

Howard Tedford as interlocutor filled the bill, and the clever manner in which he and the end men cracked their jokes kept the audience in a roar of laughter. The end men consisting of Fred and Guy LeCain on the extreme ends, ably supported by their associate ends George LeCain and Roland Janvier rendered "My Barney Lies Over the Ocean" in clever style, and George LeCain "How Ya Gonna Keep 'Em Down on the Farm" was a decided hit. The audience kept Guy LeCain busy with his topical song as every verse was a knock for some South Peabodyite.

Bill Hart Coming To Strand In "Money Corral" Monday

Ethel Clayton, the beautiful Paramount star, will be presented at the Strand today and Saturday in "Vickey Van," an adaption of Carolyn Wells' novel of the same name. It is the strange story of a girl who married a man old enough to be her father before knowing the dictates of her own heart. She soon discovers that her marriage has been a great mistake and looks about for means of deriving what happiness she can from life. The scheme she hits upon is one of amazing ingenuity and though it leads to consequences of a most serious nature, everything is cleaned up before the final fade-out and Vickey finds happiness with the man she really loves.

"The Red Glove" is the second big attraction for today and in this episode Miss Walcamp performs several of the most hazardous stunts ever enacted before the camera. One of Mack Sennett's uproariously funny comedies, "The Little Widow" will also be shown to day rounding out an excellent show.

Good Sunday pictures are mighty hard to find but Manager Chet Bent has dug up a couple of fine ones for this week's Sunday evening concert. Baby Marie Osborne in "Milady O' the Beanstalk" and Gladys Hulette in "Annexing Bill" are the two referred to. Little Sambo, the diminutive colored lad, plays opposite Baby Marie in her starring vehicle and they sure are a funny pair.

When William S. Hart comes to the Strand on Monday and Tuesday in his latest picture "The Money Corral," his many admirers will see him in a new rôle, that of a cowpuncher who goes to Chicago to act as watchman for a railroad president. The story was written and directed by Big Bill himself and the result is declared to be one of the strongest and most appealing pictures in which this famous portrayer of Western types has ever starred.

In the picture Hart does some fancy shooting that will make the most expert marksman look on with envy, and Bill demonstrates that he can shoot the date out of a dime as easily as he can ride a broncho.

Charles Ray in "The Busher" will be presented Wednesday and Thursday. This is a great baseball picture, which all may see with delight and profit. Mr. Ray has the rôle of a bush league pitcher, whose adventures in love and on the diamond alternately amuse and thrill. Ruth Roland in "The Tiger's Trail" and the Pathe News will be the other attractions for the mid-week change.

ROAD BUILDING

ISSUE WEATHER FORECASTS

Aid for Automobile and Motortruck Traffic During Winter Over Lincoln Highway.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The weather bureau of the United States department of agriculture has arranged, in co-operation with the state highway commission of Pennsylvania, to aid the automobile and motortruck traffic during the winter over the Lincoln highway between Pittsburgh and Harrisburg by giving out daily information of the weather conditions prevailing over the route and issuing weather forecasts and warnings of heavy snows and cold waves for the region traversed. The plan is for the assistant superintendents of highways at points along the route to report to the weather bureau office at Pittsburgh at eight o'clock each morning by telephone or telegraph the depth of snow or ice on the highway, giving its general condition. These reports are published in the newspapers and furnished to the different automobile clubs, thus becoming available to automobile and motortruck drivers passing over the highway. The forecasts and warnings are given public distribution and telegraphed to the superintendent of highways at Harrisburg, who gives instructions to his forces along the highway to make provisions for the anticipated weather conditions. This service was in operation last winter and gave great satisfaction. The weather bureau is ready to give similar service to other traffic routes as may be desired.

DAGGING IS OF IMPORTANCE

Road Improvement May Well Be Considered Reconstruction Measure—Increases Farm Values.

Roads should not be neglected at this time in our endeavor to increase food production. Road improvement might well be deemed a reconstruction measure. In many communities they are much better than in others because the farmers are back of the good roads movement. They realize that a good road saves labor, time, horse flesh and automobile repairs and in addition increases the selling value of the farm. Every progressive farmer should have a road drag and not be afraid to use it. A well-dragged road is a well-crowned road, and a well-drained road. The dragging should follow each rain. If properly used it will bring a thin layer of earth toward the center of the road at each dragging. The travel will roll and solidify it between rains.

On roads where too much crown has been formed the angle of the drag can be reversed. A few draggings will reduce the high crown to a more level and much safer road for fast automobile traffic.

FOUNDATION OF FARM LIFE

Upon Good Roads Depends Marketing of Various Crops and Better Schooling of Children.

Good roads are the very foundation of country life. Upon them depends the marketing of what farmers grow, the pleasures of social life, and the better schooling of the children. If life is made better by good roads, surely they are worth paying for. There is nothing so much worth while as happiness. The interurban lines have increased it for a few; the auto has brought it to many more; and good roads everywhere would bless all.

Cause of Soft Shells.
Soft-shelled eggs are often caused by the fowls being confined, becoming overfat, and from lack of mineral matter.

Feed for Idle Horses.
Horses will do well, if not worked, on clover hay alone. Even if worked moderately, good clover hay may be made to be sufficient.

Big Loss by Rats.
Rats destroy $200,000,000 worth of food annually. Destroy the rat.

Hicks, now of parts unknown, at Lawrence, Massachusetts, on the eighteenth day of May A. D., 1895, and thereafterwards your libellant and the said Grace E. Hicks lived together as husband and wife in this commonwealth, to wit, at Lawrence, Stoneham and Peabody; that your libellant has always been faithful to his marriage vows and obligations, but the said Grace E. Hicks being wholly regardless of the same, at Lawrence at divers times during the year 1914 committed the crime of adultery. And that said libellee on divers days and times during the years 1915, 1916 and 1917 committed the crime of adultery at Bridgeport, Connecticut and at Hoken, New Jersey with one Norman Torrey. And that said libellee in 1914 did, without right desert your libellant at said Peabody, which desertion has continued up to the present time, being more than three consecutive years in duration.

Wherefore your libellant prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony may be decreed between your libellant and the said Grace E. Hicks.

Dated this eighteenth day of February A. D., 1919.

And it is further ordered that the said libellant give notice to said Norman Torrey co-respondent, by causing an attested copy of said libel, and of this order thereon, to be sent, by registered letter, to his last known residence, or, if such residence is unknown, to the place where the adulterous act is alleged to have been committed, fourteen days at least before said return day.

"Pickey" Gill Is Highest Roller On Local Alleys

The honors of bowling the highest single string this season on the local alleys goes to George Gill with a score of 154. A match game between Gill-Connors and Manning-Warren was the reason and when George saw that he had to get a high score to win found no trouble in getting the high total. The match is for tickets to the ball game (Red Sox) and dinners. Each have won two games and the deciding game will be bowled as soon as this 90 degrees weather subsides.

Why Stings Hurt.

The pain caused by the sting of nettles is due partly to formic acid and partly to a chemical resembling snake poison. Our nettles are comparatively harmless; but in India, Java and elsewhere, there are varieties the painful effects of which last weeks, and in some cases months, like snake-bites.

"Y" SUPPLIES AT FRONT

800,000 MEN PLAY BASEBALL

The A. E. F. Puts National Game on French Map—Figures on This and Other Sports Overseas.

Paris, April—Nearly 800,000 members of the A. E. F. participating in baseball games in France under the direction of the Y. M. C. A. athletic directors between August and December, 1918, easily established baseball as the leading sport of the American doughboy abroad as well as at home. A further proof of the sport's popularity is the fact that there were 3,000,000 interested spectators to these games.

The doughboy's baseball was divided about equally between standard and indoor ball, the latter being really playground ball—large ball and small bat, played outdoors, employing indoor rules, small field, etc., and well adapted by the "Y" for just such conditions as soldiers in closely crowded army camps find.

Informal games are second in popularity, showing that the grime of war did not make the American boy forget how to "just play" in his rest moments. These informal games were modifications of the ring and circle, line and relay, ball passing games of youth, and were everywhere entered into with enthusiasm by the doughy warriors. Football came third, and following in order were setting-up exercises, soccer, volley-ball, hikes, basket-ball, boxing, quilts, track and field athletics, wrestling, tennis, rugby and cage ball, for all of which the Y. M. C. A. furnished free equipment.

The popularity from the spectator's point of view was vastly different in everything except baseball. To the onlooker, boxing was second in interest while football came third, and following in order were soccer, informal games, wrestling, volley-ball, baseball, with about equal interest in other sports.

Tennis, like golf, was almost impossible owing to lack of suitable field and the extraordinary equipment needed.

All in all taking in the participants in all the games held in France in five months there were 4,770,546 players and 9,006,874 spectators. The Y. M. C. A. figures on players and spectators in each of the sports are as follows:

Baseball standard, participants, 318,471, spectators, 2,224,109; Baseball indoor, participants, 467,303, spectators, 671,672; informal games, participants, 723,411, spectators, 500,592; football, participants, 641,280, spectators, 1,664,860; setting-up exercises, 565,180, spectators, 201,950; soccer, participants, 527,495, spectators, 578,819; volley-ball, participants, 396,334, spectators, 352,456; hikes, participants, 367,650; basket-ball, participants, 223,824, spectators, 338,057; boxing, participants, 189,513, spectators, 1,713,141; quilts, participants, 164,847, spectators, 116,814; track and field athletics, participants, 57,699, spectators, 260,763; wrestling, participants, 54,313, spectators, 408,709; tennis, participants, 53,365, spectators, 95,258; rugby, participants, 13,703, spectators, 39,495; cage-ball, participants, 6,510, spectators, 11,269.

TWO N. E. GIRLS IN GAMBLING HOUSE

But "Y" Runs It For Doughboy and Has Other Amusements in Place of Roulette and Faro.

Two New England girls, Miss Elizabeth Schlosser of Westport, Conn., and Miss Blanche Brocklebank of Boston, are serving hot drinks and cake at the luxurious gambling casino at St. Malo, one of the famous watering places on the Breton coast. Of course you know that the French government closed all the great gambling centers at the beginning of the war, so that there is nothing sensational in the news. Further than that, the Y. M. C. A. occupied the casino last September and began keeping house for the doughboys who came to St. Malo on leave. Over the arched gateway a sign bears in large letters, "Brittany Leave Area," and the sign of the Red Triangle appears on the gateposts. Where the roulette tables stood are the writing tables where many a letter home is written; the bars serve hot chocolate and coffee, doughnuts and apple pie, where champagne used to flow.

The boys sent to the Brittany Leave area arrive in St. Malo from their various division headquarters at the rate of about 3,000 a week. As a rule they come in a disgruntled and rather peevish and very, very tired, their backs bent under the burden of heavy packs, their clothes muddy and their bodies uncomfortably itchy from dirt and worse. The experiences they've had are still too recent to be forgotten and they come in a little wild-eyed from the horror of the fight that broke the Hun resistance and a bit too inclined to dwell on the gruesome of what they've seen.

Y. M. C. A. men meet them at the station and give them a cordial greeting. Before the boys have time to say this new adventure to a strange place is something they did not want, secretaries rush them off to good hotels, the best in town. En route they are tactfully told where the barber shop and the shower baths are, also where the commissary filled with new uniforms and new shoes can be located.

That night they are swallowed up in downy feather beds, one underneath and one on top, after the fashion of Brittany beds and the next morning their breakfast comes up in a tray, fluffy omelettes, fresh butter, coffee with real cream and crusty French bread.

"This is the life," opines Bill. "Ah, oui, I say it is," responds his bunkie.

The sightseeing trip to Mont St. Michel, one of the oldest abbeys in France, built in the solid rock foundation of an island off the coast of Brittany, is always a point of interest. Every Friday afternoon the Baroness de Charette entertains with a reception and supper at her chateau "Basse Motte," near St. Malo. The baroness was formerly Miss Antoinette Polk of Nashville, Tennessee and she entertains with genuine southern hospitality.

The program is so effectively worked out by the Red Triangle leaders that the boys are overwhelmed with gratitude.

A. C. Lawrence Lea. Co. Will Get Behind Fast Semi-Pro. Baseball Club

Peabody base ball fans will be glad to hear that fast semi-professional ball will be staged in town this summer. The new two-plant athletic association which is being formed at the A. C. L. and National Calfskin Co.'s plants is promising its members one of the speediest teams in the state. Already attractive offers have been made to quite a few stars.

"Nukie" Abbott, the former New England League pitcher and John H. Quinlan, who successfully managed the Mats' team for several years are looking after the interests of the new combination, and have promised the officials of a real team inside of a few weeks.

The list of officials of the new Athletic Association includes several names that stand for results on a large scale, and all are out to make a success of the new venture. They are: President, C. P. Kelley; Vice-President, L. F. Peabody; Treasurer, J. J. Gallagher; Secretary, F. Sonigan; Board of Directors, E. H. Merrill; E. L. Paine; George Gill; John O'Neil; J. E. Young; H. F. Duggan.

Some of the best attractions in the state are booked for Emerson Park this summer, and Peabody fans will again have the pleasure of rooting for a home town team.

Once Powerful Empire.

No country, not even Egypt, made a deeper mark in the history of the ancient world than Mesopotamia. For thousands of years it was the seat of the Assyrian and Babylonian empires. To the bountiful resources of nature its peoples added those of art and science, and the country during the centuries waxed not only in material wealth and military power, but also in culture. The ancient glory of Mesopotamia has passed, but the glamour remains.

LARRABEE, MADE PRINCIPAL, CAPTAIN OF P. H. S. WHEN CHICK DAVIES STARRED

HERBERT A. LARRABEE
New Principal

Election to the principalship of the Thomas Carroll school returns to his home city, Herbert A. Larrabee who is best remembered as Captain of the crack high school baseball team which "Chick" Davies piloted to fame back in 1910. He played shortstop and but for injuries received in the great national game he would have been a four year varsity player at Brown University from which he graduated in 1915. He takes up his new duties as principal next Monday succeeding Principal Murray who has accepted a call to Salem. Principal Larrabee was chosen from a field of three aspirants for the position, his two rivals being Mrs. P. J. Murphy and Miss Katherin Logan, both former principals. It is understood that the school committee were a unit as to the qualifications of the two women teachers who are held in high esteem but that it was believed that the position called for a man teacher. There are no primary grades in the Carroll school.

Malden school committee wanted to secure Principal James J. Murray, so it is reported, even after he had accepted the call to Salem. The Malden job would have paid more money.

The new principal has but recently given up a position of inspector of ordinance for the government which he assumed early in 1917. Previous to that he was in the employ of the Metropolitan Park Commission of Rhode Island as a civil engineer. His practical experience in engineering was gained in the employ of the town of Peabody during his summer vacations from Brown College.

He was strongly recommended for the local position by Charles F. Towne of the State Board of Education. Mr. Towne was formerly principal of the Pickering School in Salem from which Larrabee graduated and came to Peabody to continue his education. He is a brother of Mrs. Harry S. Pyne, wife of school committeeman Pyne. He has a pleasing personality and his friends predict he will prove successful as a teacher. He will attend the summer school at Hyannis.

Much Cut Up!

One day recently a dilapidated, apathetic man entered the office of the Syracuse Medical college and offered to sell his body cheap, adding that he was out of work and almost discouraged. "You're almost discouraged, are you?" rejoined the superintendent, who always tried to change the determination of these unfortunates. "Why, man, if you sold your body to us the first chance our students got they'd take the heart out of you entirely!"—Cartoons Magazine.

Painting on Brass.

Unless care is taken to have the surface absolutely clean, considerable difficulty is encountered in attempting to paint over polished brass. To insure a satisfactory job the brass should first be scoured with a mixture of salt and vinegar to remove all grease, after which the surface should be washed with hot soap suds and wiped dry with a clean rag. Thereafter the paint may be applied without risk of its running while wet or chipping off after it has dried.

POLICE ASK FOR MORE PAY

Leave of absence granted this week to patrolman Thomas Grady is pointed out as proof of the need of more money for the police work if the force is to be kept intact and the efficiency of the service maintained. Patrolman Grady gets a year leave and will begin work in the National Calfskin Co. Monday where he is assured of a considerable increase over his salary in the police department.

The committee on police were tipped off some time ago that if the police pensions were tabled that another demand for redress would be forthcoming. What attitude the committee on police of the Council will take on the petition is unknown but there is ground to believe that they will not frown on some additional money for the men of Chief Grady's department.

GREEKS LEAVING PEABODY

Peabody is witnessing an exodus of young Greeks bound for their homeland now that their nation is assured of a place in the sun as a result of the armistice and peace terms. A delegation of 50 sons of Athens departed from Peabody today en route to Boston and New York whence they take steamer for the Mediterranean.

The Peabody party joins a group of 60 from Lynn and 80 more from Worcester, all of whom were sold their transportation through the office of Prokos Kutrubes, the Peabody steamship agent. Several hundred Greek sons will be on board the steamer when the big ship points her prow toward Bedloe Island and the Statue of Liberty. Most of the Greeks took refuge in this country during the earlier Balkan war and some of the number saw army service for Uncle Sam during the world struggle. A majority of the returning Greeks are under 30 years of age, it is said.

Peabody Plays Stoneham Here Sat. Afternoon

Stoneham High comes here tomorrow for its second game with Peabody High. The Tannery Boys swamped the Stoneham team 24-3 during the first of the season, but a fast game is looked for tomorrow.

Peabody lost the championship in the Middlesex League by poor playing Memorial Day in an important game with Reading and as a result the League cup was given to Wakefield this week. The local team still has an even chance with Lynn English High for the North Shore cup and Coach Gilmore is confident of a comeback for his team and the subsequent winning of the title.

Next Wednesday, Peabody and Marblehead will clash at Marblehead. The latter team is one of the strongest in the North Shore League and was defeated by Peabody, April 30, in one of the best games of the season, the score being 2 to 1.

Lest We Forget

Memorial day this year takes on a new significance. To the list of those who gave their lives for Liberty a half century ago have been added the names of the boys who have made the supreme sacrifice for Liberty today. This photo shows the funeral of one of these martyrs, the first of an American division to fall in action. His comrades and French brothers in arms attended the funeral.

Over 200 Graves of Veterans
Will Be Decorated By G. A. R.—
Exercises Follow At City Hall

Memorial Day observances in this city will see over 200 graves of Grand Army Veterans decorated with wreaths from the hands of their living comrades. The afternoon ceremony will start at 1 o'clock when the G. A. R. members will assemble in Peabody Square under command of Franklin Larrabee, Commander of Post 50.

The graves of the veterans in Monument and Cedar grove cemeteries will be visited. The United Shoe Machinery Band will furnish the music. In the morning a delegation from the Post will visit the graves of deceased members in Lynnfield and West Peabody. Three veterans belonging to Union Post died during the past year.

Veterans of the World War will take as a unit no part in the day's observance. The Sons of Veterans will assist Union Post G. A. R. in decorating the graves.

Following the dedication of the graves the Post veterans will return to City Hall where memorial exercises will be given by pupils of the high school aided by a chorus from the grade schools. The Woman's Relief Corps as usual will serve lunch to the veterans.

500 War Veterans Asked
If They Favor Parade

Letters to five hundred Peabody war veterans went into the mails yesterday from the Mayor's office as a sort of a referendum on the question of a short parade on the day of the Welcoming home celebration on Flag Day in this city.

Many of the war veterans are said to be opposed to any street parade while the citizens whose work at home in the war was aiding in the campaign drives for Liberty Loans and other war funds are by far and away anxious to see the Peabody heroes in line of march.

It is proposed by the committee that the veterans form on Main St. march through the Square to Wilson Square and then back to Peabody Square and up to Emerson Park where the festivities will be held.

Mayor Donnell was asked by the committee having the welcoming home program in charge to canvass the soldiers on the question of the parade. The Mayor himself believes the citizens should have the privilege of seeing the returned veterans in line of march on the day the whole city is

C. OF C. TO BACK FARMS

Ralph E. Thomas, newly elected secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, opened up his office Wednesday afternoon in the new Court House building on Lowell st. Mr. Thomas stated to the Enterprise that he wished to take this opportunity to extend to the citizens of Peabody an invitation to visit the office and become acquainted. He also wants to extend to the citizens a cordial invitation to use the offices for meeting of committees. Arrangement for meetings can be made by calling the secretary, Phone Peabody 60.

A very enthusiastic and interesting meeting of the Chamber of Commerce was held in the Odd Fellows' hall last Tuesday evening, May 27. About 50 members were present. Pres. P. J. Wood presided.

The first speaker of the evening was John A. Sherley, secretary of New England Farm and Food Foundation. Mr. Sherley explained that the purpose of the Foundation was to supply the funds and business experience to carry out the work of the various farm organizations. The Foundation will not duplicate any work that is being done by existing organizations, but will assist all of these organizations that are efficiently managed. The Foundation will be the acid test to all

PROOF THAT OUR MAYOR IS NOT WORRYING

Here's proof that Mayor Donnell doesn't worry despite the trials and tribulations that beset his office. He's growing fat and on his own dictum he has gained ten pounds within the last two weeks. As a result he tipped the beam at 153 yesterday which weight he declares is ten or eleven pounds too much and he wants to get back to his old weight, 142 pounds. To reduce he has joined the Weston club of hikers and five or six mile jaunts into the country are his panacea. Wednesday night he rode to Danvers and walked back home. He says he is going to lose that ten pounds.

local farm organizations.

The speaker quoted figures showing the decline of New England as a food producer. The amount of improved farm land has decreased 42% from 1860 to 1910. In 70 years, 1840 to 1910, the number of sheep raised in New England has decreased 89%. Mr. Sherley explained that the cause of the decline was:

1st. Scientific methods have not been applied to farming to such an extent as to other industries.

2nd. Agriculture has not benefited by efficient organization as have other industries. It has no adequate purchasing, sales or advertising agencies.

3rd. Farming has not as ready access to credit facilities as other business and industry.

Fred A. Smith, director of the Essex County Agricultural School, was the next speaker. Mr. Smith told of the work of various departments of the school, and stated that he heartily approved of the work of the Foundation and he was ready to co-operate with the Foundation in its work.

H. W. Shelby, director of the Market Bureau of the Eastern States Agricultural and Industrial League spoke on the question of marketing the farm products, and stated that farmers in New England as a rule, purchase their supplies at retail, practice neither standardization nor grading, employ no advertising methods, and sell the products at wholesale.

The New England Farm and Food Foundation will assist in organizing Farmers' Exchanges, and such other approved agencies for the purpose of co-operating in the following manner:

1st. In effecting a more economical and more advantageous purchase of their raw materials, such as feed, fertilizers, seeds, etc.

2nd. In grading and standardizing the products of the farm.

3rd. In advertising and effecting greater economy in the marketing and distribution of New England grown products.

Through a more efficient means of marketing, the farmer is enabled to secure a larger percentage of the consumer's dollar without increasing the cost of living to the consumer. Better products command better prices, and are more economical for the consumer to purchase.

John C. Clair, formerly in charge of the Agricultural Development in Western and Southern States for Illinois Central R. R., spoke on the development of several states along agricultural lines, and explained what important part that the various farm organizations had in this development.

A general discussion followed in which several questions were brought out.

Referendum No. 27 from the Chamber of Commerce of U. S. A. was read by the secretary, who reported that the directors present at a meeting held earlier in the evening had discussed the various questions and made recommendations that a vote "in favor"

P. H. S. SENIORS NET $140 BY STRAND SHOW

The entertainment given by the Peabody High School Seniors at the Strand theatre Tuesday evening realized about $130 for class expenses.

"Not On the Programme," a one-act comedy which was the principle feature of the show scored a big hit. Theodore R. Jeffers and Miss Helen C. Johnson in the principle parts were a scream, and much applause showed the success of their acting. Miss Louise Doyle, Miss Shirley Ingraham, Arthur McCarthy and Walter Maney did clever acting, and deserve much credit for the high quality of the presentation. Miss Paulman and Miss Chandler of the high school faculty directed the sketch.

About $40 was made from the sale of home-made candy, contributed by the pupils of the school and sold by senior girls.

Moving pictures and music by Tom Hennessey and "Chet" Potter added to the completeness and variety of the splendid program.

Among the senior pupils who worked hard and are responsible for the success of the affair are the members of the cast, William Munroe, Helen Reid, Roger Doyle, Ray Anglin, Bernice Hayward, Helen Coyle and many others.

The recommendation of the directors was approved by the members present.

A rising vote of thanks was extended to the speakers of the evening.

SALVATION ARMY VALIANT IN WAR

Having Served Gloriously in the Trenches, Is Coming Back From Overseas for Peace Time Activities.

ASKS HOME SERVICE FUND.

National Campaign to Replenish Resources Depleted by Long and Direct Contact Services With Our Boys Scheduled for May 19-26.

New York (Special).—Like the 2,000,000 American boys whom it served so gloriously in the trenches of France, the Salvation Army is coming back from overseas, ready to put aside its khaki uniform of war service, don again the "Civvies" and embark once more on its normal peace time activities.

And, just like those doughboys, the Salvation Army has come out of the war victorious and with citations for bravery, decorations for gallantry under fire and golden chevrons indicative of honorably won wounds on its arm. The victory which the Salvation Army has won is a victory over the obstacles that lay before it in its purpose of efficient service of the fighters of Pershing's army. Its citations are the thanks, cheers and prayers of 2,000,000 doughboys. Its wound stripes are rightfully golden of hue, for they typify the unselfish way in which the Army threw all its resources—financial, spiritual and moral—into the effort to help the American soldiers in France.

Now the Army is asking the people of America to give it concrete evidence of the gratitude which has been so loudly, and so willingly expressed. From May 19 to 26 the Salvation Army will conduct in the United States a campaign to raise $13,000,000 for its Home Service Fund. The money is needed both to recoup the fortunes of the Army, shattered by its long service of the soldier and to permit it to carry on the work it has always done on the larger scale which the public now demands. Raising the money by this means, the Salvation Army explains, will eliminate, perhaps permanently, the necessity for the ceaseless solicitation of funds which has been a bugbear to the Army and the public alike. It will permit the workers of the Army, who, forced to devote more than half their time to gathering money, were in consequence only half efficient in their evangelistic and social service work, to devote all their time in future to the duties for which they have been trained.

"For Better Or Worse" Film Strand Theatre On Holiday

What is undoubtedly the most tremendous of the vital problems raised by the war forms the basis of Cecil B. DeMille's big special "For Better or Worse," which is to be presented for the last times at the Strand today.

Now that the soldiers are returning, the status of the man who stayed at home instead of going to France is being discussed. Is he to be shunned as a slacker, or is he to be considered as having done his duty? Both from the standpoint of dramatic values and timeliness, "For Better or Worse," is one of the most important productions which has been shown in this city this season. The gowns worn in the photograph by Miss Swanson are said to be alone worth the price of admission. In the cast are Elliott Dexter, Gloria Swanson, Theodore Roberts, Tom Forman and Jack Holt.

Memorial Day and Saturday will bring three sterling attractions with Lila Lee in "Rustling A Bride" in the headline position. This is by far the best of Miss Lee's pictures. Monte Blue plays opposite Miss Lee and his interpretation of a big, good natured cowboy is little short of wonderful. Marie Walcamp in "The Red Glove" is the second attraction for tomorrow. This picture got away with a flying start last week and it is a sure enough thriller. Miss Walcamp pulls off a couple of stunts in this episode that are guaranteed to make the most hardened movie fan sit up and take notice. A big V comedy "Jazz and Jailbirds" rounds out the holiday program.

Bryant Washburn in "Kidder & Co." will be presented Sunday evening. This is a very amusing story of a young college graduate who mixes dried cod fish and love together with some remarkable results. Gloria Swanson in "Her Decision" will also be shown Sunday evening.

Dorothy Dalton in "The Lady of Red Butte" and Vivian Martin in "The Home Town Girl" will be shown on Monday and Tuesday. In "The Lady of Red Butte," Miss Dalton plays the part of a Western gambling hall queen whose resourcefulness not only saves the life of a minister but restores his reason as well. One great climax follows another in this picture, making a story of breathless interest and charm.

Douglas Fairbanks in "The Knickerbocker Buckaroo" will be given a three day showing at the Strand instead of the regular two day run.

Among the big productions scheduled for an early showing are included Fannie Ward in "Common Clay," Charles Ray in "The Busher" and Marguerite Clark in "Come Out of the Kitchen."

You used a coal range last summer, you re-wanted, you had to have the stove under fire continuously—even on the hottest days, and after the baking was finished, the stove con-

CITY HALL GOSSIP

If all the good things were published that are said by non-residents in and out of City Hall, it would make many of those who have talked town form of government seek the woods of West
Peabody for recuperation.

Our Honorable Mayor and his staff visited Leominster recently and judging from a letter received by the local board of Assessors, he started more than something. The people of Leominster are waking up to the fact that their valuations are too low, it is said about $15,000,000. with 24,000 inhabitants. Large comb factories are the principal business there and it would seem they have been taxed far too low. Any way, somebody is taxed too low as shown in the valuation.
One can imagine the Mayor telling them how to run their city and having the goods he convinced them easily.
Now the Assessors must get busy and snow something. The fact they have not, may be due to politics or may be due to falling into the rut made back in Columbus times and so deep today that once in, it is almost impossible to get out.

Everybody in City Hall can have an alibi. If mistakes are made, it can be placed at the door of the Mayor for he is solely responsible for everything, except the weather.

All is serene at present. There was one day recently when all the spentup energy, push and action of the Mayor was loosed at once, and a German bomb could not have done more damage to the feelings of some of the inhabitants of this structure. He said much, and while some of it was harsh, it took root.

Police Inspector Edward W. Pierce is popular. He was presented with enough to equip himself like a western cowboy. It would be sad to witness the Inspector using these weapons on some fellow who thought he was there.
It is a cinch that fellow would not be there for long.

Holders of garden lots owned by the city are in danger of having their land taken away from them unless they show signs of activity in getting it ready for the summer crops, according to a statement issued by the Playground Commission which has jurisdiction. A number of applicants who reserved their lots again this year have yet to come forward and plant.
Chairman Angus J. MacDonald declares there are other applicants waiting for the privilege of tilling the soil.

Looks like the city might need to install a new fire alarm signal judging from the frequent one blasts. Did the Mayor say the red touring car was "all in" when he argued for a new truck for the city electrician.

Teamsters who have regular contracts to haul away refuse matter that the city contractors are not obliged to remove wish the city maintained a dump. No more dumping is allowed at Endicott St.

German is still being taught in the Peabody High School despite the nation wide action which has seen the Kaiser's language ousted from American public schools. The Pennsylvania legislature by a combined vote of 223 to 10 enacted a law forbidding the teaching of German in its public schools and Gov. Sprout defied the majority vote by vetoing the measure which is sure to be passed over his veto. There are thousands of German-Americans in the Keystone State, yet the Solons there defied the "German Vote."

Under its "strictly confidential" items the Boston Traveler this week announced, "Oak Park (Chicago), janitors are chagrined. A new wage scale gives school teachers almost as much money as they get." Peabody school teachers have reason to believe they will get another raise in pay this coming year.

Assistant city engineer Crane and transit men began the surveying of Apoan st. Tuesday preparatory to the new permanent street and sidewalks to be constructed on that busy inor-dugnaire.

Street lists of polls will be ready for distribution the first week in June.
The early distribution can be had to having six field assessors who bring in the lists much earlier than is possible to do with a smaller number.

Poll tax bills will be rendered August first and then on or before the fifteenth of that month. There are 6000 names this year as against 4000 in 1916.

When the new court room is occupied, the space formerly used will make a dandy room for the patronen.
A special telephone should be installed

SHOES OF SHEEPSKIN NOW SELLING FOR $6--- LEATHER TRADE NOTES

Calf leather 95 cents for each foot.
Sheep leather 30 cents for each foot.
Leather may go higher, but let us laymen nope and nope that the limit has been reached and the tide is ebbing.
These prices will go down in history as being the peak of the leather industry. Some of us will look back in years to come, and symposize with one unfortunate beings who were ounged to wear shoes to protect their corns and bunions otherwise circumstances would have compelled them to go barefooted.

Shoe salesmen on the road are receiving telegram orders to advance prices 50 cents a pair almost daily.
And still they sell shoes, for the public must have them and darn the expense John. High wages are meeting under this strain of high prices, and the cash box shows no surplus at the end of the month. Think of a Pea-bodyite purchasing a pair of sheepskin shoes. Knowing what he knows about these skins, one would hardly expect him to buy a pair of shoes made wholly from sheepskin. But it is a fact they are retailing for $6.00 a pair. But the uninitiated do not know what these skins are equal to calf, kid or side leather. Leather is leather to them.

Taxation is the bane of everybody.
It is reckoned that millions of people have passed on their tax bills and one per cent. agree their taxes are just.
The others, some are not taxed enough and others are taxed so high as to be beyond human comprehension. The question as to how factory property should be taxed, has many opinions.
When the present Board of Assessors conceived the idea of taxing factories by floor space nearly all agreed that was a fair way to estimate values.
When they taxed machinery at a fixed price for each type of machine it appealed to most of the tanners. When they dug up millions of dollars worth of leather and hides that were never taxed before, they imagined they were doing the city a favor but not the manufacturer. No one can blame a tanner for being taxed for something he had not been taxed for previously.
But because he had not is no reason why he should not be taxed.

The unpleasant duty performed by assessors in every community it seems to me is not appreciated as it should be. The public of Peabody may appreciate it, but so many have been raised it is natural for them to think they should tax the other fellow and not themselves. Value of factory property is what? When a plant is being operated, it is of great value to the operators. Figured on its earning capacity and that is the manner tenement houses are taxed, the figures would have mounted high the last few years. To sell it if idle it would bring but little. But in my humble opinion and all the Peabody assessors acquiesce, the taxable value of tannery property is according to the floor space and construction of the buildings. Replacement values, selling values, and earning capacity should all be taken into account, and when added up the figures should be roughly 50 to 60 per cent of the cost.

The cost of water, sewerage and street repairs can be laid at the doors of the manufacturers. Surely the large expense that has been paid by the city of Peabody for these things would have been small to the house owner. Then I am aware the factories employ the inhabitants and therefore the latter are called upon to pay a much larger share of the expense of maintenance. Co-operation is what the big minds are calling for today.
There has got to be more of this co-operation between labor and capital to keep machinery in operation, and I can vouch for a large portion of the manufacturers to pay well for the privilege of doing business in Peabody by welcoming an assessment on their property within 60 per cent. of its cost. There may be a limit to the size of plants as to the per centage of taxation, but one might say the same thing of tenement houses.

George Peabody built houses in London which nobody but an octopus would think of buying. But their earning capacity was greater in proportion than the smaller ones. A large apartment house in Boston recently changed hands with figures in the hundreds of thousands. Valuable if let, yes, but idle no. So with factory property, when in operation its value is more than any property in sight. So much for taxes.

I hear that pickled sheepskins are being exported to France and England.
Such skins as are going there are not even skimmed milk, I am told. They have been culled, then culled again to get anything suitable for leather, and if the American tanner cannot use them I am wondering what the Frenchman can do with them. I think he will find out with tears in his eyes.
But these people have been used to little for some years, and it may be well not to give them too much for a starter.

Returns made by leather concerns show good business. When the State passed a law in 1918 to go into effect in April 1919 that all foreign corporations should make a return to the tax commissioner as he prescribed, it started something. A penalty for neglecting to do so made it imperative. The days of hiding values either for individuals or corporations are apparently over. Intangible property used to get away, but not today. The State under this law must co-operate with the cities and towns, more cooperation. It is getting to be in the air.

ANOTHER SUCCESSFUL DRIVE

Completing a record of oversubscriptions in every drive for funds called for in connection with the work of winning the war, Peabody exceeded its Salvation Army quota by a figure that near the close bid fair to reach the 100 per cent. mark. Not only was there a whole-hearted response to the appeal for funds generally, but the volunteer workers were ably handled under the direction of Capt. Louis P. P. Osborne. These solicitors and workers, from their chairman down, are to be commended upon the success of their efforts, and the thanks of the community is due to them for the splendid service rendered. The community spirit manifested by its citizens in the various drives is most commendable and it is one of the things that makes Peabody a city in which its citizens may be pardoned for taking a justifiable pride.

MEMORIAL DAY

Memorial Day takes on an added significance this year by reason of the supreme sacrifice so willingly made by so many thousands of the nation's sons during the past year. The same spirit animated the youth of the country nearly three score years ago that recently sent America's sons across the sea to participate in the great struggle for humanity. We honor the former for "what they did and all they dared" and although the hands of time are constantly thinning the ranks of the veterans of the G. A. R., the memory of the departed ones is as deeply revered as if the nation's great internal conflict was of recent date. When the last veteran of '61 has answered the final roll call Memorial Day will still be observed, and the veterans of 1918-1919 will be found paying tribute to the deeds of the generations before them.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

With the opening of its commodious quarters in the new municipal court building, where it occupies one of the stores on the ground floor, the Chamber of Commerce last Monday launched upon its new career. Secretary Ralph E. Thomas, who came to Peabody highly recommended from Portsmouth, Ohio, is actively in charge of the work of the Chamber and he has the hearty co-operation of an able board of directors. With proper support the organization should prove itself a tremendous power for good in the community, not only in furthering business interests but in the civic development of the city. The organization has a strong, live membership and with public opinion squarely behind it, displaying interest in its efforts and backing it up with active co-operation, it is only a matter of time when its achievements will be gratifying to an amazing degree.

THE SOLDIERS' WELCOME

As in everything else connected with the great war, Peabody is going to do no half-hearted job in giving its returned soldiers a proper welcome home. The arrangements are well along towards a state of completion and a program is to be offered that will most assuredly convince them that the folks at home have been and still are gratefully appreciative of the service the boys in khaki rendered their country. There are upwards of 500 returned soldiers in the city and the number is steadily growing, and they are certainly going to have one good time on the 13th, 14th, and 16th of June. While a number of places have made the mistake of arranging a program that savored largely of entertainment of the civilians by the soldiers, this has been carefully avoided in the local affair. First off, the boys are going to be given an athletic entertainment with plenty of pep to it in the shape of a boxing carnival on the evening of the 13th. Then comes a big field day at Emerson Park on the 14th, following a parade, and finally on the 16th a ball and entertainment at City Hall. The affair is in the hands of a competent committee and it will certainly be an occasion long to be remembered.

A SURE FOUNDATION

In memory of the boys who have "gone west" in glory, buy Thrift and War Savings Stamps and keep Liberty securely upon her pedestal.

ROUND ABOUT

Inspector Edward F. Pierce of the police force certainly has reason to believe that his work is appreciated. Following the presentation of gifts of a fine Colt automatic revolver, a specially designed inspector's badge and a trustworthy "billy" he was handed a substantial purse of money this week as the concluding gift of the series.

According to a list recently secured from the office of the Massachusetts Highway Commission, under whose auspices is conducted the registration of motor vehicles, Peabody has 41 pleasure cars, 125 trucks and some 30 odd motorcycles.

Jesse F. Barrett, chief of the Peabody fire department, has been honored by his election as president of the State Association of Fire Chiefs. Chief Barrett's reputation as a fire fighter is more than state wide, and his recent election was a signally deserved honor.

Work is progressing steadily on another stretch of the Andover Street highway to Middleton and thence to Lawrence, this year's construction being towards Peabody from the new stretch laid a couple of years ago above the turnpike. There is a possibility of the Peabody end of the job being finished next year, according to Chairman Moody Kimball of the county commissioners.

Another eye-opener for Salem is the unbroken stretch of granolithic sidewalks rapidly being finished on both sides of Main Street from the Salem line up to Washington Street. "How do you do it?" was the query of a member of the Salem City Council upon viewing it the other day, following with the observation "If we sprung anything like that in Salem just now, they'd throw a fit."

The A. C. L. magazine is a credit to its publishers. It is issued semi-monthly by the Military Welfare Association of the A. C. Lawrence Leather Co., the National Calfskin Co., and the Winchester Tannery Co., and is devoted to the interests of the employees of those allied concerns. It is issued by a publication committee consisting of John J. Gallagher, F. X. Hess and Earl W. Weaver and its current number fairly teems with snappy news of especial interest to the A. C. L. employees. Illuminating special articles, elaborate reviews of recent social events with fine half-tone illustrations, letters from employees in the service, sporting comment and spicy personals galore form the contents of as breezy a little 24-page trade publication as one can find anywhere in the state.

Have you noticed the new method of spelling Peabody, as shown on the flaring posters advertising a circus which is in town today? They spell it P. Body.

It's going to be doubly hard to meet the new order of things on July 1 unless there is a speedy improvement in the quality of the water served up to Peabodyites just at present. There is a strong taint of vegetation to it that is anything but pleasant to the taste. We are advised to boil the water, but who wants to drink vegetable soup.

An automobile displaying the number 138,516 was in the Square yesterday. This is probably the highest registration number seen here and it gives one an idea of the immense number of motor vehicles in the state. The figure displayed represented pleasure vehicles only, and in addition there are the trucks and other business vehicles and the motorcycles. With registration fees from $5 upwards, the total thus raised for highway improvement represents a vast sum.

One of those little plots between the curbing and the granolithic sidewalk on Central st. was carefully prepared and sown with grass seed recently. To protect it and give the grass seeds chance, the citizen who planted put up a little sign—"Keep Off." The injunction was disregarded more than once, however, to the detriment of the embryo lawn. Most of the offenders were children, and the man who sowed the seed made excuse for them, but he is still wrathful over the fact that one of those who deliberately walked over the plot was a high school teacher.

Major Ernest R. Redmond and family have gone to Boxford to spend the summer. The major, who came back from the war in command of the Cadet battalion of the 101st Field Artillery, had an unpleasant experience with Hun gas "over there" and figures that the balmy Boxford breezes will not be the worst thing in the world to help eradicate the gas effects.

Every business man in this city should be a C. of C. member.

Lt. Flanagan Of Peabody Is Nace's Counsel

Lieut. Francis M. Flanagan of Peabody who prior to his being given a commission in the army was a Boston newspaper man, was the counsel for Private Paul Nace, the soldier at Camp Devens courtmartialed for alleged desertion. Nace claims he was shanghaied by a German sympathizer and kept a prisoner on board of a German U-boat. The trial proved one of the most sensational held at the military camp in this state. Nace steadfastly held to his first story of being abducted, gagged and placed on board of a submarine from which he claims he was forced to swim two miles to shore near Cape Henry, Virginia.

The former Peabody man attended Plattburg in 1917 and was commissioned following his training there. He has been stationed at Camp Devens during the war service. He married a Boston girl a few months after being ordered to Devens for assignment.

Mrs. Briggs Had Attended So. Church For Over 47 Years

Mrs. Mary Abbott, widow of Henry G. Briggs of this city, died at 7 o'clock Sunday evening after a 10 days' illness of pneumonia, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Henry D. Folsom in Woburn. The family removed to that city about three months ago.

Mrs. Briggs was the youngest daughter of the late Deacon Richard Smith and Mary Abbott Jacobs, and was born in this city 66 years ago and had always lived here. She had been a member of South church for 47 years and was a constant and regular attendant of all the services, besides serving on various committees. Mrs. Briggs was a graduate of Peabody High School class of 1870. She leaves three daughters, Mrs. Walter Scott of Lowell, Mrs. Henry D. Folsom, and Miss Abby A. Briggs who lived with her; and three grandchildren, Henry B., Mabel S., and Bruce N. Folsom. She also leaves a brother, Richard E. Smith, and three nieces and three nephews.

Prayers were read at the home at Woburn on Tuesday noon by Rev. Dr. Norton of the Congregational church, and later the body was brought to Peabody where services were held in South Congregational church parlor. Rev. M. Maynard of Haverhill, a former pastor of the church officiated, and Mrs. Miles of Salem sang several appropriate selections. The abundance of beautiful flowers testified to the loving esteem in which Mrs. Briggs was held by all who knew her.

Friend's Milk Bread

Mothers approve of Friend's Bread for two reasons anyway—

The children like it and ask for it.

The bread itself means plenty of milk, fats and nourishing wheat.

Two good reasons, surely, for making Friend's Bread a household necessity in your home.

Friend's Bread is made under ideal conditions—in kitchens spotlessly clean and equipped with the most scientific aids to bread-making. The material used are of the best, and the actual bread-makers are experts. Friend's Bread comes to you wrapped in wax paper—sweet, healthful and tasty bread.

LAME A DELEGATE TO R. R. CONVENTION

Gilbert E. Lame of West Peabody attended the biennial convention of the Brotherhood of Railroad Station employees and clerks. The convention which lasted four days was held in the Pythian Temple, Portland, Me., and was attended by delegates of nearly all the orders in this part of the country. The Chamber of Commerce of that city aided materially in making the stay a pleasant one for the visitors, taking them on a tour of the city and a smoke talk. Dull weather prevented the Chamber taking the visitors on the proposed boat excursion. They were tendered a banquet by the Portland Brotherhood, No. 15. The next convention will be held at Indianapolis, Indiana, from which place delegates are present.

Ensign Herman Young has returned to service after spending a four-day furlough at home.

Enterprise Appeals To County Heads To Make Sutton St. Safe For Travel

Some time in the not too distant future the county commissioners are going to visit Sutton Street with a view of considering an improvement of that street from the Highland Ave. county-built road between Salem and Lynn as a new traffic artery between Peabody and Lynn.

At present the road is passable and that is about all that can be said of it. That it would be a great convenience to motor vehicles and general traffic to and from Peabody goes without saying, but whether the county commissioners will view it as a necessary piece of work is another matter.

At any rate, it is certain that the chances of any start being made in that direction in the immediate future, at the county's expense, or even with its assistance, are about as good as those of Germany again becoming a first class power in the next few months.

Interviewed by a reporter for the Enterprise on the subject recently, Chairman Moody Kimball of the county commissioners ventured the opinion that it would probably be some time before Peabody could expect any material assistance from the county in that direction. The county aided materially in the construction of the splendid stretch of road on Margin Street a few years back and it is going to finish the Andover Street job sometime. Outside of that, there doesn't appear to be much in sight at present.

Chairman Kimball cited the fact that about 50 per cent. of the main thoroughfares are located in the towns and 20 per cent. in the cities, while in the matter of valuations upon which taxes are raised, an inverse ratio exists of the same proportions. The towns cannot afford to build and keep these thoroughfares in repair and therefore require county and state assistance to a greater extent than the cities.

MOOSEDOM WAIT NEXT BIG STAG

The Moose plan to give them a Welcome Home in the near future they will never forget.

He is a firm believer in good roads and a champion of their development, but with the funds available to assist in the work it requires, only a small proportion of the demands can be met.

However, the commissioners are going up some time and take a look. That may help some, and what it will cost will not make any appreciable dent in the county's expense account.

ENSIGN DUNNEY STILL OVERSEAS

ENSIGN HAROLD G. DUNNEY.

Ensign Harold G. Dunney is still in French waters with the Yankee fleet, according to letters received from the former Peabody naval officer. He is on the U. S. Jupiter and has been in European waters for some months.

Ensign Dunney was formerly manager of the Peabody Leather Co. He enlisted in the navy and was recommended for the school for ensigns and was one of the first to graduate. He elected sea duty and was shortly on his way overseas aboard one of Uncle Sam's crack torpedo boat destroyers. He sent the Peabody Enterprise this week a picture of the "Imperator" formerly one of the most elaborate German liners, entering Brest harbor preparatory to being handed over to the U. S. naval authorities to be used as a transport for American troops homeward bound.

Dunney was a member of the Board of Directors of the Chamber of Commerce and was rapidly forging his way ahead in the leather business when he enlisted for the war service.

Stadium Will Boom Peabody In Athletics

Peabody's proposed stadium will be a credit to the city and of incalculable advantage in the development and raising of is youth. The project first started by the Chamber of Commerce has the backing of Mayor Donnell and the School Committee.

It will not be distinctively a memorial to the gallant young men who answered their country's call in the great world war, but it is proposed to dedicate it to the achievements and to perpetuate by means of one or more tablets the heroic deeds of the American soldiers so that every boy from 12 years of age upwards will realize what a glorious thing it is to offer his services to his country.

While not yet in form for presentation for the necessary legislative action, plans have been so far developed as to make it reasonably certain that the stadium will be ready for use by next summer.

It will be located convenient to the High School and be a part of the general plan for providing the required High School addition next year. It is proposed to secure additional land south of the present High School on Central Street, construct thereon the school addition, which is intended to be used by the junior classes, and on the land in the rear, which the city already owns to a considerable extent, construct the stadium.

It is proposed to make it large enough to include both a football and baseball ground, with a concrete grandstand large enough to accommodate several thousand spectators, and also for other athletic paraphernalia.

It is not intended to limit its use to the High School athletes, but to make it a part of the playground system, so that the youth of the city in general may share in its advantages. It has also been suggested that it can be made a revenue-paying proposition by being let for great events for which an admission fee is to be charged.

The matter has already been considered by the mayor and the school board and has progressed to the extent that plans have already been drawn and considered, and tentative costs have been outlined. The chief expense, of course, is the concrete grandstand, and the estimate is around $10 a seat, which is liberal enough to also include some of the extras.

Optimistic Thought.

The Time He Hurries.

NEVER in the half century of loyal and proud celebration of the day set apart as sacred to the memory of the dead heroes of the nation who fought for the life of the republic and saved its unity and its liberties has there been another day so solemnly impressive, so filled with inspiring visions, so glorified by high and vast national undertakings, as this holiday dedicated to patriotic self-sacrifice and exalted service to mankind. It is the greatest of Memorial days, the most impressive celebration of devotion to country which is faithful unto death.

In 1888 the coming of Memorial day found the nation at war, indeed, and with a fine, unselfish purpose, but the task was small and easy, for so great a power, and the world as a whole was quiet. The brief conflict with Spain in no vital sense resembled the tremendous world struggle into which the American republic has been forced. Now we realize there has been an altogether different contact with the most vital and fearfully difficult problems of mankind, with opportunities for service which entirely dwarf the problems and possibilities of 19 years ago.

This year the people of the United States know that mighty forces hostile to American ideals, American principles of government, American hopes and desires, took the field for the triumph of reactionary militarism, the divine right of kings and the supremacy of armed power. Now it is clear to all who are neither blinded by prejudice nor the victims of stupidity and lying that the free nations of the world had to fight for their freedom, that the countries which love peace had to battle for their security against the upholders of greed and aggression.

Today America stands before the world as the greatest and most unselfish champion of the rights of nations, large and small, that ask nothing more than freedom to live their own lives in their own way and enjoy the security which good intentions toward other countries ought to insure. Now the position of the United States is higher and more potent for right and justice in the councils of the world and the ordering of human life than it ever was before.

That is what makes this the finest and highest of Memorial days, the most thrilling in its promise of far-reaching service to the common good of mankind and its assurance that the American republic is to meet, in its mighty bulk and wealth and power, the expectations and hopes which lovers of liberty have built upon its heroic deeds in the weakness and poverty of its youth and the relative meagerness and incapacity of its later struggle to save its own national soul and hold its heritage for generations to come. That is why this is a holiday never to be forgotten by any true American of sensibility and intelligence, who was fortunate enough to be a part of the vast drama enacted, with the wide world for its stage.

On the day sacred to the dead who laid down their lives that liberty might live and grow strong and great, the country they loved and served dedicates itself anew to the finest and highest tasks of which nations are capable, at whatever cost in blood and treasure. The spirit of the great days of another generation is awakened and dominant again. The glorious ideals and devotion of the times which made Memorial day possible are giving that holiday new significance and power for good. There is a rebirth of the best and holiest spiritual life of the nation.

Ward 2 Fight For Councillor Waxing Warm

Sergt. JOHN A. JONES

Election of a Councillor from Ward Two set for Tuesday, June 10 is all settled if you listen to the campaign managers of the two aspirants who got on the ballot. The candidates are Sergt. John A. Jones and "Admiral" Charles M. Boyle and each is content that he will adorn that chair in the august City Council made vacant by the resignation of Councillor William Hardiman, March 1.

Sergt. Jones who was in the 301st Field Artillery that saw France and was eager to get into action before the armistice came along to dash their hopes of seeing or tackling the retreating Huns was the high man in the primary with the vote of 121. He led his rival by exactly 50 votes and his vote was only 25 less than that polled by all three of his rivals together.

Boyle got 77 votes in the primary. Francis H. Sherry was third with 40 and Lieut. Leo Murphy, veteran of Chateau Thierry had 35. How the Sherry and Murphy vote will go, so will go the election say the wisecracks up in Bleachery Square.

Campaign managers for Sergt. Jones say their man is sure to win with at least 75 if not 100 votes in the majority over his rival aspirant for the Council. Supporters of Boyle are sure their man is already counted a winner. Jones' managers feel sanguine that the combined Sherry and Murphy vote will go to their man insuring his easy election but this is disputed by the Boyle adherents who say their man is bound to poll a handsome vote.

Jones acquired fame for his baseball while a student at Peabody High from which he graduated in 1914. He developed into a catcher that made him without a peer in the North Shore League.

Peabody High Adds Victory While Lynn English Loses

Peabody High kept up its winning streak Wednesday when it beat Winthrop High 4 to 1 in a fast game which was attended by a large delegation of fans from this city. The game was played at Fort Banks and a big crowd of soldiers were on the sideline.

Happy Levine signaled his return to the mound for the Tannery Boys and held the Peninsular boys down to four hits. A lucky two bagger in the eighth, and assist and a sacrifice fly gave the home team their only score. Happy had everything that a good schoolboy pitcher is supposed to have and he had his opponents swinging after his wide outshoots to a Queen's taste. Behind him the Peabody team put up an airtight game, the kind of ball they expect to play Saturday here against the Lynn English who are in second place and fighting the Tannery Boys for the pennant. Peabody is yet to be beaten in the North Shore League.

Clean hitting by three of the Peabody boys Capt. Moquin, Ray Anglin and Eddie O'Connor returned Levine a winning boxman. Moquin got in a two bagger and a single, Anglin two singles and O'Connor's lovely wallop scored a run. Incidentally, Capt. Moquin fanned for the first time in three years and so went into Ty Cobb's class. They all strikeout now and then.

Peabody stole six bases and the pilfering helped to get the runs across the pan. It was easily the snappiest game Peabody has played. Every man was on his toes and solidly behind the pitcher.

Reading High in the Middlesex league plays here tomorrow morning at the Park and a big crowd is sure to be on hand.

Lynn English visits here Saturday at 3 p. m. and is bound to receive a great reception. The two teams are about evenly matched, Lynn English having been defeated only once this year, and then by Lynn Classical, whereas Peabody's only defeat was at the hands of Wakefield, which is not in the North Shore League. Saturday's game will decide the probable championship of the North Shore League. Peabody's regulars will form the lineup, and a great game is looked for.

Lynn English suffered defeat at the hands of Gloucester High yesterday by the score of 9 to 5, giving a fine exhibition of blowing up altogether and spilling the beans for the pennant they had hoped to win in the North Shore league. This gives Peabody a lead of two full games over the Lynn rivals which Peabody fans believe is enough to land the flag. Lynn fans were confident that English High would emerge the county champions. The Shoe City nine will bring over a big crowd here Saturday for the game that will cinch the pennant, for if Peabody beats Lynn the Tannery boys are assured of the championship.

cent. of the recommendations laid down by the fire underwriters affirms the Mayor. He has all along urged the motorizing of the fire department and the aerial truck which was recently recommended by the committee on fire department has his support.

to turn out to applaud the men who braved the Germans and helped to drive them to the armistice.

There can be no denying the fact that a majority of the citizens want to see the soldiers on parade. The letter from the Mayor to the soldiers carried a postcard on which the willingness or unwillingness of the soldier is to be recorded. Immediate answers are requested.

Mayor Donnell expects to go before the City Council at its next meeting and recommend the purchase of an aerial ladder truck and a new pumping engine for the Peabody Fire Department. The two new apparatus will cost about $13,000 and $11,000 respectively.

His Honor will also advise against the suggestion to put Hose 4 firekit on a chassis. He believes it would be a wiser thing to purchase a new motor firekit for the Eastend station.

With the acquisition of the above new motor fire apparatus, Peabody will have confirmed to at least 40 per

Horse Drops Dead In Square, Fire Follows

A horse belonging to J. W. Trask Co. dropped dead in Peabody Square at an early hour last evening and for two hours was Exhibit A to hundreds of passersby. The animal chose to breathe his last in proximity of the car tracks opposite the waiting room in the Square and the carcass had to be removed to one side to permit of the trolley cars operating.

The horse had shown no signs of being ill. While the animal still remained on exhibition waiting for the rendering works to remove the body, the fire alarm from box 21 which is now in Peabody Square brought out the fire apparatus and added to the excitement. A mattress fire at 21 Main St. was the source of blaze that was quickly subdued.

USED CITY LAND TO PASTURE COWS

They have been using "Bunko Park" as a pasture for cows and horses but the practise came to a sudden stop this week when Chairman Angus J. MacDonald induced a policeman to interfere and order the livestock kept from the lot dedicated to Young Americas in that populated district.

Over in the Eastend playground cows also have been sent to pasture on the city land and the edict has gone forth that the milkers must be kept away from the area.

City employees have been cleaning up Ward 2 playground this week and making it as presentable for the summer season as it can be made.

The Threla Campfire will have a card party and food sale on Wednesday afternoon, June 4, at 2.30 o'clock at the home of their guardian, Louise King, 240 Lowell st.

Mrs. Peter Tremblay will spend the holiday and week-end in New York City with a party of friends.

Miss Mary Donovan, a former pupil at the school, was a visitor Wednesday.

The reception tickets have come 1200 strong. Already the precious pasteboards are in demand. It will be held Monday, June 23.

Miss Chandler and Miss Paulman must be congratulated on their success in producing the sketch "Not on the Program" at the Strand Tuesday. It was hard work, and the seniors appreciate it.

The sophmores will make about $35 on their dance last Friday evening. The affair as a whole was a success, and a very pleasant party was held.

The senior boys voted to wear blue suits and white neckties at the graduation white pants will be the go at the reception. A committee, John Ward and William Meade, was appointed to look into the suggestion that every boy wear a pink to distinguish them as ushers at the reception. (The class is so small it might be wise to have some form of identification.)

Exactly 10 more school days for the seniors.

Transportation of the Future.

Transportation is the fundamental of progress in civilization. All things must pass through it as through the neck of a bottle. If we can transport energy without using cars to carry it, there is just so much gain. Electricity is energy without substance. Its transmission calls for no vehicle other than a copper wire. Hence it is obvious that we must look to electricity for distributing the power on which our economic future as a nation depends.

MAYOR RAPS AT PRESS
IN PLEA BEFORE COUNCIL

A deadlock stays action for the present in the City Council on the petitions of the firemen and police for pensions. Committeeman Cotton for the police and Reed for the firemen reported indefinite postponement on the petitions. The vote to sustain the committees was Messrs. Reed, Cotton, Ryan, McKeen and Giles. Two of the Councillors who voted against postponement were thought to be openly opposed to the petitions being granted. At the close of the evening's business Councillor Duggan asked President Giles to rule on the status of the petitions. The Chair ruled they were ooth dead. Some difference of opinion is expressed on this ruling for it is held by some that the petitions are still before the Council for action that may be settled with the election of the new Ward 2 Councillor on June 10.

Mayor Donnell went before the City Council last night to explain why he ordered the police patrol wagon to take him down to Salem late last Sunday night and asked the Council to give him a vote of confidence and permission to use a city vehicle if occasion presented itself. The Council graciously obliged His Honor.

The Mayor began his address by paying his respects to the newspapers whose criticism he said he didn't worry about, and then in the next breath he admitted he was thin skinned about newspaper criticisms. He declared that the city owed him hundreds of dollars for the use of his private automobiles during his incumbency in office and declared that the next Mayor must have independent means or else have a city automobile to take him about on legitimate city business.

Peabody needs $1231.66 to reach its quota of $3000 for the Salvation Army campaign drive. The receipts reported for yesterday were $1218.04 with wards one, four and five doing practically all of the work so far in the drive. PORTSMOUTH, OHIO MAN
CHOSEN SECRETARY OF
CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Ralph E. Thomas for the past two years secretary of the Portsmouth, Ohio Chamber of Commerce was yesterday elected to the position of secretary of Peabody's new Chamber of Commerce. He had no opposition and will begin his active work here Monday. His election was at a special meeting of the directors.

Secretary Thomas is 35 years old and is married. His selection for the local office follows a special visit made to Portsmouth, Ohio, by Edward H. Merrill, one of the local directors, some days ago and it is upon the recommendation of this live wire that the local Chamber offered the position to Mr. Thomas.

For the past several weeks, Mr.

Thomas has been in charge of the North Shore district work for the Salvation Army Campaign to raise funds in which he has been successful. He is a native of Portsmouth, Ohio, where he attended the schools. For some years prior to accepting the position of secretary of the Chamber of Commerce in his home city he was employed as a traveling salesman for a big furniture house. His labors in his home city as secretary were to boom a trade at home movement. Portsmouth is 107 miles from Cincinnati, the nearest metropolis. Shoe, steel and brick plants are the leading manufacturing interests in Portsmouth.

RIOT GUN TO KILL CROWS
AT CITY FARM

Request for the use of a riot gun to exterminate the pest of crows which are devouring sprouting seeds at the City Farm found favor with the august City Council last night. Every solon smiled as he signalled his support of the petition of City Almoner James J. Ray presented thru the Mayor. The request was for one riot gun with which Supt. Thomas Gilroy of the Farm hopes to rid the crows. How many he expects to get with one charge is not known. It is safe to say that if the plan works the Peabody formula for killing the blackbirds may be adopted in other municipalities.

CITY HALL

Mayor Donnell got a fine reception in Leominster last Wednesday night where he talked on the subject of municipal roads and he gave some worth while information to the city fathers who are interested in giving Leominster some good streets. Acting city solicitor William H. Fay, who has a wide circle of friends in the combsop city, accompanied the Mayor, as did city collector Earle Hershenson. The latter declares Mayor Donnell made one of his best addresses and greatly impressed his auditors including Mayor Sawtelle.

In order to build new streets with incidental improvements that will make any showing in any one year, Mayor Donnell told his Leominster audience that every city should have an assessed valuation of at least $1,000,000 for every 1000 citizens. Leominster with a population of 20,000 has the very low valuation of only $13,000,000. It is said that the assessors in Leominster refuse to increase valuations on manufacturing plants of which it has many and whose business is enormous.

The severe rain storm early yesterday morning which was attended by thunder and lightning, blew a fuse out at the pumping station causing the latter to be shut down until repairs could be made to the electrical wires.

A balky condenser caused loss of power to a number of plants in this city yesterday when the electric light plant had its troubles.

Chief Barrett of the Peabody fire department was congratulated at City Hall yesterday on his election as president of the Fire Chief's Association held in Boston at the Somerset hotel. It will now be necessary for this Mark Twain to rehearse a speech and he may be heard at some future banquet bubbling forth in a brand new vocabulary. Back in 1898 when Peabody had a dedication at which the Chief was down for a speech he was all primed for his discourse but when he faced his audience his tongue became tied and he flunked. Ever since that time he's been telling his audiences that he is no speech maker.

Residents of Aborn St. who petitioned some months ago for a right of way through the Sutton property to connect with Main St. are getting impatient. They hope the present City Council is ready to proceed in the matter. The plans for the proposed right of way are drawn and legal steps are being taken to secure title to adjoining property.

Another right of way which the city is likely to order is one near the Thomas Carroll School connecting Northend St. with Crest Ave., Gardner Park. Plans for this project are already completed. There has been some hitch in the legal aspect of the matter.

Daniel J. Boyle, war veteran of France has accepted a position as an inspector in the City Engineer's Department.

City Weigher, Joseph Bolster, is more than earning his salary at the City scales. Last month over 1000 loads were recorded by him and the count so far this month is well over the 900 mark with another week to go.

Much adverse comment was heard over the welcoming home celebration given in Lynn to its war veterans last week and some of the soldiers were not slow in expressing themselves. The banquet which was served out in paper plates and given to the soldiers to take out on the ground wasn't enough to satisfy their inner man after the marching. War veterans of Flanders mud also felt they were discriminated against in the athletic sports because they had to contend with veterans who had seen less severe experiences in the army camps. Many citizens hope that every war veteran will parade the short distance outlined on the day of Peabody's celebration.

At a meeting of the registrars held last Tuesday night, Thomas F. Butler for 21 years a member of the board was re-elected chairman. He has served Peabody well on this board and his selection is a compliment for his good work.

The annual report of the trustees of the J. B. Thomas Hospital will be distributed next week. It shows that the local hospital has been a very busy institution the past year and the trustees ask for the support of all plant. He is admittedly one of the cleverest police officers ever to do duty under Chief Grady.

Publicity by Lynn newspapers on Wednesday evening was the lever by which authorities in that city changed front yesterday in the petition of Charles Burns of Peabody for a jitney license between the two cities. As a result request for a public hearing before the Peabody City Council scheduled to have been made last night did not materialize. John Kane also of Peabody was granted a provisional license by Lynn yesterday. Burns was likewise given a temporary permit with the promise that a regular permit would be issued by the Lynn City Council next Tuesday evening.

There is a persistent rumor that certain alleged facts may be presented to the District Attorney and this rumor is said to be causing much uneasiness in certain circles in Peabody. Ugly stories are afloat and are said to be in possession of prominent city officials of Peabody.

C. of C. Elects New Secretary On Job Monday

The Enterprise Secretary Thomas said he was ready to tackle the problems confronting the new Chamber here, and will give his best efforts to furthering the interests of Peabody. He desires to become fully acquainted with the local needs before outlining any definite program. He lets it be known, however, that he is confident of making good here. He hopes to find a home in Peabody.

A meeting of the Chamber will be held in Odd Fellows Hall, Tuesday evening.

The object of this meeting is to bring out the work of the New England Farm and Food Foundation. The work that this Foundation has undertaken is of the utmost importance to the farming industry, and deals with the co-operative purchase of farm supplies and marketing of farm products.

MAY FESTIVAL

The annual May Festival of the Peabody Community House will be presented by the classes in physical training next Tuesday evening at 7:45 P. M. in the large City Hall. The general scheme is to be the showing of folk dances of different nations in costume with the peasant dresses as foundations.

General dancing will follow until midnight.

"OUT OF LOVE" CLUB UNIQUE ORGANIZATION

Members Are Girls Rescued by Salvation Army.

The "Out of Love" Club is one of the important club organizations maintained by the Salvation Army in this country. In every large city where there is a Salvation Army corps girls who have been helped back into the normal pace of a workaday world are proud of the membership in this club.
Disappointed, loveless girls who do not forget kindnesses shown them in their hour of greatest need give out of love to help other girls receive the same friendliness. In a simple, quiet way, this unique idea has been maintained for over 20 years.

In every large city in the country there are girls who have needed the ministrations of the Salvation Army.
After they have been helped and sent on their way again they become life members of this club if they so desire.
Only girls are admitted who have given a good account of themselves for at least one month in the positions found for them by the Salvation Army after their release from a hospital or home.
These girls pledge themselves to keep alive the spirit of friendliness and home which the Salvation Army has spread among them. The girls are expected to dress in a plain, simple way, and avoid in any sense of the word gaudy or tawdry clothing.

Gossiping or tale bearing is tabooed.
If members of the club transgress this rule they are liable to suspension for a month or longer. The "Out of Love Club" is one of the many activities that will benefit by the success of the Salvation Army House Service Fund Campaign for $13,000,000 May 19-26.

P. H. S. Seniors Play At Strand

The High School Senior Night at the Strand theatre, next Tuesday bids fair to be a great success, judging from the large advance sale of tickets and the enthusiasm which seems to be prevalent. A splendid program has been arranged by the committee in charge, and it is safe to say that everyone will be pleased to witness it, especially when they can do so for the small sum of thirty cents, including the war tax.

A short comedy sketch, "Not On the Programme" will be presented by six seniors, who have worked hard for the success of their first dramatic efforts as a class.

Louise Doyle, vice-president of the Senior Class, and the daughter of Mr.
and Mrs. Frank Doyle of King Street, takes the role of Mrs. Whitney, who is very nervous over the prospect of appearing in a Country Club play, and whose residence forms the background for the play.

Helen Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eric L. Johnson, plays the part of Ophelia Jackson, a cute little colored girl whose mischievous doings make all sorts of trouble for her mistress.

Shirley Ingraham, Mrs. Whitney's neighbor across the hall, takes her part cleverly, and is sure to score a big hit. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Ingraham, Jr.

Theodore Jeffers is a scream as the colored plumber, which part supplies most of the comedy in the sketch.

Arthur McCarthy has the role of the dramatic coach, and plays it to perfection.

Walter Maney, in the part of the Irish policeman, does some clever acting in the last part of the sketch.

Chester Potter has been engaged to give xylophone and marimbaphone solos. Candy will be sold between the program numbers. All persons wishing to donate homemade candy may leave it at the Strand theatre Tuesday afternoon, or notify some member of the Senior class and it will be called for.

Tom Moore in "Thirty a Week" will be the movie feature for the evening, while musical numbers and other moving pictures will lend variety to the program. No better show for the price asked can be seen around here, as all who see it will undoubtedly say.

Shoe Association Head Agrees With Enterprise On Leather Cost Outlook

I have tried to dope out the leather situation from week to week not knowing whether I had any to agree with me or not. Conditions as they appeared to me it seems to appear to others, as by a clipping from the Boston Herald which I give below, as coming from a leading shoe and leather man. I have dwelt on this subject frequently and long, for it seemed to me to be the all absorbing part of the trade today. When we have added up ourselves, counted our money, figured our income or wages as the case may be, paid the high prices for everything, there is only one answer. We are handling more money than in normal times, but we have no more and I believe not as much money to count at the end of the year. Let us all quit fooling ourselves and settle down to the question "which is the better, high wages and high prices, or low wages and low prices? When I see what the laboring man accomplished when getting nine or ten dollars each week, raising a family and owning his house, and these conditions I can vouch for,
I cannot make myself think that labor today is doing better.

The Herald writes as follows:

Shoe manufacturers in and around Boston are struggling to keep the trade of leather up to standard. Prices for both men's and women's footwear have climbed sky high and are going higher. They are now higher than they have been since the civil war.

Such was the statement of Thomas F. Anderson, secretary of the New England Shoe and Leather Association, in discussing what he termed the most delicate and complex situation that has ever faced the shoe manufacturing business in New England.

That there is small prospect of shoe prices going lower for some time to come and that the scarcity of hides and of rough leather, which is in large part responsible for the peak shoe prices, may be increased by the lifting of its present leather embargo by England, was emphasized by Mr. Anderson.

During the last three or four weeks shoe prices have advanced from 25 to 50 cents per pair at the factory. So rapid has been the climb that selling agents in the West report price jumps following so closely on their heels that increases ordered by telegraph have become the cause of much confusion.

In certain instances while agents were quoting shoe prices at $4.50 to $5.00 per pair telegrams arrived at their hotel ordering a 25-cent increase on these prices.

In Boston increases are on about the same parity for men and for women's footwear. A real scarcity of certain lines of splits, wax calf, kid and the best grades of sole leather prevails.

Furthermore, inventories of shoes are by no means large and manufacturers are traveling along from day to day vainly hoping for a change in conditions.

In discussing the situation, Mr. Anderson said:

"Most of the shoe factories which are not hindered by strike conditions are endeavoring to run at normal capacity in spite of their handicaps.
Some could turn out more stock if they had a greater leather supply.
This nervous character of the shoe market is one of the most delicate and complex situations that has ever existed. It can be termed the reflex of the scarcity of supply in the hide and leather market.

$30 a Pair

"In New prices of custom-made shoes which ruled at $25 per pair have jumped to $30 per pair.

"It must be borne in mind that higher wages at the shoe factory now being paid also influence the price jump in shoes. In Brockton, one large concern now pays the same wages for 18 hours' work that it hitherto has paid for 50 hours' work. In Haverhill a 48-hour week has been granted and the workers are seeking a 45-hour week, with a holiday on Saturday."

Rapid strides are being made in perfecting machinery in the tanneries.
The war has made this possible, and I am of the belief that it is the beginning of a new era in tanning machinery. By machinery I wish to include contrivances to handle leather and doing away with so much hand work.
The Creese and Cook Company are moving their skins in the beamhouse with little hand work, and others are coming into line. Taking hides or skins from a lime one at a time is a slow process. Now a pit full is hauled up at one operation. Limes that can be done in the beamhouse can and will be done in the tan house, yes up to the finished skin. I am aware that some will answer, the processes beyond the beamhouse are entirely different, yes. But let us wake up to the fact that it is not, get our minds to working and transform our ideas which have been in vogue for so many years, into up-to-date ideas as have been started in the beamhouse. No one will insist that a skin must be shaved as now. The shaving machine was a 1000 per cent. improvement over hand work.

I believe there can be another 1000 per cent. improvement over the present machine. When the belt knife splitting machine took the place of the whitening machine in belt factories, it saved them a fortune each year, in labor, and the saving of the offal.
There was a 1000 per cent. improvement, and I had a hand in bringing it about. A capable man whose whole attention was concentrated on cutting corners would be a bread winner in any factory of size. Do you know of any such man employed by the tanners? There may be, but may be's get old in later months.

Horace A. Wilson chaperoned by Harry Batchelder is attending a convention of employment managers in Cleveland this week. Large concerns have made a department to hire help which has been beneficial. The Lawrence Company with 4000 on the pay roll are sure among the big ones.

The last parts of machinery needed to complete their power plant have arrived and soon the Hunt Rankin Leather Company will be getting power from the latest ideas in electrical machinery. A spray pond near the power house, cement sides and bottom, cools the water and incidentally may serve to bathe in. Shafting driven by sections, and the fact that machines do not need to be lined up, saves space. I understand that the saving in fuel is but little.

The Salem Chamber of Commerce on Industrial Relations is reminding employers in this section that they are now required under the Revenue Act to withhold the normal income tax from the wages of aliens. Treasury Decision No. 2794 defined the meaning of a non-resident alien for the purpose of the tax. An additional memorandum, entitled "Rules Defining Resident and Non-resident Aliens," gives further information relative to the measures which an employer must take to protect himself from liability for the aliens.

THE PROPOSED STADIUM

Every progressive citizen of Peabody should rejoice in the prospect of the proposed stadium becoming a reality by another year. What this great public improvement will mean in the physical development of the youth of the city cannot be measured in dollars and cents, but we are assured that the expense will be well within the limits of what the city can afford, considering all the advantages it offers. What physical training does for the youth of the country was exemplified in the rebuilding of the young men of the army in the past two or three years. An eminent authority declares that the army physical training will add on an average ten years to the lives of the men who were subject to it, and athletic directors in general have demonstrated again and again the advantages of physical training. A stadium such as proposed not only provides a proper place for the development of athletics, but a suitable enclosure for holding athletic events and other outdoor attractions. Peabody in recent years has been represented in football and baseball by high school teams that have been a source of pride to its citizens, and this year its baseball team is setting a pace that merits substantial support from every local lover of the national game and every believer in athletics and physical training in general. In the case of the Peabody stadium it is also proposed to construct tablets memorializing the deeds of its soldiers and thus promote loyalty to their country among the cosmopolitan youth of the municipality.

AMERICANIZATION OF ALIENS

In no city in Massachusetts is the problem of the Americanization of its alien citizens more important than in the City of Peabody. Here we have a large percentage of alien population, very few of whom have become citizens and thousands of whom are unaware of the general advantages of citizenship under the protection of the Stars and Stripes and in one of the most thriving and progressive cities of the state. There are a few Portuguese and Greek voters and a few scattering ones of other nationalities, but the number should be multiplied ten fold. Once the advantages of citizenship are brought home to these residents, a very substantial increase can and will be made. The A. C. Lawrence Company, with commendable enterprise and realization of its advantages, has already undertaken a line of work in this direction through classes of its employers who are instructed in the details of Americanization and citizenship at regular periods weekly. The Chamber of Commerce is also considering the question and the importance of the work should commend itself to every citizen having the welfare of Peabody at heart.

COMMENDING THE MAYOR

Hearty approval of commendable acts of public servants are equally as important as honest criticism of apparent lapses from the line of duty or what appear to citizens in general as mistakes in judgment. With that idea in mind we believe it is not out of place to call attention to the coal contract just closed by Mayor Donnell and compare it with a similar contract closed by the neighboring city of Gloucester. The comparison speaks for itself, or rather the figures do, with our own municipality showing a saving of several thousand dollars over the price paid by its neighbor down on the Cape. Through the shrewd business capacity displayed by Mayor Donnell, Peabody bought the best grade of soft coal for $8.40 a ton and a lower grade as low as $7.30, while for its anthracite it will pay a trifle over $10 a ton. These prices cover also the cost of delivery. For the same commodity Gloucester will pay $9.50 for its soft coal and $11.75 for its hard. As the local contract totals up to a sum considerably in excess of $50,000 the great saving made by the City of Peabody, through the business sagacity of its chief executive, is apparent even to the veriest schoolboy. In considering this matter it is also advisable to consider that Peabody has no facilities for water delivery from the mines and Gloucester has.

ROUND ABOUT

In the course of an interesting article on Queen Victoria a writer in the Boston Herald, of last Sunday, mentioned the memorial presented by the Queen to George Peabody, but stated that it was on exhibition in the Peabody Institute at Salem. Salem has a lot of fine things in its Essex Institute and Peabody Academy of Science, but the memorial is in the Peabody Institute here.

"You've got a lot of able young Republicans down in Peabody" said a prominent state official to a Peabodyite at the State House the other day, following it with the query "Why don't one of them run for the Senate. It's time Peabody had it." Come to think of it, there's a whole lot in what he remarked.

Even Salem is beginning to realize where the good things come from. They wanted a new principal for the Phillips-Bentley grammar school down there and after looking the field over, offered the place to Principal James J. Murray of the Thomas Carroll school.

Peabody is among the places prohibited from shipping green corn into the Boston markets this year by reason of its being the habitat of the destructive corn borer which wrought such great damage last year. Local gardeners may raise all they wish for home consumption, but it the borers appear among their crops and the state agents discover it, immediate destruction will follow. Those who took the precaution last year to pull out and burn every stalk after harvesting will doubtless find their gardens free of the pest this year.

In many of the smaller towns hereabouts may be noticed artistically-constructed and neatly-lettered rolls of honor of their soldiers. They are highly ornamental at present, but one hates to think of what a few seasons of exposure to the weather will make them look like. Peabody is going to wait and have something substantial and something that will withstand the ravages of time when it honors its gallant soldier boys.

"Apple blossom time in Normandy," as perpetuated in the popular song, hasn't a thing on apple blossom time in old Essex County this year, for the huge orchard bouquets were never more beautiful than at present. If the mass of pure white, pink and white and clear pink blossoms which greet the eye everywhere are an indication of the fall crop, a bounteous harvest is assured.

According to the bird on Nellie's hat the new luxury tax is no more popular in Peabody than elsewhere in the land. If inclined to disbelieve this statement, visit one of the soda dispensaries and listen to the comments, or ask the kids who have a weakness for ice cream cones. It's a great law. If you have ice cream in your soda or buy it in a cone, you pay a tax. If you have it served on a piece of pie, there's no tax.

Battery E of the 101st Field Artillery, generally known as the Peabody battery from the large number of Peabody boys who went out with it under Capt. Ernest R. Redmond, who returned in command of the Cadet battalion, greatly enjoyed the banquet, entertainment and dance under the auspices of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the organization at the Cadet armory in Salem. In connection with the event the ladies of the auxiliary, with commendable forethought, remembered the aunts of the deceased members of the battery. To the homes of each of the nine who made the supreme sacrifice was sent a beautiful floral tribute, together with gold-starred card on which was an appropriate verse. In addition, an invitation to be present at the affair at the armory was extended to each parent, and some of these were accepted. Mrs. Ernest R. Redmond, wife of the major, under whose direction the work of the auxiliary has been so successfully conducted, has proved an exceptionally capable manager and much of the splendid work of the auxiliary is due her ability and devotion to the cause.

One of the concrete facts which supports the claim that Peabody is one of the most progressive cities in the commonwealth is that the sum of $115,000 is to be expended this year in permanent improvements. Good roads isn't all that's going to make Peabody famous. Have you glimpsed the vast area of new sidewalks under construction?

No less a personage than Mayor Donnell is authority for the statement that this year's tax rate will be in the vicinity of $16.50 per thousand. And he ought to know if anyone does. Whatever it is, it will be worth it.

One week from today is Memorial Day and this year it takes on a new significance. In addition to paying tribute to the soldiers of the Revolution and of the Civil War, there's the memory of the boys who made the supreme sacrifice "over there" or in the military camps here to be perpetuated.

There's an old stone wall in front of the old Gardner estate on Margin Street. It's a fine old wall, but unfortunately it is used as a roosting place nights for a bunch of young men who think they can sing. What they do to the popular airs of the day is a crime. The cars and automobiles put on extra speed when they get in action, pedestrians hurry to get out of range, nearby residents close their windows, but the poor old stone wall has to remain there and take its medicine. Someone has said there are sermons in stones, but if these stones had the power of speech it wouldn't be sermons that issue forth. It would be cuss-words.

Motorists who have occasion to reach the Square from Salem are earnestly hoping the work of rebuilding Tremont Street will be completed in jig time. Those who qualified at braving the trenches and shell holes of Boston Street and came by way of Holly, Northend and Tremont streets are in a quandary just now. The North St. route from Salem is passable, but the same cannot truthfully be said of Boston Street.

Arthur C. Jordan, 76 Lynn St., a sophomore in the College of Liberal Arts of Boston University, is a member of the recently organized Boston University Orchestra and played the cello at the first concert given by the Orchestra, Wednesday evening, May 21, in Jacob Sleeper Hall. This was the first formal appearance of the Boston University Orchestra, of which David W. Wainhouse '22 of Quincy is the conductor.

The Old Flag

Off with your hat as the flag goes by.
And let the heart have its say!

You're man enough for a tear in your eye
That you will not wipe away.

You're man enough for a thrill that goes
To your very finger tips,
Aye, the lump just then in your throat that rose Spoke more than your parted lips.

Lift up the boy on your shoulder, high,
And show him the faded shred,
Those stripes would be red as the sunset sky
If death could have dyed them red.

The man that bore it with death has lain
These twenty years
and more,
He died that the work should not be in vain
Of the man who bore it before.

The man that bears it is bent and old,
And ragged his beard and gray,
But look at his eye fire young and bold
At the tune that he hears them play.

The old tune thunders through all the air
And strikes right into the heart.
If it ever calls for you, boy, be there—
Be there and ready to start.

Off with your hat as the flag goes by!
Uncover the youngster's head!
Teach him to hold it holy and high,
For the sake of the sacred dead.

—H. C. Bunker.

See Only the Glorious Future.

Like all observances of enduring worth, Memorial day must take on new significance with the passing years. It no longer stands for the "bloody chasm." That, happily, is a thing of the past. The ugly wounds of the Civil war have long since healed over, and their scars even have all but disappeared. Though some of the survivors of that day may still feed upon ancient rancors, their children at least have turned away from bitter memories and, forgetting the issues of a day long past, have set their faces toward the future with high hope.

The Little Button
How dear to the heart of each gray-bearded soldier
Are the thoughts of the days when he once wore the Blue;
When memory recalls each trial and danger,
And scenes of the past are brought back to his view.
Though long since discarding his arms and equipment,
There's one thing a veteran most surely will note;
The first thing he sees on the form of a comrade
Is the little Bronze Button he wears on his coat.

CHORUS
The little Brown Button,
The Sacred Bronze Button,
The Grand Army Button,
He wears on his coat.

"How much did it cost?" said a man to a soldier,
"That little flat button you wear on your coat?"
"Ten cents in good money," he answered the stranger,
"And four years of hard marching, and fighting to boot."
"The wealth of the world cannot purchase this emblem,"
"Except the buyer had once worn the Blue;
"And it proves to mankind the full worth of a hero—
"A man to his home and his country was true."

Then let us be proud of the Little Bronze Button.

High School
The motto for the Senior Class has been chosen and is, "Ambition is the Path to Success." A large number of mottoes in both English and Latin, but, because the class voted by a large majority to have its motto in English, those in Latin were set aside. The contest finally narrowed down to two, the one chosen and "No Victory Without Labor," the former winning by almost unanimous vote. Among the others suggested were "Push Forward," "Don't Speed on the Highway of Life."

"Flo-Flo" Big Boston Show

The present Boston theatrical season's greatest musical comedy success is the honor won by John Cort's musical sensation, "Flo-Flo," which has been crowding the Tremont Theatre for the past six weeks and has now outlasted all its rivals in the field. The reason for this is because it dispenses such fun and music delights coupled with such a costume display as has never before been exhibited in the hub of New England. Folks of both sexes revel in the famous lingerie parade in which there is exhibited upon beautiful young lady models the most ravishing examples of milady's frocks and furbelows in splendor.

The story deals with incidents in the life of "Flo-Flo" the model in a smart women's wear shop to whom come various characters, and she is the central figure of a love romance. The contributing personages on whom devolve the fun of the piece are the venturesome financial backer, the masculine manager of the shop, and the two wayward young men employed as floorwalkers. Through them the fun flows fast and furious.

The role of Flo-Flo is played by Rena Parker, whose beauty and voice stamp her as a real prima donna.

Out-of-town patrons are assured of special attention to mail orders. Matinees are given on Wednesdays and Saturdays.

NO WONDER.

Henry, how old are you?
Surely you haven't forgotten how old your husband is.

Well, I've been fibbing about my age so long that I can't trust myself.

Wallace Reid Braves Death In Thrilling Film At Strand

Like a picture with lots of speed for today and Saturday. The story and thrills, a real picture in which the hero not only takes his life in his hands once but half a dozen times or so? If you like this sort of a picture, and who by the way doesn't, you're sure going to like the "Roaring Road," which will top the Strand's offerings centres around an automobile race and it is some race. For a good part of the way the leading car races with an express train. The number of times the driver crosses in front of that engine and escapes just by what seems to be a hair's breadth will take your very breath away. And the driver? He's none other than popular Wallace Reid. Wally sure does snap his fingers at death a few times in this picture. Ann Little and Theodore Roberts are in Mr. Reid's support and no one could ask for better assistance than that provided by this pair. Aside from the thrills there is a very pretty love story and the picture as a whole is one of the best features of the season. A Mack Sennett comedy "The Foolish Age," and Marie Walcamp in "The Red Glove" are the other attractions for today.

Sunday evening will bring two of the screen's best liked stars, Ethel Clayton and Ethel Barrymore. Miss Clayton will be presented in "A Soul Without Windows." "Our Mrs. McChesney," is the title of Ethel Barrymore's starring vehicle and is an adaptation of Edna Ferber's famous stories.

For Monday only the Strand has secured Earl Williams in "The Man Who Wouldn't Tell," and Dorothy Dalton in "Love Me." "The Man Who Wouldn't Tell," is a powerful romance centering about a British secret service man in this country and who is taken for a slacker. Miss Dalton is seen in the part of a breezy Western girl who marries into an exclusive wealthy family who do not accept her until she has made a tremendous sacrifice for her husband's sister. Jack Holt plays opposite Miss Dalton.

Tuesday evening will be High School Night at the Strand and an excellent program consisting of a comedy sketch and pictures has been arranged. "Thirty A Week" is the title of the feature picture which stars Tom Moore. It is a lively, romantic comedy that is bound to please everyone. "Not on the Programme" is the title of the sketch and the various parts are cleverly taken by members of the Senior class.

"For Better or Worse," Cecil B. DeMille's big special will be shown next Wednesday and Thursday. Patrons of the Strand will recall Mr. DeMille's "Don't Change Your Husband" that played the local theatre a few months ago and was voted one of the season's finest. Elliott Dexter, Gloria Swanson, Tom Forman and Theodore Roberts are the principals in the cast.

Douglas Fairbanks in "The Knickerbocker Buckaroo" is coming soon.

MEMORIAL SUNDAY.

Division 11, A. O. H. and the Father Mathew C. T. A. Society will hold their annual memorial exercises on Sunday afternoon, May 25. Rev. Nicholas J. Murphy, pastor of St. John's church, will conduct the services at St. Mary's Cemetery.

All members of both societies are requested to report at their respective rooms at 2 o'clock on that afternoon.

The Union Drum Corps of Lynn has been engaged for the occasion.

The horse attached to the ice cream wagon is a man-eater. Last Monday Walter Van Dyke missed a piece out of his arm, and when he woke up he found the horse had it.

The Seniors have chosen their class motto: "Ambition is the path to success." The motto was originated by Helen Johnson. The class voted to have the motto in English.

The Juniors appointed the following committee to decorate the City Hall for graduation: Marjorie Taylor, Audrey MacDonald, William Dunn, Harry Rankin, Emily Mansfield, Susan Danforth, Alice Mulcahy, Michael Flynn and Alfred Wilson. They have begun their work with the assistance of Miss Loud.

Louise Doyle assisted in the office of the C. P. Osborne Co. a few days this week.

The Senior Class appointed Frederick S. Rankins of Lynn to take the large group photo of the class in front of the school.

It's surprising and pleasing the way the Senior Class is brightening up in their class meetings. There's pep and life enough now to run 10 classes. Keep it up!

That Salvation Army Smile

Several thousand veterans of the Argonne Forest recently entered New York harbor. Among them were several badly wounded Marines. One man, easily distinguished because of a coat sleeve that dangled empty at his side and a Croix de Guerre, was making his way slowly to the waiting ambulance when a Salvation Army girl approached him and offered doughnuts and coffee. "Now I know I am home," he said. "Those doughnuts helped a whole lot 'over there,' and first crack out of the box when we land, we find more waiting for us. The best thing about the Salvation Army work out near the front line was the smile that accompanied the gift. Those girls had a knack of wrapping up every doughnut and every cup of coffee in a smile. The doughnuts were fine, but the smile—that took the place of powdered sugar." The Salvation Army Home Service Fund Campaign for $13,000,000 opens May 19, to last one week.

SOUTH CONGREGATIONAL

Rev. J. G. Milles, Pastor

Church night, tonight (Friday) at 7:30. Subject: "The Call to Repent." The annual Afternoon Party of mothers and small children in the Vestry from 3 to 5 o'clock.

Sunday Services

Morning Worship, 10:30. A Patriotic Service. Talk to Go-To-Church Band and Sermon by Rev. John E. LeBosquet. Mr. LeBosquet is one of the brightest preachers of the day. His sermons have been listened to with rapt attention. All members and friends of the South Church should hear him on this coming Sunday.

Sunday School at 12 o'clock. Evening Worship in the Vestry at 7 o'clock. George Hutchinson will tell his remarkable story of the war. There will be Victory Songs. This certainly will be a treat and a large congregation is expected. Invite your friends not attending other churches.

METHODIST CHURCH

The Pastor will preach morning and evening. Sunday School at noon. Yoke Fellows 4:30. Epworth League 5:45.

The Centenary canvass has been far more successful than any one could have anticipated; with but few exceptions our people have contributed without hesitating a moment, and with large liberality. So far as the canvass has gone the people have been subscribing more than was expected. At the present writing about one hundred of our people have not yet been seen. When all have been seen it is expected that Peabody will stand among the best of all the churches in the New England Conference. The campaign ends next Sunday, though there will likely be subscriptions coming in later than that date. Fuller announcements.

There will not be any service in the church tonight. Our Minute Men and Centenary Canvassers have made for themselves such a reputation in the handling of the Centenary in the home church, that District Superintendent Piwell requested them to aid some nearby churches. They are to go to Danvers tonight as a return call to the pastor, Rev. Jonathan Carmill and his wife, who recently visited Peabody. Several automobiles will convey the party. Those who are to be with the party are requested to meet at the church not later than 7:30 this evening.

Peabody High Tackles Revere Here Tomorrow---Moquinn Stars

Peabody entertains Revere at the Park Saturday afternoon. A good game is prophesied and a big crowd should turn out to back the boys. Cheering, no matter what kind, would be a fine way to show the fan's enthusiasm. Graves will 'pitch' this North Shore League game.

Wednesday the local team goes to Winthrop with high hopes of keeping up its enviable record of being the leader in the North Shore League, Lawrence will be in the box for Peabody.

The Tanners met their first defeat Wednesday afternoon in a hard fought overtime game with Wakefield at that place. The score was 14 to 13. Unsatisfactory decisions were made for both sides by umpire Kelliher of West Medford. The ground was sufficiently wet to have postponed the game, but that condition had no more to do with Peabody's defeat than the Wakefield's victory. This game places Peabody on a par with Wakefield at the top of the Middlesex League. Wakefield lost to Peabody in the home game earlier in the season with a score of 5 to 4, and stands a good chance to defeat Wakefield again if it becomes necessary to best the Middlesex League by another game.

12 to 7 in Peabody's favor was the score in the 9th inning, a wet ball giving Wakefield a good opportunity to tie the score. Two more innings and unsatisfactory decisions gave Wakefield the lead in the 11th.

Peabody's lineup: Anglin, cf; Mead, 1b; O'Keefe, 2b; Moquinn, ss; Lawrence, p; Holden, c; O'Connor, 3b; Coffey, lf; Murphy, rf; Lynch, rf.

Kelliher has umpired his last game for Peabody according to Jim Gilmore.

A half hour argument over Lynch's catch in right field during the 7th, and then the decision made would have been sufficient to cause a riot had enough of Peabody fans witnessed it.

Both teams hit the ball hard, but no two baggers came from the Tanners.

Moquinn's fielding was excellent, and could not have been surpassed. Moquinn is certainly holding up his record of being the star short stop of Essex County. Lawrence knocked 4 singles. The cheering by the Wakefield cheering squad was a feature of the game. The squad was made up almost entirely of girls and they did great work in backing their team. Peabody could stand a lot of improvement in that direction.

15 balls were used in the game. There ought to be a big demand for fishnets in Wakefield.

Puska, manager of the local team made his first appearance in baseball uniform, when he batted for Murphy. Lynch's fielding was fine but he can still use a darned needle to good advantage.

The next game Wakefield should be played in Peabody. A record-breaking attendance would certainly be on the program.

STATE OF MASSACHUSETTS, COUNTY OF ESSEX, ss.

I, C. S. BATCHELDER, Cashier of the above-named bank, do solemnly swear that the above statement is true to the best of my knowledge and belief.

G. S. BATCHELDER, Cashier.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this CORRECT—ATTEST: twenty-fifth day of May, 1919.

BENJAMIN G. HALL, Notary Public.

My commission expires August 21, 1925.

WILLIAM ARMSTRONG, GEORGE E. SPAULDING, Directors.

Mayor Claims City Owes Him Hundreds of Dollars For Use of His Own Motor Cars

"Not a dollar has been expended from my appropriation for joy riding, dinners or anything else," declared the Mayor as he warmed up to his subject. He said further that he had lost an income of $6000 a year since he took office in city hall. "I want the people to believe I am giving them an honest administration. It is ridiculous the small amount of money which is expended by the Mayor's office. I am the only head of a department now that has no city automobile."

Explaining why he used the police patrol to take a party of friends to Salem, the Mayor said his own car had been sent to South Peabody to take home four women in the storm who had attended the meeting for Free Ireland that night in City Hall, and that the lights went bad and he did not wish to drive it to Salem without lights and for that reason he asked for the police patrol. He said his errand was to procure a lunch.

Some if the Councilors thought the address of the Mayor was uncalled for but all agreed that he could have the privilege of using any city automobile within his discretion and to employ the city chauffeurs if he so elected. Councilor Hogan introduced a motion which gave the Mayor this authority altho it is, freely admitted that he doesn't require any authority.

Citizens will generally agree that the Mayor is entitled to automobile service while in city business and at the expense of the city.

The Mayor also induced the Council to permit him to contract for an auto-truck for the city electrician at a cost not exceeding $1450, the money to come out of next year's budget.

When the Council took up the request of the Mayor for a vote of confidence some merriment was injected when Councilor Hogan declared he had once sent Commissioner of state aid, Richard E. Smith, to the municipal garage to secure motor transportation to West Peabody in the discharge of some duty. "He got the car, too," echoed the doughty Councilor.

The committee on claims reported an award of $75 to Robert Jacques of High St. for water damages to his house and the Council so voted. The original claim was for $200.

Because the law requires a highway to be laid out within a year after taking land by the city it was suggested that the city make arrangements with the Suttom Home to allow use of their roadway to permit passersby to get from Aborn St. to Main St.

Councilor Reed got in an argument to have Shamrock St. extended to Gardner Park by taking land on that street so that fire apparatus could have a short cut.

On motion of Councilor McKen the Council voted to request the Mayor to include $330 in his supplementary budget with which to buy land in Spring Pond basin now belonging to Daniel A. Booker.

Sundry licenses were granted last night without opposition save in the case of Barney Mamber who secured a junk license in Hardy C. Councilor Reed wished to be recorded against the license.

Opposition to two garage permits developed at the hearings set for last night. One was in the application of Leroy Felt of Clement Ave. dealer in spring water and the other was that of Victor Tkatchuk of 65 Endicott St. William P. Ryan of 14 State St. whose property adjoins that of Felt protested on account of the noise the heavy truck makes. On motion of Councilor Duggan the Council voted to grant the permit, Councilor Horrigan alone objecting. The other permit was referred to the committee to report back at the next meeting. John M. O'Connor of 77 Endicott St. objected to the garage license being issued to Tkatchuk on the ground it would be within 15 feet of his bedroom.

Under the head of new business the Council accepted a McKen amendment requesting the executive committee in charge of the welcome home to the war veterans, to bring in an estimate of the cost at the next meeting at which time money will probably be appropriated.

Councilor Duggan asked for a legal opinion from the city solicitor as to whether the Council had a right to transfer a jitney license.

The Council voted to postpone action in the request of Mrs. Gladness Daniels of Gardner Park that the city construct a granolithic sidewalk near her property. Councilor Ryan chairman of the committee of streets recom-

Peabody Slow In S. A. Drive

Ward 2 is without a leader, Lieut. Leo Murphy resigning the post of chairman yesterday. Ward 3 had reported but $50 up to last night and Ward 6 had not even been heard from.

Chairman Osborne sent out an appeal to the chairman of the various wards to exert their committees to making the house to house canvass. The dollar subscription is the popular one as in the Red Cross drives and the citizens are eagerly awaiting the personal call of the solicitors.

The drive ends Monday evening and Peabody is in danger of not making good in this drive unless the workers get busy and round up the dollars.

Harry Partridge at the Warren National Bank is the treasurer of the campaign drive and will receive subscriptions, and checks mailed to him will be acknowledged together with buttons.

Peabody cannot afford to fail in this last war drive.

mended this action.

The telephone company was granted permission to bury its wires on Lowell St. from Perkins to Endicott Sts.

On motion of Councilor Hogan, the Council voted to give him 40 or more barrels belonging to the city to be used in the Eastend bonfire the night before the Fourth.

Manager King of the Electric Light Department appeared before the Council last night and said he couldn't see how under the law he could spend any of his department funds to extend lights. He said he turned back into the treasury of the city $2000 last year which might have been used for that purpose. He said that not a dollar had been expended this year for new extensions. He reported the cash balance in his department as $2375.73.

Following Mr. King's talk, Councilor Brown got thru a motion requesting the Mayor to include $10,000 in the supplementary budget for street light extensions.

Councilor Sullivan put in a resolve requesting the Mayor to give a detailed statement as to the amount of Liberty Bonds held by the city and at what loss they were taken. City Treasurer Poor said the city owned $86,000 in Liberty Bonds, $85,000 being out as security for loans and the other $1000 in the safe deposit box at the bank. He said the bonds had to be included as cash and for that reason did not appear as a separate item in the balance sheet printed in the city manual.

WILSON ENDORSES SALVATION ARMY.

President Wilson, burdened as he is, found time to cable his endorsement of the Salvation Army Home Service Fund Campaign, which will be conducted during the week of May 19-26. The cablegram:

Commander Miss E. Booth, Personal, Salvation Army, 120 West Fourteenth street, New York:

I am very much interested to know that the Salvation Army is about to enter into a campaign for a sustaining fund. I feel that the Salvation Army needs no commendation from me. The love and gratitude it has elicited from the troops is a sufficient evidence of the work it has done, and I feel that I should not so much commend it as to congratulate it. Cordially and sincerely yours,

Predict 300 Votes In Ward Two Tuesday

Political dopesters in Ward Two look for a rising 300 votes to be cast in the primary next Tuesday when four of the candidates for the vacant chair in the City Council will test their strength with the electorate. The four candidates are putting in their last hard licks to line up the voters and get them out to the initial contest. They feel confident of getting out a pretty big vote at the primary. Fourteen new voters were registered last night.

Francis H. Sherry drew top position on the ballot at the drawing in the city clerk's office last night. John A. Jones was second, Leo B. Murphy third and Charles M. Boyle fourth.

Louis Glass, hailed as one of the ward leaders refused to be interviewed over the telephone by a reporter for the Enterprise last night as to the outcome of the primary. He was not willing even to hazard a guess as to how many votes his man would gather in on Tuesday. He intimated that the two highest winners were being counted out in his emporium while the Enterprise had him on the phone for he admitted the crowd was all there and at it. The Mahatma of Boston has little on Louie when it comes to keeping mum until the votes are counted. Quietly, however, Louie is cock sure that his candidate will win and may tell you so after 5 o'clock Tuesday. So much for Louie.

City Solicitor pro tem, Fay ruled yesterday that the name of Francis H. Sherry must go on the ballot and

Peabody Loses Thru Lack of Tenements

The scarcity of houses in Peabody has forced and is forcing many Peabody families to move to the surrounding towns. A real estate agent here gives out the fact that within the few weeks, three Peabody families have moved to Salem, and four have moved to Danvers. The reason for this necessary exodus is the very evident lull in the building, the last years, and the general trend of people living in the outskirts to move nearer the center. The conditions here are repeated all over the country in one of our large cities, it being necessary to build 11,000 houses to properly and comfortably house the growing population.

Assessors Add Million More To City Valuation

The Peabody assessors are the big triumvirate right now at City Hall. Unofficially it can be stated that the assessors have already added more than one million dollars in valuation for this year and their work is not concluded. Chairman Quirk of the Board is sanguine that the rate will be not in excess of $16.50.

It is admitted that Peabody like many other municipalities does not get all that belongs to it from property owners, not a small part of whom are non-residents owning farm land. For example, the assessors this year have discovered one West Peabody farmer being assessed for 17 acres and admitting that he owned 39 when the assessors made known their discovery.

Chairman Quirk declares that Peabody could make money by inaugurating the so-called block system of assessing valuations. To adopt this system which is in vogue in the town of Clinton, and in Somerville would entail a first cost of about $15,000 and would put into the field a trained corps of civil engineers who make a specialty of the block system. They would survey every acre of land in the city and

SALVATION ARMY DRIVE WILL START MONDAY WITH A BANG

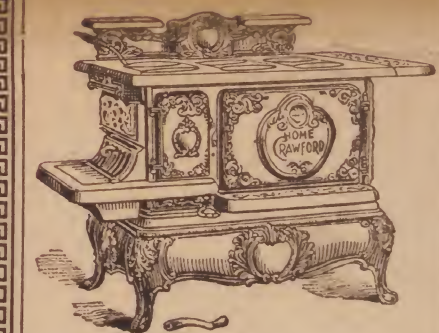

Peabody begins its drive for the Salvation Army campaign Monday and is asked to raise $3000 as its quota toward the national campaign for $3,000,000 for this wonderful organization that covered itself with so much glory in the war.

Chairman Louis P. P. Osborne has designated his ward leaders and at a meeting tonight in the Chamber of Commerce rooms plans will be formulated for the whirlwind canvass of Peabody homes and factories. The sum of $3000 asked for should be quickly subscribed, says Chairman Osborne, and he is confident that the grand total from this city will go far over the quota.

Peabody veterans of the war, those who were fortunate to get into the fighting lines know well what the "Sallies" did to appease their inner man with hot doughnuts. They know how the McIntyre sisters who have been awarded the "D. S. M." won recognition at the hands of General Pershing because of their valor in the face of German shrapnel and bullets.

The canvass of the six wards will be aided materially by the soldiers, and (Continued on page 10)

The familiar figure in blue uniform and poke bonnet is back home to serve, after four years in khaki with the boys "Over There." Salvation Army lassies served old fashioned American doughnuts in the front line trenches, and now that the war is over they will be found again in the slums and dark places of our great cities, ready to give a helping hand to men, women and children who are on the down grade. The Salvation Army Home Service Campaign for $13,000,000 opens May 19, to last one week.

their maps would deliver to the assessors a system that would far exceed the records of the registry of deeds in that the block system would account for every bit of land within Peabody while the registry of deeds where property transfers are recorded do not give this full record.

The initial cost of say $15,000 would be returned to the city treasury ten fold inside of one year, according to Chairman Quirk and his co-assessors. Mayor Donnell is known to favor the system and it may come to pass another year.

It is true that Mayor Donnell put Peabody on the map by good roads but is important to emphasize the fact that the men who made the good roads possible with a low tax rate, $15 and $16, were the assessors who performed their work as it was never done before in the history of Peabody. Small wonder is it that no element of taxpayers made any objection to the increase in salary given to the board.

Yesterday was the last day for the property owners to file their personal and real estate valuations. There has been a generous return of these papers and they will be acted upon right away. Some of the returns are held as equitable while others are declared to be amazingly low and will be disputed in the final allotment.

Forms which are sent to the Peabody manufacturers on which to file their returns to the assessors are held so good that the Peabody assessors have been heralded all over the state. In the State Tax Commissioner's office they stand high in esteem. The assessors of Woburn have asked Peabody to aid them in their work and Chairman Quirk and Clerk George R. Nelson will visit the neighboring leather city in the near future.

There is little fear of increased valuations except in the case of the property owner whose estate, personal or real, is found to be sadly wanting in amount. The million and more of extra valuation already uncovered by the astute assessors will prop up finances at city hall and help the administration to continue the improvements that this city is getting in streets, sidewalks, water service et cetera.

Savageau Saw Hardest of Scraps Under Gen. Haig

Among the many Peabody boys enrolled in the Canadian Forces is William Savageau of Farm Ave., who recently returned from the front. Early in the fray, he enlisted and after a short training in Canada, his regiment entrained for abroad where he has figured in the large drives in one of which he received his wounds. Savageau reached Peabody after several months convalescing in a Canadian hospital, his hand covered with liquid gas burns and both legs riddled with machine gun bullets. He was also gassed before being invalided home.

Since his recovery he has been engaged in building aeroplanes in which service the wounded of Canada are serving in large numbers.

Savageau who is in his twentieth year is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Emile Savageau of Farm Ave. A brother, Oscar, recently received his discharge from the Navy. After a short visit in Peabody he will make his home in Montreal.

The Alaska & Erie Refrigerators Are Made by Specialists

Specialists excel. And their service, or the product of it, is eagerly sought by discriminating people who seek the best in counsel or goods.

For many years the makers of these two serviceable refrigerators have specialized in construction, insulation, and ventilation. One, the Alaska, is made in the largest refrigerator-making plant in the world. Both refrigerators are the genuine product of the most scientific knowledge and the best skill in refrigerator construction. The combined sale of these two refrigerators is enormous. The Alaska alone being in use in over a million and a half homes.

We Sell These Better Refrigerators

Because of their superior economy in the conservation of ice and the preservation of food. We could go into the details of the making of the Alaska and the Erie, but that would make too long a story. You may safely rely upon our judgment in recommending them to you, for we know refrigerators thoroughly and we have chosen these two for the better service and greater value which they give.

Sizes range from the small apartment-house style up to the large front icer with three doors for use in boarding houses. Prices begin as low as $10.50 and go up. One model that is a favorite size for the family of four or five persons, holds 75 pounds of ice and has food chambers of ample capacity. Its price is $22.50.

Giant Stump Leaves Fearful Gash In Street

A giant tree stump removed from the corner of Holten and Main sts. last week was hauled through Holten and Sutton sts. on its way to the city land. In transit the giant stump tore an ugly gash in both streets laying bare the acadam laid but a few years ago. The act virtually wrecked these two streets as far as Quint's corner where the stump was left for several days until a second steam roller could be used in tandem and get it to the city land beyond. The tree should have been blown up by dynamite, say those who know how easy this work is done.

PEABODY BOY SHARES HONOR PAID BY GEN. "JACK" PERSHING

According to General Pershing the distinction of being the first Peabody soldier to arrive in France and also the first one to get into action at the battle front, can be claimed by Irving Blake, son of Mr. and Mrs. Warren A. Blake. In a letter published in "The Bridgehead Sentinel" a newspaper printed in Montabaur, Germany, in the interests of the First American Army Division, Gen. Pershing gives unstinted praise for the veterans of this command.

Blake is in Company A of the 28th Regular Infantry one of the units that accompanied the first American expedition under General Pershing to arrive in France. He sailed from Hoboken on June 12, 1917. He had enlisted in the regular army some months prior to the declaration of war by this country.

"The first division," says General Pershing, "has the distinction of having been the first American combatant unit to arrive in France and the first to enter the fighting line. From that time until the present its work has been marked by a high state of excellence and efficiency." Since the armistice the division has been in the army of occupation in Germany.

LOOKS LIKE HIS HONOR WAS STILL RUNNING CITY

Mayor Donnell and Manager King of the Electric Light department had a conversation in City Hall on Wednesday morning of this week and the upshot was the former's taking action to have his city auto painted with the city's name on the hood. The Mayor set 24 hours for the work to be done.

His Honor was on the warpath Wednesday and there was not a little consternation in City Hall as a result. After his parley with manager King he took up the matter of telephone or railway poles on lower Main st. some of which are located inside of the proposed granolithic walk. The city engineer's department supposed the electric light department had been notified to take action looking to the moving of the poles. The city electrician who has a mania for pole locations evidently had not interfered and the contractors were about ready to lay the new sidewalk all with the poles well in from the new curb line. The Mayor didn't see why he should act as inspector on the job and he said so.

Before the Mayor got back to his sanctum from the warpath he had been given the resignation of one prominent city official and another wanted to fight. Both are still on the job. There is a mean little conspiracy working at city hall, it is said, to which it is understood the Mayor is alive now. The conspiracy has to do with the ousting of a city employee who probably is not worrying.

Manager King will probably appear before the Council at its next meeting and tell how much or little money he has in hand with which to supply needed extensions of lights in various parts of the city. Councillor Brown has not given up hope of getting some more lights up in his section of the city. Practically every Councillor has a claim for one or more lights and some are urgently needed.

It's going some when the police patrol is called out to take the Mayor and some of the City Fathers down to Salem at midnight merely for the purpose of satisfying the inner man. This happened last Sunday night and is being commented on quite severely. As long as some of the opposition to the administration was with the party nothing will probably be said about the midnight ride in the patrol.

Some Peabody coal dealers say they have a complaint coming in that they were not given a chance to bid for selling the city fuel. One dealer wonders why it was given out that they would have the chance. On the Mayor's suggestion the City Council authorized him to enter into a contract without the formality of seeking bids.

With the completion of the new street construction on Walnut st. Agent Ray of the Board of Health should have the cooperation of the police department in seeing that rubbish and other refuse matter is not thrown into the street by the storekeepers of that thoroughfare. Councillor Hogan who has long argued for a clean up of this street has hopes of sooner or later seeing a transformation on Walnut st. and less of fire hazards. Excelsior and wooden boxes are piled between buildings today that, set afire, would go far to razing the entire street. Obviously orders should come from the Mayor for a clean up of property, particularly within breathing space of the sidewalk. A conflagration on Walnut st. would doom the city of Peabody on a windy night. The uniformed policeman is the man to give the orders to clean up and stay cleaned up to alien storekeepers who ignore the fire protection laws. It is up to Mayor Donnell to send along an order to the proper officials and the order cannot come too soon to the "safety and health of the citizen of Peabody."

The concrete paving on Walnut st. has been extended into English st. to a point just beyond the Greek church. It was letting that this added expense should be approved by the Mayor. At least one granolithic sidewalk will probably be laid to match the new paving on English st.

Contractors began the work of replacing water pipes on Warren and Aborn sts. this week. An automobile passing on Aborn st. ran into and broke two or three of the surface drain pipes a few days ago near railroad's store. It is said that boys rolled the pipes out into the street.

Wednesday was a big day for squabbles in municipal circles which probably avers that city officials are quite as human and grateful or ungrateful as other humanity. One of the squabbles occurred at the municipal garage where Supt. Sexton and Special Officer John Kane had a very warm verbal tilt. Wednesday he went to the municipal garage to have Supt. Sexton approve his jitney which he says has the approval of the Lynn police inspector, our old friend John Thompson, who for some years drove the old gray dobbie in the police patrol until the pesky gas wagons came along and relegated the horse to the farm. Kane declares that Supt. Sexton said he would refuse to approve his jitney and added that Kane would never do business while he was the inspector. Supt. Sexton denies he made the statement. There's likely to be an aftermath of the incident at the next Council meeting. Whatever the words, it doesn't stand to reason that Kane is to be denied a fair deal and a chance to earn a livelihood by operating a jitney bus that is far superior to some that have passed muster and are running between this city and Lynn.

City officials who use three-cent stamped envelopes to send a letter to a Peabody address have a strange brand of efficiency and economy.

Councillor Hogan, Mayor of the Eastend, is putting all of his spare time now to securing donations of barrels for the big bonfire planned for his district on July 3, the night before the glorious Fourth. The committee in charge of the big fire appeal to the manufacturers to aid them by free donations of barrels which will be carted away on notice.

City Electrician Vincent O'Keefe will be called on to pay any further printing bills he incurs in the name of the city unless he has the Mayor's sanction to go out of the city and purchase this supply for his office. Bills incurred by him with a Salem printer went through this week and were brought to the attention of the Mayor. For some reason the City Electrician has a grudge against the Peabody Enterprise. The why is not clear unless it is because this paper has discussed his strange use of the chief's car belonging to the fire department. Last year the city electrician read his report for the year previous before the City Council. Just why he did was never clear for he owes his

GOING LAWRENCE ONE BETTER

Considerable comment has been made in the daily press upon the action of the City of Lawrence in using the advertising columns of the newspapers in an effort to offset the unpleasant effects of the publicity given to the unfortunate incidents connected with the great strike there. The weight of opinion thus expressed commends the effort to set Lawrence right in the eyes of the public. But why wait to extol the virtues of a city until after its reputation has been smirched, whether justly or unjustly. It's the first punch that counts the most, and why not get in the first punch? And it's not necessary to use the columns of the daily papers to do this. Let every citizen of Peabody make it his business to express his pride in what his home city has done, what it is doing and what it is going to do. Tell the other people of Massachusetts, of New England and of the whole United States what a busy bustling city you have the honor to live in. They may not know that this city manufactured more leather last year than did the entire nation of Italy. Tell them about its miles of splendid roads and the other miles that are coming, and invite them to roll over these magnificent thoroughfares in their motor cars when passing this vicinity. And don't forget the schools, the motorized fire department, the flourishing industries and the countless other things for which Peabody is justly proud. That's not only matching Lawrence, but going it one better.

PEABODY RESPONDED NOBLY

As a matter of record, it is a duty to chronicle the fact that the city of Peabody again went "over the top" on the Victory Liberty loan, the fifth of the national calls upon its citizens for the wherewithal to pay its share of the bills of the great world war in which this country has played so glorious a part. Its quota was $974,000 and the response of its citizens totalled $1,175,000. As a matter of pride, it is a pleasure to record the fact that Peabody has answered every call that has been made upon its citizens, not only for subscriptions for loans to the national treasury, but for every drive for funds for other worthy objects since the war began. This is an achievement of which every citizen of Peabody has a right to be proud. Other municipalities have equalled this record, but none have excelled it, and it is but fair to state that not an inconsiderable number have failed to show the same degree of patriotism. When it is considered that the ratio of alien population is much higher in Peabody than in many other cities of the commonwealth, then there is particular cause for Peabodyites to take pardonable pride in their latest achievement, and to doubly appreciate the winning of the two honor flags, one for going across in this drive and the other for answering all the drives in the same patriotic manner.

SOMETHING TO BE THANKFUL FOR

Among the things which Peabody has especial cause to be thankful for is the fact that there has been no Bolshevik demonstration here, despite the fact that a couple of thousand or more Russians are domiciled within the confines of the city. According to a government official who has looked into the matter, the sentiment of most of the local Russians is against the form of government prescribed by Lenin, Trotsky and their associates. There have been one or two meetings at which the subject has been mentioned, but there has been no sign of the dissemination of Bolshevik propaganda and no attempt to spread the doctrine verbally. All of which is particularly gratifying considering the agitations elsewhere, where the proportion of Russians has been much less.

EVERYBODY'S DRIVE NEXT WEEK

Of all the worthy objects to which the citizens of Peabody have been asked to contribute, and to which they have so nobly responded, none is more deserving than that for which a "drive" is to be inaugurated next Monday—the raising of a large sum of money to enable the Salvation Army to carry on its splendid work on a more extended scale. Peabody's quota is the comparatively small sum of $3000 and it should not only be reached but tremendously over-subscribed. What the Salvation Army did overseas in the great world war is now a matter of history, glorious history of the wonderful self-sacrificing work of brave men and women. Theirs was no halfway job. Into the very brunt of the battle, into the trenches and among the wounded these noble servants of God and man carried on their splendid work. Other organizations did their share, but if one wants to know where the Salvation Army stood, all he need do is ask the returned soldier, any one of them. Peabody boys, numbers of them, were in France fighting for their country and its ideals. They were a part of the gallant Cadet battalion of the 101st Field Artillery, which hailed from Salem, and of the former Company H of the old Eighth Regiment of Salem, which was merged into the 104th Infantry. Many of the drafted boys found their way into casual companies from the ranks of which losses on the other side were made in various organizations. Each Peabody soldier has only words of praise for what the members of the Salvation Army did.

ROUND ABOUT

Making vehicles go to the right of the monument when entering Peabody Square from either Main St. or Foster St. is a new traffic regulation that is causing not a few motorists to be disturbed, not to say wrathful, for the traffic post diagonally from the post-office says go to the right which would take passing vehicles between the big shaft and Manning's restaurant. The other day patrolman Wiggin who is trying to avoid accidents in the Square stopped clerk of Court, Charles J. Powell, and addressed him thus: "Say Charlie can I get a warrant for an auto driver who doesn't observe the traffic rules?"

"Guess I can fix you up, what's his name?" asked the always genial clerk. "Charles J. Powell," replied the officer. "Wow, fireworks and sky rockets. That was different."

Then the policeman explained the new regulation and of course Atty. Powell is for seeing the "law" enforced. But what he'd like to know is who established the above regulation.

Five past Noble Grands of the Lodge of Rebeckahs observe their birthday anniversaries in May. This became known at the recent centenary observance of that order when five past officers were congratulated in open meeting. The ladies were Mrs. Jesse F. Barrett, Mrs. George A. Smith, Mrs. Robert J. Patterson, Mrs. Frank H. C. Lord and Mrs. William Mac Donald.

Anyone who hails from Peabody can take justifiable pride in the record of its High School baseball team, whether interested in the great national game or not. Six straight games, which was its record with the victory over Winthrop high last Saturday, is something worth bragging about. Let the boys know their good work is appreciated.

Wouldn't the old time bicycle road racers give three cheers for Peabody if they could stage one of those memorable contests over the present roads instead of what they were forced to push the pedals over. Peabody had a number of stars at that game in the old days, and way up among the top-notchers was the present member of the Governor's council from the Sixth district, James F. Ingraham, Jr.

Speaking of Councillor Ingraham, offers a good excuse for letting slip a bit of political information that may not be uninteresting, and that is that "Gene" Frazer of Lynn, who gave the local candidate a lively contest for the Republican nomination last year, is just bidding his time until the present incumbent gets tired of the job, and then he's going after it again. This is official.

A Gardner Park resident reports that on two occasions recently he has seen what he calls a white sparrow among a flock of the birds near the junction of Holly and Margin Streets. The sparrow is not exactly white, but enough of its feathers are of snowy brightness to attract attention and warrant the appellation.

Peabodyites who lived near the Salem line a score of years ago can sympathize with the citizens of Danvers during these days of license in the latter town. It was over 20 years ago when Peabody one year voted license and Salem went dry, and there were big doings in the vicinity of the line. And who would have thought it of Danvers?

You just can't keep the hustling young men of Peabody out of the "live" things these days. Take the Republican county political organization, the Essex club, for instance. James F. Ingraham, Jr., is a past president and one of its directors, Daniel C. Manning and Wm. F. Searle are two of its three vice-presidents. The latter was for seven years its secretary and now the directors have asked the assistant district attorney to take the secretarial duties upon himself.

If the Peabody councillors think they are up against it now and then, they should take a look at Salem and forget it. Down there the council appropriated $10,000 for a celebration for the local soldiers and despite the fact that a lot of the soldiers are opposed to the celebration plans, the council has got to go through with it. Under ordinary circumstances the thing could be called off and the money turned back to the city treasury, but so much expense has been incurred already by some of the members on alleged "joy" trips that the thing has got to be put through. There's a holy howl in the prospect when the bills are audited.

KEEP TABBY AWAY FROM NESTING BIRDS

The nesting season for the wild birds has arrived, and the commissioners on fisheries and game once more call attention to the necessity of keeping the family cat in control during the time the eggs are being hatched and the fledglings are helpless, either in the nest or when first on the ground. It is a matter of common knowledge that on the activities of the insect-eating birds depends, in a large measure, the success of the crops and the preservation of the forests.

One cat, which was watched carefully, was seen to kill 58 birds in a single season. Assuming that the average cat on the farm kills but ten birds a year, and that there are two cats on each farm in Massachusetts, we have, in round numbers, 70,000 cats killing 700,000 birds annually. And this does not take into account the cat population of cities, towns and villages. Song and insectivorous birds are sociable. They breed to a large extent in thickly settled communities. It is here that cats get in their deadliest work.

PEABODY'S EARLY HISTORY IN PRODUCTION OF GLUE

The above cut shows the Sanger liquid glue factory, the present site of the main building of the A. C. Lawrence Leather Company, as it appeared at the time of the Civil War. Peabody was at that time very famous as the home of Sanger's liquid glue factory, owned and managed by Justis H. Sanger, whose property at one time comprised 15 acres, including parts of Warren, Berry and Endicott sts. and practically all of Crowninshield st. as they are today.

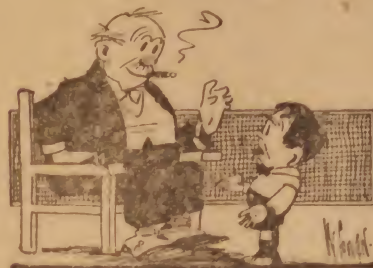

The Essex Glue Co., the forerunner of the American Glue Co., in consolidating the local glue companies, purchased the Sanger glue business, and the factory was made into a tannery. At various times, since its sale, about 1867, the factory has changed hands. Among the best known concerns doing business there were the Plummer and Kerans Co., the George H. Poor Co., Horace Southwick & Co., and the present owners, the Swift concern.

The large square brick building in the picture is the former Crowninshield mansion, the owners of which were engaged in the woolen business in Salem. At the time of this building's use as a residence, no railroad was near, and extensive grounds formed one of the most beautiful estates in this vicinity. No. A building of the A. C. L. Co. may also be seen in the picture.

Endicott Warren, and other short streets in that section were made from a filled land, Crowninshield Pond being considerably diminished in size as a result. Endicott Street was built directly across the pond, Mr. Sanger having given land to the town for that purpose.

Fire 43 years ago destroyed the carpenter shop and barn of the leather concern doing business there. The A. C. Lawrence Leather Company, since purchasing the buildings have greatly augmented their extent, but have, however, retained at least a few of the Sanger buildings in which such an extensive glue business was once carried on.

Former Peabody Pastor's Wife Wrote Story of "Neighbors" That Comes To Strand Next Week

The final episode of "The Lightning Raider," starring Pearl White, and Bryant Washburn in "Something To Do" will be the leading features on the Strand's program for today and Saturday. Everyone who has seen any of the preceding chapters of "The Lightning Raider" will surely want to see this smashing climax that discloses Wu Fung's treachery. "Something To Do" in which Bryant Washburn has the lead is one of the liveliest photo-plays seen here in many a day. Mr. Washburn plays the part of an idle rich young man, who finally wakes up and does some startling things in a most refreshing way. Mr. Washburn's pictures are always consistently good and patrons of the Strand will find that this is no exception. "Mules and Mortgages," a big V comedy will be shown as an added attraction and it fills out a highly entertaining program.

Maravene Thompson, the famous novelist, who is the authoress of many best selling books and a regular contributor to many of the leading magazines, lived here in Peabody for several years. Her husband was pastor of the Unitarian church. "Neighbors," starring Madge Evans, which will head the Sunday program, is an adaptation of one of Mrs. Thompson's stories. It is a charming story and everyone who had the good fortune to come in personal contact with Mrs. Thompson will rejoice at this opportunity to see one of her stories on the screen. Another big attraction for Sunday evening will be Edith Roberts in "The Deciding Kiss."

Undeniably the foremost motion picture star in the affection of the American public, if not in the world, Mary Pickford's talents and charm are universally recognized. In "Captain Kidd, Jr.," which will be shown at the Strand Monday and Tuesday she has a role in which she displays genius and pleasing personality more captivating than ever, and her great army of admirers will be unanimous in their verdict that it ranks second to none on her list of screen successes. Douglas MacLean, who made such a pronounced hit in "Johanna Enlists," is again Miss Pickford's leading man. A furiously funny Fox-Sunshine comedy, "Money Talks" and one of Spanuth's Vod-e-vil Movies are the other attractions for Monday.

"IMMORTAL" MARY.

Wednesday and Thursday will bring Enid Bennett in "The Law of Men." This is a Thomas H. Ince production, who ranks with Griffith and DeMille as one of the most noted directors in films. Ruth Roland in "The Tiger's Trail" and the Pathe News will also be shown Wednesday and Thursday.

William S. Hart in "The Money Corral," Ethel Clayton in "Vickey Van," Fannie Ward in "Common Clay," Charles Ray in "The Busher," and Marguerite Clark in "Come Out of the Kitchen" are a list of the special attractions that will be presented at the Strand during the coming week.

To the Editor, Enterprise,
Peabody, Mass.

Dear Sir:

The Victory Loan campaign is over. The complete results will not be known for a few days. The Liberty Loan Committee of New England will disband after two years of active work, and pass out of existence. It has been a remarkable committee, in that its personnel has scarcely changed in the entire two years. The same people have worked together, believed in each other, and had faith in the righteousness of the work they were endeavoring to do. Their accomplishments are a matter of history.

Before going out of existence, the Committee desires to thank you heartily for the help you have given in each Loan. Its spontaneity and its genuineness has been of the finest kind. Without the help of the press, no great campaign can succeed, and you have the satisfaction of knowing that in one of the most important of war activities, the financing of the country, you have been of material assistance.

PEABODY BOY THRILLS B'WAY WITH HIS VOICE

New York, May 1, 1919

Dear Sir:

Just a line to let you know that while I was in New York this last time the Victory Loan drive was going on and no matter where you went you would see them selling bonds. Well Soldiers, Sailors, Marines were doing all they could for the loan. I heard the Victory Quartette was going around to the different theatres the same as bands from the Army and Marines.

I went to one of the theatres in which the Victory Quartette was singing and they sure did score a big hit that night and from what I heard they made a hit in all of the theatres. My reasons for sending you this letter is that in the quartette there is a very popular boy from Peabody who has a wonderful tenor voice and he sure did get a hand when he sang a solo "Chasing Rainbows." I tried very hard to see him but we leave tomorrow. I would not be surprised to see George Jacques go on the stage after he leaves the Navy. As he has had a lot of experience now and that he has made good here. Young Jacques is well liked in Peabody, also in Salem, as I have known him for a long time. Well sir, you will please me very much if you will make a short story of this and print it in your paper. I will close trusting you will do this little favor for me. I remain a friend and reader of the Enterprise. A Salem boy.

I thank you,

Think European Hides Will Soon Start Plants

Prices of finished leather are higher than during the war and I do not believe that they were ever so high before. Raw skins are high and scarce and pickled sheepskins of quality are almost a rare article. Hides have jumped so high as to make the buyers hesitate as to what to do. Spread hides suitable for automobile leather sold at 40 cents a pound making them worth $25.00 each. Other hides are selling in the same proportion. Labor is being paid at top prices, and the only answer can be that shoes will cost $10.00 ante and no limit. Everything and everybody are in areoplane and like many of these machines they go to earth with a dull thud that kills all aboard. Are we going to earth with the same results, or is the government going to legislate to govern prices of commodities? It may be all right to try and run the whole world, but charity begins at home and there is trouble enough here to keep the biggest men the country affords busy to straighten out our affairs not to mention the millions elsewhere. I may be called an alarmist, and while I do not think for one minute that we are going over to anarchy, the fact that nothing is being done to reduce prices of living, only gives those who believe in anarchy a chance to sell their papers. My subject is shoes, however, and I will dwell on the fact that where it used to cost us, say $10 a year for footwear, we can now on figure on $30 a year, and why grumble?

If prices of hides and leather would stay at present prices, fine. Then the manufacturers could plan for a prosperous business. But they do not feel that these prices will be maintained, which will mean a loss on the decline. No one facing such a condition is going to deliberately lose money, and so many lines of leather are lagging. Perhaps the gambler and in all business one must be one large or small, may take the chance and should be one of the few he will make big profits. Indeed these times will give experience to the business man he never before faced, and here's hoping they all weather the storm.

Inquiries tell me that but a few skins are coming from Europe. But some are coming which means the beginning of a large supply. We of the United States are facing competition with Great Britain, and France is slowly coming back into the business world. They are going to purchase many skins and naturally those of their own will be the first. Therefore our imports will not increase as fast as some planned for. All these conditions keep up prices and how will they drop or months to come? It would be useless for me to try and dope out the puzzle, but I can guess perhaps as well as many others, and my guess is that raw material will continue high for many months, which means all of us must wear $10 shoes or go barefooted, which is possible this summer to say the least. Canvas shoes formerly $1.50 now $2.50. The only trouble with these shoes, they last minutes instead of days.

But with all this pessimism, I firmly believe that relief is gradually coming. The law of supply and demand has always ruled and I can see no good reason why it will not continue. As the months roll by our stocks will gradually increase and when the countries at war get back to the point where they can take care of themselves, then a healthy decline will bring us back to the days of 1912. It will mean hardship to many, but if the laboring man today will keep some of the money he is now earning, the dull times which will come can be weathered and they will not be before long.

The local factories are busier today than they have been for many months. Outside of A. C. Lawrence Leather Company and the National Calfskin Company the others have been dull. These concerns seems to have a grasp on the leather game no doubt because of their capacity, which gives them business which smaller concerns could not tackle. It may be the League of Nations will open bids for leather to supply the world. If so you can bet this concern will get a part if not all the order. If the present plant is not large enough they have land enough at Waters River to build.

Flexible splits have been selling freely. Many small concerns here make a specialty of them, and it requires little labor and material to get them ready for the market. Sold by the foot which has always been an exception, for like sole leather they are sold by the pound in other finishes, it brings up the argument as to which way is the best, by the foot or weight?

Shoe manufacturers are calling for special colors and finishes. It has reverted back to pre-war times, when it seems to me a stand could have been taken to stop so many varieties. All admit fewer kinds would be better for everybody, but no one has the punch to change conditions, when I contend the time was ripe after the war to do so. No one outside of the leather business can realize what it means to make many shades and finishes to suit individuals. Some shade may take with the consumer, but many times they are discarded after a trial.

In war has shown one result to say the least. It has proved that materials that formerly were used can be duplicated and substitutes get results. What appeared to be impossible has been done to make leather with substitutes that before seemed out of reason. Necessity the mother of invention did the trick.

TELLS STORY OF "IMMORTAL 26TH"

Y. M. C. A. Issues Book of Interesting Facts

"The Immortal Yankee Division" is the name of a combined divisional history, directory and book of statistics of the 26th which the Northeastern department of the Y. M. C. A. headquarters in the Little building, is distributing with its compliments. The book was compiled with the official cognizance of Maj.-Gen. Edwards, whose picture forms the frontispiece, and Maj. Hyatt, his aide, assisted in preparation of the material, which is official. A feature is "26 reasons why the YD will be remembered forever." A chronological table of "where the division has been" contains a condensed history of the organization. The vital statistics include the successive periods spent by the unit in the front lines, prisoners and material captured, the total casualties suffered, distance gained on different fronts and sectors occupied.

A table shows the identity of the various regiments, battalions, trains, companies, batteries, troops and detachments, with local organizations of various state services. There are also a list of battles, the present strength and the citations awarded the division and its subordinate organizations. The front cover bears the words: "The Immortal 26th," with YD insignia, and the back cover announces that one's discharge papers are good for three months' membership in his home town "Y."

Correspondence by the Ton

Paris, February.—Some idea of the number of letters American soldiers write home may be gained from the fact that a single item passed by the Y. M. C. A. Purchasing Department in one month was for 100,000,000 letterheads, and 100,000,000 envelopes, which are expected to last the soldiers three months.

PEABODY PLAYS AT GLOUCESTER

Peabody High goes to Gloucester tomorrow afternoon to play the High School of that city. While the Fish City team is ranked as one of the strongest of the North Shore League, Peabody's nine looks for an easy victory, which will be its eighth straight, with no defeats. Gloucester will play in Peabody June 14 as a part of the Welcome Home Day program.

Swampscott High met with an overwhelming defeat Wednesday when Peabody downed them with a score of 17 to 3. Lawrence pitching a good game for Peabody, gave the opponents only four hits, 3 of which scored runs. McCarthy, Swampscott's reputed wonder, was evidently out of trim, and pitched only part of the game. Swampscott's playing, on the whole, was very poor. About the only thing the first and second basemen could do was the hesitation. Meade's batting starred for Peabody, a double, a triple and 3 singles being his record. Lawrence made 4 runs, while O'Keefe and Moquin went around 3 times each. Lynch struck out twice, and was replaced in the latter part of the game by Murphy. Peabody's outfielding was of the best, Moquin kept up his record as a first-class short stop, and O'Connor, on third base, showed a big improvement over his last playing. This game keeps Peabody on a par with Lynn English, neither team having yet been defeated.

job to Mayor Donnell who appointed him. He declared in his report that he had given an efficient administration of his office. It was some report and the Enterprise passed it over without undue comment. O'Keefe is a holdover in office, and because he was in the war service, most of the time at Charlestown, Mayor Donnell continues him in office. He recently was called down by Mayor Donnell for handing in a bill for $40 for services of a stenographer. He said the work was important. The Mayor implied any further bills for such services would have to be paid by the city electrician. In passing it might be mentioned that O'Keefe is not an ardent supporter of the man who gave him his job.

City Hall attaches are wondering if the coming month of roses and brides will leave a vacant chair in their family midst. At least three romances with all the heart interest possible are said to be engrossing the attention of the City Hall attaches. Long live romance.

PEABODY CHURCHES

METHODIST CHURCH.

Morning worship with sermon, 10.30. Evening service at 7. Sunday school at noon. Yoke Fellows at 4.30. Epworth League at 5.45. Morning theme, "The Armorer Who Backed His Captain." Evening topic, "The Six O'clock Whistle That Toots Around the World." A Minute Man will speak at each service. The evening address will be illustrated, and deals with industrial conditions throughout the world.

The Centenary Canvass of every member will be made from the 18th to the 25th. Busy men have consented to take the time to make the solicitation, it is but right for them to expect that our people will be ready to make their subscription when these men call, and to make it without parley.

The Centenary will, during the summer send a relief ship to France and Belgium carrying clothing, agricultural implements, food, portable houses, seeds, cattle, and many other needed things for that stricken people. Its work is so sensible and broad that it is being supported by people who are not Methodists.

The gathering of the Centenary workers in the church last Monday evening was so successful and delightful that another call is made for next Monday evening at 6.30. Supper will be served so that people may go from their work to the church, and have sufficient time for the evening's consideration. No fee will be charged, but a silver offering will be accepted.

Under the auspices of the Wesley Class, the Beverly Musical Club will give its entertainment next Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. Three hundred tickets for this song-fest have been placed this far in the advance of the date, showing the appreciation of our people of this club, many of whom have heard its programs.

Children's Day is June 8. An attractive program is being arranged. Parents wishing their children christened that morning should arrange with the pastor before hand.

At the Sunday evening service at 7 "Canadian Night" will be observed, and all Canadians are invited to be present. Sergt. George M. Bradley, regimental quartermaster of the 1st Division Canadian Field Artillery will speak. Sergt. Bradley was in the service from January, 1915 to April, 1919. Nearly four years of this time being spent at the front. He has a wonderful military record. Having been in all the great battles in which the Canadian troops have been engaged since he entered the service, including Ypres, Mouquet Farm, Vimy Ridge, Arleux, Tresnoy, Hill 70, Rasschen-dael, Arras, Amiens, Drocourt, Cambrai, Hayvécourt, Valenciennes. He was with his division when the armistice was signed and after a 300 mile march crossed the Rhine, marching through Cologne, they took up a position at the bridgehead at that sector.

In spite of the fact that Sergt. Bradley has seen nearly four years' of continuous fighting, he bears but one small mark on his hand from a piece of shrapnel which is so small he refuses to call it a wound. That his escape was miraculous is shown by the fact that several who were standing not more than three yards from him were killed and severely wounded by the same shell. Sergt. Bradley verifies the truth of the reports which are current concerning German atrocities, having in his possession a picture of a father and mother who had been bayoneted, and having seen with his own eyes the bayonet wound on their little child which fortunately did not prove fatal. Sergt. Bradley's story cannot fail to be of interest to all and everyone should endeavor to hear him.

On Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock there will be a Woman's Missionary meeting at the home of Mrs. Gardner Viles, 72 Central st.

"UN-CHRISTIAN, UN-AMERICAN"

E. F. Albee, President of Keith Circuit, Bars Slurs on "Y" Work in His Theatres

Vaudeville performers in the Keith theatres have received orders from Edward F. Albee, president of the B. F. Keith circuit, prohibiting them from any slurring reference to the work of the Y. M. C. A. overseas.

"Un-American, un-Christianlike and a blot upon the intelligence and upon our gratitude for what the organization has done," is the way in which Mr. Albee stigmatizes criticism of the Y. M. C. A. in a letter addressed by him to A. G. Knebel, associate general secretary of the "Y" War Work Council.

He bases the statements in his letter upon information obtained by himself and the employees of his theaters throughout the country in conversation with thousands of soldiers. Mr. Albee declares that he personally knows "of the high esteem in which the theatrical profession holds the Y. M. C. A. and all kindred institutions that have done so much from the beginning of the war in the foreign countries."

He speaks also of the assistance that actors and artists have so freely rendered and are still rendering, to the Association, saying: "The Theatrical people, as a whole, have done splendid work, especially the artists, from the beginning of the war, and are still doing it, being active in entertaining the soldiers in the hospitals, at the cantonments, benefits of all kinds given for the relief and aid societies for our homecoming troops."

"The Young Men's Christian Association's devotion, energy and self-sacrifice," Mr. Albee continues, "has been so glorious and of such magnitude that one cannot believe that anyone would consciously criticize its great work, or refer to it any way excepting in the most laudatory terms. I have read some wonderful letters from artists abroad connected with the Young Men's Christian Assn. who have been entertaining soldiers, who deny that there is any condition existing in the workings of that organization which is not of the most liberal and humanitarian kind."

"Praise has been given to the workers of the Y. M. C. A. without stint, and to blame this great organization for the shortcomings of a few, would be un-American, un-Christianlike and a blot upon the intelligence and upon our gratitude for what the organization has done. I have talked with hundreds of soldiers, I might say, through my employees, we have talked with thousands of them, who visit our theaters each week, especially the wounded, to whom we give an entertainment one morning of each week, and we have not, up to the present time, heard one adverse criticism. On the contrary, there has been nothing but unstinted praise for the self-sacrifice and the heroic deeds performed as stretcher bearers and other dangerous volunteer work by those who went abroad in the service of the Young Men's Christian Association."

Lieut. Fyfe Has Charge Of Big German Prison Camp

Among the Peabody soldiers to win promotion overseas is Lieutenant Andrew Fyfe. He enlisted June 12, 1918, and a month later received his commission of 2nd Lieutenant and was sent to the Officer's Training School at Newport News, Va., for nine days, when he entrained for overseas. September 3, 1918, he landed at St. Nazaire, and was made Commander of Camps No. 2 and 10.

While stationed here, he was made First Lieutenant. When last heard from Lieut. Fyfe was ready to start for new quarters, St. Suplice, Gironde, where he was to take complete charge of the German prison camp in that section.

Lieutenant Fyfe is married and has two children, Jessie, employed in the office of B. N. Moore and Sons, and Andrew, Jr., a pupil in the sub-freshman class at High School.

St. Paul's Adds
New Society To Its Fold

Lt.-Gen. Rev. Dr. Barrow and Staff, visited St. Paul's Parish last Tuesday evening and instituted Co. A, 4th Reg't Reg't, Knights of Washington.

Staff of officers installed were: Commander, Rev. Dr. Francis L. Beal; Captain and acting Major, Ralph H. Beal; Chaplain, Arthur Smallman; Clerk, Thomas Burrows; Paymaster, Norman Hughes; Quartermaster, Richard B. Draper.

The new Company starts off with bright prospects, and takes its place at once in the regimental organization and work. The Knights of Washington is a secret order of men in the Church. Splendid in ideal and ritual; and of positive help in the work of any parish where working. The Order is very strong in the parishes of Conn. and R. I. and is being extended in this diocese.

We congratulate Doctor Beal upon his vision in thus planning for the extension of the good work of St. Paul's and the men upon this opportunity of enlarging their parish loyalty and activities.

every house will be called on to give something. There will be a meeting of the workers every night in the Chamber of Commerce rooms in the Five Cents Savings Bank building to make a daily report of their canvass. In Ward five, where Archibald A. MacKinnon is chairman, a delegation of young ladies have asked to assist in the campaign and they will prove a factor in the success of the ward.

Peabody pastors will be asked to give notice to their congregations Sunday of the impending drive for $3000 and the clergymen will make a strong appeal to have the loan quickly subscribed here and Peabody prove its endorsement to the remarkable war service rendered Uncle Sam by the "Sallies" overseas.

James R. Nicholson, past Grand Exalted Ruler of the Elks and member of the War Relief Commission of the Grand Lodge of Elks, has issued a personal appeal to every Peabody Elk to support the Salvation Army drive.

"I feel that the Elks in the section of the country which was the home of the Yankee Division," says Mr. Nicholson, "and which contributed so many thousands outside of that organization to the service of our country overseas, all of whom have returned with thorough and unstinted praise of the magnificent work of the Salvation Army on the battle front, will be disappointed, particularly in view of the splendid co-operation between the Salvation Army and the Elks in the past, if there is not placed with them a large responsibility for the success of the campaign."

"I am, therefore, writing to urge that if you have not already been approached by the local committee of the Salvation Army and asked to assume your share of putting this drive over that you get in touch with such committee, or else act voluntarily doing what best you can to help in as noble a cause as the world ever knew."

as most everyone familiar with the ward supposed it would.

Supporters of the various candidates are already counting their man across the line at the primary and picking him to win the vacant seat at City Hall which former Councillor Hardman scorned.

One of the contestants says that all he needs to get on the election ballot is 120 votes and he has them cinched.

Francis H. Sherry is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Sherry, 145 Washington St., is one of the four candidates out to fill the vacancy in the city council. He was born and has always lived in the ward he wishes to represent and is one of the best known and most popular young men of that ward. He was educated in the public schools of this city and after leaving high school entered Burdett College, Lynn, Mass., where he received a complete business education. He traveled for the Chapman Valve Mfg. Co., of Boston, for some years, but later entered the employment of his father who is in the grocery business at 161 Washington St. where he was employed at the time he entered the U. S. Army. Mr. Sherry was 33rd on the Peabody list and went to Camp Devens, September 21, 1917. He was a member of the A. E. F. and was in France six months with the 301st Field Artillery being attached to the Supply Co. and holding an important clerical position. The Supply Co. experienced a Hun Aid Raid at Le Harve and the trials and sufferings at the Brest Camp. Mr. Sherry has always taken an active interest in politics and

Jones was a sergeant in the 301st F. A. He was a star catcher for Peabody high from which he graduated in 1914. He is with the C. P. Osborne Leather Co. into whose employ he entered when he finished his schooling.

Murphy went to France as top sergeant in the 104th Infantry and won his shoulder straps overseas following the entering wedge at Chateau Thierry where he got his taste of gas.

Boyle in fourth position on the ballot is a former naval reserve man and was a candidate for Peabody Institute two years ago.

SALEM AFTER PEABODY MAN FOR PRINCIPAL

Principal James Murray of the Thomas Carroll school has been offered the principalship of the Philip Bentley grammar school of Salem. The position is understood to be still open for him if he should decide to accept the offer. The salary is $2300. Mr. Murray's present berth pays him but $1600.

It is known that the Malden School committee are also considering offering the Peabody principal a position, having narrowed down a field of ten candidates to three of whom he is one. Mr. Murray has proved highly successful as principal since he took up his duties in Peabody and his departure from the city would be a loss to the school administration.

FLAG DRILL BY GIRLS FEATURE GRANGE SHOW

The Peabody Grange observed "Patriotic Night" last evening with a most appropriate program, with the G. A. R., Sons of Veterans, Union Relief Corps and Ladies' Auxiliary as guests.

The flagdrill, under the direction of Mrs. Rose Barrett was a decided success. The following girls took part in it: Helen Potter, banner bearer; Ruth Elder, U. S.; Dorothy Tibbetts, U. S. N.; Dorothy Ferguson, Scotland; Bertha Punchard, Ireland; Elizabeth Viles, England; Elizabeth Hanson, Italy; Evelyn Wentworth, Belgium; Helen Potter and Dorothy Tibbetts sang a song of welcome to the 26th.

The program was opened with the singing of "Keep the Home Fires Burning" by the entire audience. The speaker of the evening was Charles M. Gardner, high priest of Demetis. Mr. Gardner is a very interesting speaker and his subject, "A Changing World" was a timely one, and proved of more than usual interest to the audience of some 300 Grangers and guests.

A very pleasing feature of the drill was the singing of the anthem of each nation as its color bearer came forward by Mrs. Florence Crofts.

The entire program, under the direction of Mrs. Rose Holden, was a decided success.

PEABODY WOMEN MADE BEST POLL IN VICTORY LOAN

Peabody's Woman's Committee in the Victory Loan far surpassed the work of the Committees of the neighboring cities, bringing in over twice as much money as did the neighboring committees. $90,000 was Peabody's total, while Salem received only about $40,000 and Beverly approximately $30,000. Besides bringing this amount of subscriptions, the Woman's Committee was directly responsible for much of the enthusiasm aroused over the Loan. Peabody's Committee was the only one in the County to carry out the plan of the cheering by school children, which the headquarters were so anxious to make successful.

Mrs. Lyman P. Osborn, chairman of the Woman's Committee, is to be congratulated for her executive ability in directing the work, while the individual efforts of each worker are deserving of great merit.

Helmets have been awarded to the following women who secured the most subscriptions: Mrs. Lucien Lewis, who raised a total of $27,650; Mrs. Anna Trask, whose work was done in Ward Five, $21,000; Mrs. Lewis Felt, 5,500, subscribed in West Peabody; Miss Alice Teague, whose subscriptions totalled 100.

Other workers on the Committee were Miss Grace Barrows, Mrs. Harry Hughes, Mrs. Eva Osborne, Mrs. Grace Madison, Mrs. Louis Nichols, Mrs. J. B. Palmer, Mrs. John Meagher, Miss Bessie Taylor, Miss Helen O'Rourke, Miss Louise Teague, Miss Annie Mc Carthy, Mrs. Regina Straus, Miss Florence Packard, Mrs. Walter Williams.

SOCIALISTS MEETING.

A public lecture will be given at the Leather Workers' Hall, 56 Main Street, Sunday night at 7:30, by Marion E. Spoule, Secretary of the Massachusetts Socialist Party. Miss Spoule is one of the best woman speakers on the platform and will have for her subject, "Socialism, What It Is, and How to Get It." Questions will be answered at the close of the lecture.

Motorcyclists Crash Headon

Hubert Chandler, colored, of Lynnfield St. and Joseph Annis of Bartholomew St., figured in a headon collision last night near Allen's Lane when their motor cycles crashed into each other. Both men were taken to the hospital, Annis suffering from a broken leg and Chandler pretty badly shaken up. A big auto truck is said to have obscured their light.

ENTERPRISE BEGINS ITS EIGHTH YEAR

The Peabody Enterprise observes its eighth birthday anniversary today having been established on May 10, 1912, the year that Peabody became included in the Seventh Congressional district. In noting the beginning of our eighth year as Peabody's only newspaper printed in the city we wish to thank our readers for their generous support and also our advertisers who have helped us to build up the paper. Our circulation has topped 2200 copies as a regular thing for months back which is pretty good proof that the Enterprise is going into a big majority of the 2600 homes in Peabody. The Enterprise unlike most weekly papers does not rewrite the daily paper that circulates within the city. Watch us grow.

WOMAN ASKS POLICEMAN VERY HARD QUESTION

This woman didn't know Police inspector Pierce but that fact didn't deter her from approaching him as he stood talking with several citizens on Walnut St. yesterday morning and asking him where she could get a half pint of whiskey. The woman had been imbibing. Just why she picked out the inspector is not known but she did and she grabbed him by the arm and put her query.

The inspector pulled aside his coat and exhibited his handsome new police badge presented him by his admiring friends and he informed her it was not the business of policemen to know where the aforementioned wet goods could be obtained. Then he asked the woman where she lived and she told him on Aborn St. He suggested she hurry home without getting the half pint.

Fitchburg Mayor Comes To Peabody To See Sweeper

Mayor Frank H. Fess of Fitchburg accompanied by Commissioner Hart of the Public Works, were callers at City Hall yesterday. They came here to inspect the new motor street sweeper and they were taken in tow by City Engineer Emerson and given a chance to see the sweeper in action. They expressed themselves as well pleased with it and it is probable that they will recommend purchase of a similar machine. Fitchburg has 15 miles of granite block paving.

HELP PEABODY TO WIN THAT GERMAN GUN

With anything like a generous response today and tomorrow by the individual citizen in buying Victory Liberty Bonds, Peabody stands an excellent chance of securing one of the German howitzers offered by the New England Liberty Loan committee for the greatest number of subscribers in proportion to the census of 1910. Peabody at noon today had nearly 4600 subscribers, the A. C. L. and National Calkskin Co. of the Swift interests alone recording 3300 of the above number. The captured war prize is for the city or town with population from 5000 to 20,000 which makes the best individual showing.

Announcement that this gun was to be awarded came here yesterday and it has set the committee harder at work in the two closing days of the campaign for it appears Peabody will go over the top as on all former occasions. Beverly with 461 subscribers and Salem with less than 2800 subscribers are being shamed by the city of Peabody. Peabody Boy Scouts will begin a whirlwind canvass of the city today calling at the homes. They are authorized to take cash in full or part payment, Chairman Lyman P. Osborn

GILES REPRIMANDS COUNCIL FOR HOLDING UP MEETING--- HINT SENSATION COMING

Peabody's City Council was delayed in opening its session last night just 31 minutes because a Salem lawyer was trying to induce the committee on claims to reopen a case on which they had reported no liability on the part of the city. As a result of the delay, President Giles urged upon the Council the importance of either holding their committee meetings some other night or else at an hour on Thursday nights that would not interfere with the meeting of the Council.

It took the august body just one hour to transact its business when it got started and most of the time was taken in voting licenses to sundry applicants including the jitneys. No more second story coffee houses will be permitted in Peabody, the Council voting leave to withdraw on one application from 23B Walnut St. last night.

Tuesday, June 10, was voted as the date of the special election in Ward 2 to elect a successor to Councilor Hardiman who resigned. The primary will be held as advertised on May 20. Two registration dates are announced elsewhere in this paper. Nomination papers must be filed with the city clerk tomorrow.

Reports of the committees found a stock phrase last night in that request for further time was asked and granted. All got by without debate until it came to the police pensions and Councilor Hogan declared the committee had had ample time and should make some report. Chief Grady was present ready to be called on for a speech and the occasion presented itself. Among the reports looked for was the petition of the street and water employees who want Saturday afternoon off and ought to have it.

Among the communications from his Honor, the Mayor, last night was one on a claim from Mrs. Adness Daniels, of Gardner Park, who wants the city to reimburse her for grading her land on Elgin Road and Margin street and also lay a granolithic walk 160 feet long in front of her property. The Mayor opposed the claim and it was referred to the committee on streets. Mrs. Daniels says she paid $398. for grading the city land. The sidewalk she asked for would cost $355. Mayor Donnell thought the work of building new sidewalks should be in the center of the city before going into outlying districts. The Council agreed evidently in the absence of any debate.

The Board of Health sent in an official letter to the Council in which they stated they did not consider Sanborn St. a menace to health and suggested the matter of cleaning up the street be referred to the City Engineer's office.

Councillor Sullivan who passed the buck to the Health Commissioners at the last meeting declared the vote of the Council to have the health department clean up the street was not being executed and he saw no reason why they should not get busy and post signs against dumping on Sanborn St.

The committee on sewers reported inexpedient to construct a connecting sewer for King St. declaring that to do the work it would cost approximately $5693 to lay 6000 feet of pipe from King St. to Allen's Lane.

Lester R. Brooks of 57 Pierpont st., was drawn as a juror for Newburyport on May 19, Councillor Horrigan picking out his name.

On motion of Councillor Ryan, one of the directors of the Chamber of Commerce the chair appointed a committee on transportation. This committee consists of Councillors, Horrigan, Sullivan and Reed.

Under a suspension of the rules on motion of Councillor Horrigan the appointments of Miss Catherine Gilroy and Miss Elizabeth Quirk as weighers of coal were confirmed.

Councillor Brown paved the way for Manager King to come before the City Council and tell how much money he has available for street light extensions in various parts of the city.

Councillor Horrigan got after the reporters last night for failing to give what he felt undue publicity to the fact that gas bills may be paid at Curtis' drugstore. The Gas Company advertised in both papers that it had made these arrangements for the accommodation of the Peabody patrons.

The Committee on Streets will confer with the Murphy Coal Co. with a view to having that concern remove its scales from the sidewalk on Walnut St. Some little debate resulted on this item of business following a communication from the Mayor that until the scales were removed the granolithic sidewalk could not be laid on that side of the street.

Peabody has laid in its supply of coal this year at approximately a saving of $12,000 over the city of Gloucester. Peabody is paying $9.90 for hard coal as against $11.75 by Gloucester and $7.30 for soft while the Cape Ann city is handing over $9.50 for the same commodity.

The Seagrave chemical which has long been out of commission is due to arrive back in Peabody tomorrow and will at once be put into service.

The Boston and Maine railroad is said to be ready to deed enough land in front of the depot to the city for the proposed comfort station. It is understood that the railroad take kindly to the suggestion that the city build a concrete paving from Central St. around the entrance to the depot, Mayor Donnell expected to have a conference today with the railroad officials.

The illuminated city clock on the South Church is due to record time not later than Monday NEXT.

Ward 5 playground is likely to be abolished and Ward 4 playground be given a park that will be a credit to the city. Ward 2 playground will probably be offered for sale. The stadium as a Memorial for the Peabody soldiers and sailors is pretty sure to be built on Emerson Park. A landscape gardener is to present plans for Ward 4 playground transformation.

There's a sensation coming at City Hall.

Elsie Ferguson Is Headliner At Popular Strand

Shirley Mason in "The Rescuing Angel," the play in which Billie Burke stood them up for over a year on Broadway, will head the Strand bill for today and Saturday. This is a gay, charming, delightfully witty comedy drama of the most pleasing sort, wherein humor, action and heart appeal are cleverly interwoven. The acting of Miss Mason in the role of the naughty little bride is immense, and a very capable supporting cast hold up their end in fine style. The fourteenth episode of Pearl White in "The Lightning Raider," is the second attraction for today. This serial reaches its biggest climax in this episode and those who have been following it cannot afford to miss this chapter. "Damsels and Dandys" a big V comedy will be an added feature for today and Saturday.

CHARLES RAY

Monday and Tuesday the Strand will offer a double feature bill that ranks among the best ever presented to the public of Peabody. Just what constitutes a good picture depends entirely upon the opinion of the individual. It is safe to say, however, that everyone will like "Eyes of the Soul," starring Elsie Ferguson, and equally safe to say everyone will like "The Homebreaker," starring Dorothy Dalton. "Eyes of the Soul," is the story of a chorus girl who has many wealthy admirers; one of them has succeeded in extracting a promise from her to marry him. Later she meets a blind soldier who lost his sight in the war. Her heart first melts with pity and compassion for him and that compassion eventually turns into love. Its emotional appeal is so powerful that few dry eyes will be in evidence at the close of the picture. It simply wrings the heart and brings out the tears, not the sort that bring a bitter taste but the kind that bring happiness. No one can see this picture without realizing what a tremendous force for good the movies are. "The Homebreaker," Dorothy Dalton has the part of a traveling saleswoman, she discharges her duty in the most surprising way.

Sunday evening an unusually good Sunday bill, headed by Earl Fox in "From Two To Six" will be presented. In this picture the leading man is married to the heroine within 15 minutes after meeting her for the first time. Kitty Gordon in "The Interloper" is the second feature. Charles Ray in his latest offering "Greased Lightning" will head the Wednesday and Thursday program. New York critics who have seen this picture claim it is even better than "The Girl Dodger," the biggest hit Mr. Ray ever made.

Cecil B. DeMille's special "For Better or Worse" and Enid Bennett in "The Law of Men" will be shown at the Strand at an early date.

Three Busy Stores---Beverly, Salem, Gloucester

Yes, dreams do come true

Many a lovely maiden has dreamed fondly of a beautiful June wedding in which she would be the charming bride; then of having a pretty home furnished as she would like to have it and of happiness supreme. With the approach of these delightful summer days of roses and sunshine, her sweet dreams will come true. This good store—the favorite of many brides and grooms—is ready to furnish homes comfortably, prettily and inexpensively, too. We are pleased to make the following

Suggestions for Her Home

Her Kitchen—For this important room we would suggest that she and he have "set up" in it one of the good Crawford ranges with its wonderful "Single damper" that saves much coal. We would like to have them see the "Fairy" Crawford. It is a full 8 inch range with mantle shelf. Also the Crawford has cup-joint flues which carry the heat to all parts of the oven alike. That's one reason why the Crawford is the best baker. The Cost of this best-of-all ranges is $65.50.

Her Chamber—We would mention this pretty one of our matched chamber suites; all of which pieces are finished beautifully in dark mahogany. Besides the beauty of its finish there is a charm in its simple straight lines. The suite consists of a panel wood bed, dresser with 4 drawers and mirror, toilet table with triple mirror and drawer, chiffonier with mirror and 6 drawers. Total cost of this fine suite $111.50.

Important—The above furniture is merely suggested to the bride and groom and splendidly illustrates the good values which we have for their delightful selection in furnishing their new home.

We have a comprehensive stock of ranges and other kitchen furniture, of odd and matched beds, including iron and brass, dressers, chiffoniers and toilet tables. Likewise a variety of furniture for the living and dining-room. All of it is priced upon the low cost basis of small profits and being purchased in large quantities for our 3 busy stores. Besides being advantageous to buy it is most delightful to live with because it is dependable and in good taste.

Peabody High takes on the strong Winthrop nine tomorrow afternoon at the park, and a large crowd should turn out to this game as the local team has shown itself worthy of being supported. It is yet to be beaten.

Winthrop has one of the fastest teams in the North Shore league, but Peabody is confident of upholding its reputation as an unbeatable nine. This game was at first scheduled to take place in Winthrop today.

Swampscott played a splendid game at the park, Wednesday, but to no avail. Peabody winning in the 11th inning with a score of 4 to 3 by Anglin's home run. Graves pitched the first of the game; Lawrence took the box in the ninth and pitched three innings.

The lineup was as follows: Anglin, cf; Meade, 1b; Moquin, ss; O'Keefe, 2b; Lawrence, (Conde, Lynch) lf; Holden, c; O'Connor, 3b; Coffey (Munroe), rf; Graves (Lawrence), p. Bases on balls, Graves 2; Lawrence. Two-base hits, Moquin, 2; Lawrence. Three-base hits, Moquin. Double plays, Meade-Moquin. Struck out, Graves, 3; Lawrence, 3.

The schedule has been partly revised, and Peabody will now have a better chance to play to advantage, especially financial advantage. The following changes have been made: Peabody at Gloucester, Saturday, May 17; Gloucester at Peabody, Saturday, June 14. The following changes are being made: Peabody at Reading, Saturday, May 31; Lynn English at Peabody, Friday, May 30.

EVERYBODY LIKES IT

WHAT DO YOU THINK OF THIS?

Some years ago we tried to sell a man some accident insurance.—But didn't.
He said he didn't need it; didn't expect ever to be hurt and would take the chance.—He did.
About a year ago he said he was away ahead of the game.—He was. That is, he hadn't for years been paying premiums "for nothing" and figured he was $500—to the good, but he didn't have the $500.—In the bank. Then the old law of average got busy. An automobile hit him.—Hit him hard, too. They put him in a nice clean hospital room at $35—per, and got a good-looking nurse at $25—per, and a highly trained surgeon.—And everything. After a few days of blissful unconsciousness he began to wonder where "it" would all come from. We couldn't help him.—Then. In about six weeks they turned him over, all fixed up, to his creditors.—He is still with them. He is trying to pay his debts, and finds it.—Slow, hard work.

MORAL: Secure the insurance—pay for it in advance. It's easier.

Corp. Horrigan Lost Bunkie At Argonne Forest

Thomas Horrigan nephew of Councilor Horrigan of this city was a member of the 77th Liberty Division that covered itself with all kinds of glory in the most terrific fighting at Argonne. Horrigan was sent from Camp Devens to Camp Upton, N. Y. where he was assigned to the 77th division and went overseas in May, 1918. There was no stopping his division and it was headed for the Argonne district once its overseas training had been perfected.

The first man killed in the regiment to which Horrigan belonged was his bunkie. A high explosive shell landed and they counted the poor fellow's remains in tiny pieces, his dog medal or disc bearing his number alone providing the identification. Horrigan was a member of headquarters division and following the armistice worked in the postoffice department under a sergeant who was a well-known postal clerk. The 77th Division was made up almost wholly of men from New York state and for that reason was given a monstrous welcome home Tuesday in the Metropolis. It was the biggest parade New York had seen since early in the war. The division included a greater number of men of foreign birth than any other fighting unit to represent this country in the great war. Nearly 2400 men were killed or died from wounds.

Of all the divisions that fought under Pershing in France, none was more democratic, army officers said, and even the commander, Maj. Gen. Robert Alexander, decorated for bravery on the field of battle, rose from the ranks. The 45 officers and 112 privates who were awarded the distinguished service cross, included all nationalities. Untried, hastily trained soldiers, many of whom never knew a real patriotism for their adopted country, proved their stalwart Americanism under fire and, officers said, justified the "melting pot" clerk of New York City.

When he got ready to come home some weeks ago he was wearing a pair of hob-nail shoes. He was willing to wear them despite his willingness to exchange them for something a bit more comfortable and great was his pleasure when Chaplain Sheridan with whom as mail orderly he had become familiar presented him with a pair of his own. These the Peabody boy wore home.

He returned to Camp Upton last Sunday and paraded with his famous division Tuesday of this week. He is expected to get his discharge at Camp Devens within a few days.

Simpson Bros. Get Contract For Building Railroad Ave--- Romance Budding At City Hall

The city of Lynn borrowed a copy of the Peabody jitney license and inspection papers to model its own by. Mayor Creamer ought to get Mayor Donnell's formula for rebuilding streets so that a boulevard might connect the Peabody line at Lynn St. to Central Square in the City of Shoes.

Apologies of street construction a contract was awarded this week to Simpson Bros. for rebuilding railroad Ave. Nobody has yet seen a retraction made of the statement credited to a representative of the above concern which so boldly declared the city of Peabody had given a competitor a contract at an excess value of $12,000 over one submitted by Simpson Bros.

Mayor Donnell publicly declared before the Council not so long ago that he would refuse to sign any more contracts for Simpson Bros. until the retraction was forthcoming. Anyway, the grass is getting greener. Peabody shippers who use railroad Ave. will be glad to see the needed pavement coming to that busy thoroughfare.

Simpson Bros. have repaired parts of Foster St. this week and a decided improvement is registered in some needed spots of the old construction. It is possible that the railroad tracks of the Bay State on Foster St. may be paved the balance of the street from where the work stopped last year. Maybe the trustees of the now state controlled road will open the purse and pay for the work, too.

City Engineer Emerson has his gray car back on duty and it is conspicuously painted "City of Peabody, City Engineer" in three inch gold letters on the hood of the roadster. Councilor Hogan is probably elated.

Chairman Lyman P. Osborn of the Victory Liberty Loan committee is warm in his praise for Mayor Donnell whose personal appeals to many of the manufacturers have recorded substantial contributions to Peabody's quota.

The city of Salem has started the work of the annual cleaning out of the truck power line and instead of starting at the Peabody line began the work at the other end. Peabody is waiting to see the results.

Until Peabody soldiers and sailors comply with the war department and register at City Hall on their discharge from the service this city cannot accurately announce how many valiant sons were in the army and navy and other branches of the war service. Voluntary enlistments were numerous and not a few of these are unknown to local authorities.

The City Manuals are in big demand, according to information at the City Clerk's office. The book contains the city charter and in addition its brief sketch of Peabody has a complete roster of the city officials. The Mayor has authorized the committee to have a number of copies bound in leather for exchange with other cities. Now if the Mayor will issue a financial statement there isn't much left to do in his waning administration except to see that the illuminated city clock gets into play before Flag Day, June 14.

The Civil Service Commission has set May 20 as the date for an examination of applicants for the position of repairman and chauffeur in the service of the municipal garage in Peabody at a salary of $3.50 per day. "The service appears to be for six months," the Commission states. Applicants are required to possess a chauffeurs' license.

The examination will include training and experience, and practical questions to test applicants' ability to perform the work of repairman. Applicants are required to obtain a mark of at least 65% in experience and in practical questions. Supplementary practical tests may also be given. Special officer Bob Kane says the job is his.

Traffic rules which are adopted by any city regulating automobiles and other motor conveyances have to be approved by the state highway commission before they can be made a legal basis of action in any court. How about Peabody's.

Ex-City Marshal Lehan of Salem, now an inspector on the force was a visitor in Peabody Wednesday afternoon and got the fright of his life when the machine in which he was headed for home was called on to make a quick stop in Peabody Square to escape running down a mother and baby in arms. A three year old girl ran directly in front of his car but the brakes were working and no mishap resulted except that the popular police inspector lost a couple years of his life by the incident.

Michael A. Boyle formerly in the junk business who sent four of his sons to war, three seeing service in France, is protecting Peabody's water supply by patrolling Spring pond. He went on the job last week and there.

There were two days pay waiting for Capt. Osborne Palmer at City Hall for services rendered in the department of the city engineer some weeks ago. The Peabody engineer who saw service at Cambrai where the American engineers used shovels and picks to combat the Huns has entered the employ of Simpson Bros. on some of their local contracts for the city. Capt. Palmer would have made a good man for the city to retain in its employ.

John O'Brien is proving the right man in the place of keeping Peabody Square and approaches in a slightly condition. His brooms sweep so clean they refuse to last long on the job. I have heard quite a few compliments for the way in which he is handling the job.

It is reported that a romance is budding in City Hall. It is a secret right now but they say that it is a topic of debate whenever some of the fair sex attaches gather to munch pilot crackers borrowed from the police department. Lunch is at 3:30. Of the romance, more anon.

One of those pesky hints stalking in the corridors of City Hall now is a possible $18 tax rate for this year. Improvements take money and Peabody need them.

It Can Be Done.

PEABODY ENTERPRISE

Founded May 10, 1912.
PUBLISHED EVERY FRIDAY.

FRANK W. PENNIMAN Publisher
NEWELL W. PENNIMAN Advertising Manager Publishing Office, 27 Lowell Street, Peabody.
Entered as second-class matter May 10, 1912, at the postoffice at Peabody Massachusetts, under the act of March 3, 1879.

FAIR DEAL FOR EMERSON

It is understood that Mayor Donnell will shortly send to the Council the name of Frank Emerson as city engineer and prompt confirmation will be forthcoming, it is conceded. And why not? In sending in his name, Mayor Donnell will be but renewing an appointment that he made in 1917 and which failed of confirmation because of personal spite not to say vindictiveness on the part of one or more Councillors. If Frank Emerson is good enough city engineer to supervise the construction of street work and to attend to the multiple duties in other directions which attach to his office then he is good enough to deserve the appointment at the hands of Mayor Donnell than whom no man in close touch with municipal business has been louder in praise or apparently more sincere in bestowing the credit on Emerson that this city official has seemed to merit for his stewardship. Every intelligent citizen of Peabody in touch with "doings" at City Hall knows that personal spite, some of the yellowest sort, has been directed against Engineer Emerson. Mayor Donnell believed Emerson worth $3000 salary else he would not have sent in that amount in his budget this year. The first two years of the city, Peabody expended nearly $240,000 on new streets and Engineer Emerson had the supervision. He was the man who saw that the contractors delivered the goods. The building of these streets put Peabody on the map from which it had been blotted out by poor roads. Mr. Emerson appears to be delivering the goods now. If he is worthy to be kept in the office he holds, then he is worthy to be given an appointment, and it's pretty certain that Mayor Donnell will do the decent thing.

ERECT THE FLAGPOLE

Councillor Hogan's motion that the deposed flagpole for many years at the junction of Chestnut and Lowell streets be set up on Emerson Park ought to find prompt action on the part of the proper city officials. The proposed new location is admirable and the pole, one of the largest in all Essex County, could be seen flying Old Glory from most every section of the city. It can be placed permanently on city land and should be placed so that it will not hinder erection of a stadium on Emerson Park if that site is selected. The flagpole as the Eastend Councillor contends, should be erected ready for service on Flag Day, June 14, when Peabody formally welcomes home her brave fighting sons from the war service. It is a pity to have this excellent flagpole unused when such a favorable location as Emerson Park is beckoning to the pole.

GIVE A BOOK

To care for the American forces in France and the Army of Occupation in Germany, the American Library Association is planning to deliver an additional 750,000 books in France before July 1. To meet the need, the A. L. A. has found it necessary to call upon the American people for half a million books. The balance of 250,000 books is expected to come from the libraries in American camps which are closing. Librarian Keefe of the Peabody Institute echoes the appeal for donations in this city. Just why the association has found it necessary to call for fresh reading matter in addition to the two and one quarter million books which have already been shipped overseas is disclosed by the fact that books in military service undergo extraordinary hard usage. It is estimated that a book in war service wears out seven times as fast as a book issued by a public library. A popular book of fiction in camp or in the field is practically fit for the discard when it has been issued to four men, whereas the same book in a public library would not show the same degree of wear until it had been issued 30 times. It is the books by authors popular with men, the volumes that wear out rapidly, of which the American Library Association is most in need to aid the forces overseas to while away the weary hours of waiting. A list of authors especially in demand includes such writers as Rex Beach, B. M. Bower, Edgar Rice Burroughs, Zane Grey, Henry Herbert Knipps, O. Henry, Peter B. Kyne, E. Phillips Oppenheim, Mary Roberts Reinhardt, Bertrand W. Sinclair, Booth Tarkington, Steward Edward White, Harry Leon Wilson and Harold Bell Wright. The American Library Association has practically unlimited tonnage for the shipment of books and magazines. Books brought into the public library will be shipped within 48 hours to one of the overseas dispatch offices of the A. L. A. on the Atlantic seaboard and in course of several weeks will be in the hands of the men who need them.

OWN A HOME - BUILD NOW!

Ambitions may be realized in your children if you have the home environment which transmits to them the ambition. The basic need is a home and the sense of shelter and security which goes with ownership. If there were no other arguments worth while men would be more than justified in building and owning their own homes for the children's sake. Like father like son! The next generation will not be a home-owning ones if the present generation doesn't show the benefits of home owning and inculcate the home-owning ambition. If you are determined that John and Mary shall have a fair show to make good on your ambitions for them, get them tucked away in a good home—a home that is theirs, and theirs. It will become to them the very hub of their life; a very sacred spring of inspiration and a very tangible proof of the prudence of thrift. If you would do your part in giving your children's future secure in a nation of home owners, BUILD NOW.

In Mankind.

For old man and young man, be sure of, that you are Human beings for Lowell.

Three English Institutions.

Wherever the sons of Britannia may roam, three great and unmistakably English institutions set them apart from other races and creeds: Tea in the afternoon, handkerchiefs pushed up the sleeves and "dress" for dinner.

ROUND ABOUT

I observe that Rev. Jerome Wood who will be remembered as pastor of the Methodist church here from 1902 to 1904, is now living in Rochester, N. Y., and Easter Sunday he preached the sermon at the memorial service for the soldier dead at Pittsford. This church has already subscribed its quota of $3000 for the centenary fund.

I have heard much favorable comment for the Peabody Band which helped to arouse interest in the Victory Loan campaign this week. Composed of a majority of Peabody men who are natural musicians, the band deserves the support of Peabody citizens. We are fortunate in having a band of the calibre of this one.

They are touting Raymond E. Porter for Club champion again this year at Homestead, and the golf enthusiasts figure he already has the cup won. He has been the champion of the club for the past four years. When this busy contractor is not knee deep in his daily work he finds time to get a bit of recreation on the links at the Homestead Club which numbers many Peabody citizens among its members.

Opening of the trenches on various streets to make way for the new water pipe construction has caused some little adverse comment because of the danger to traffic. The delay in building catch basins is due to the strike of the masons.

Spring Pond woods abound in many rare birds, so I am informed, and students of birdlore are frequent visitors in that section. This week Charles Chase of Lynn, one of the best known ornithologists in Essex county, explored the woods in question armed with a pair of binoculars and his visit was not in vain for he got several intimate glimpses of rare birds.

The Benevolent Society of Peabody founded May 10, 1814, 105 years ago tomorrow, is meeting with much favorable comment this week for its unanimous vote to purchase $3000 worth of Victory Loan bonds from Uncle Sam. Composed of leaders of all of the Protestant churches of the city the society does effective work among the poor and its good deeds are never heralded. Its members are glad to record the organization in support of the last Liberty Loan. The society will hold a meeting Thursday, May 15 in the Universalist church, under the auspices of the Episcopal church. Business meeting will start promptly at 8:30, and supper will be served at 6:30.

Horace Southwick, who recently returned to duty in the navy will make the trip across on one of the destroyers which will follow the bi-planes making the trans-Atlantic flight, in order to rescue them in case of accident.

Warren st. is open for traffic, in spite of the fact that it has been excavated preparatory to being newly paved, but I noticed at intervals in one day, three heavy trucks sink in the earth. Their drivers found considerable difficulty in getting under way. Warning signs would eliminate much of such bother and waste of time.

I observe that Albert K. Robinson, superintendent of the local schools, shows much and appreciated interest in the high school ball games.

It's not too late to buy a Victory Bond and help Peabody to win that German howitzer.

Simpson Bros. Give Retraction

Simpson Bros., contractors, have sent Mayor Donnell a letter in which they admit that if any one of their representatives made a statement that the City of Peabody had awarded a competitor a contract at an excess of $12,000 as reported in another paper that such a statement was incorrect. Mayor Donnell showed the letter to the reporters last night. Here it is:

May 7, 1919.
Hon. S. Howard Donnell, Mayor, Peabody, Massachusetts.

Dear Sir:
We understand that you are withholding the awarding of any further street construction contracts in the City of Peabody to Simpson Bros. Corporation because of a statement alleged to have been made by one of our representatives to the effect that the bid of Simpson Brothers for all of the work was about Twelve Thousand Dollars ($12,000.00) below that of any other bidder.

While not attempting to enter into a discussion as to what was said by our Representative, we are willing to admit that if the statement were made, it was incorrect. The estimated work of Engineer Emerson called for 34,000 square yards of mixed concrete as is now being put on Walnut Street, and this item our bid was $10,540.00 higher than the bidder who was awarded the contract.

The estimate of the Engineer for granite block pavement to be put on Railroad Avenue was 6,000 square yards, and our bid was $720.00 higher than the next bidder.

The City Engineer estimated in addition to the foregoing 34,000 square yards of Hassam Pavement, a patented process such as was used on Peabody Square, and we were the only bidders, and our price on the Hassam Pavement for the 34,000 square yards was $7,200, less than the lowest bid on the mixed concrete, so that taking in account the different kinds of pavement called for by the Engineer, our aggregate bids were $4,060.00 more than that of the lowest bidder.

Yours very truly,
SIMPSON BROS. CORPORATION,
N. P. WINCHELL,
Vice-President.

BAY STATE DISCS IN PLAY SUNDAY

METAL TICKETS AND FARE BOXES ON ALL CARS

Peabody and Salem will have an all prepayment plan of fare collection on its trolley cars beginning Sunday, May 11th. The tickets will be on sale beginning Sunday at the Waiting Room and Cashier's office. They may be bought in lots of 5 for 35c or multiples thereof and are only good North of Boston for a city zone ride or for a single interurban zone ride.

The Enterprise has been able to secure pictures of the new tickets, which are reproduced here. The ticket is a little smaller than a dime and looks like silver. When deposited in fare boxes they register as seven cents. On one side are the words "Bay State" and on the reverse "City Zone—District 1." There is a star in the center which makes the ticket distinctive and quite different from a coin.

All cars will have fare boxes placed the passengers as they enter. Passengers must deposit their fare in the fare box as conductors are not permitted to handle either cash fares or seven-cent metal tickets.

Conductors on all lines will carry the new metal tickets which will be sold in lots of 5 for 35c. They will not be permitted to sell single tickets. Car riders may avoid delaying others who have the exact fare ready if they purchase tickets in advance instead of when boarding the car.

Help Peabody

having sent them into the field to garner in all of the extra subscribers possible before tomorrow night.

The Warren National Bank is to remain open tomorrow night until 10 P. M. to handle the rush of late purchasers of the Victory bonds.

The Peabody Woman's committee which has performed heroic work so far in this campaign and received upwards of $60,000 in the new bond issue will have a table in the postoffice today and tomorrow to aid in the finish of the campaign.

The women under the direction of Mrs. Lyman P. Osborn have done the bulk of the house to house canvass and they have covered themselves with all kinds of glory. One woman in West Peabody has returned nearly $3500 in pledges with the cash to show for her work. Another woman in the heart of the city has received nearly $20,000 and is assured of a German helmet as a prize. Mrs. Osborn is grateful to the A. C. L. girls who acted as ushers and distributed pledge cards at the mass meeting this week in city hall.

Peabody was about $50,000 shy of its quota this morning but Chairman Osborn was confident that the city would go over the top before tomorrow night with a great big bang.

Mayor Donnell gets back into the ring today to try and win the gun for Peabody. He is asking all citizens to rally and by their individual subscription land the German cannon as a war memento for the city.

A YD badge is to be given with every remaining purchase of the Victory bonds.

Bonds may be secured for a dollar a week and the small purchaser is appealed to save the day for this city.

Help win the German gun for Peabody.

PRESIDENT GILES.

1920 BUDGET WILL CAUSE BIG INCREASE IN TAX RATE

Mayor is now at work on the budget for 1920. He says that because of the demands of the Insurance Exchange the year 1921, contrary to all expectations, is to be the crucial one to date in the history of the city, and that if the tax rate can be kept down next year the next Mayor will have easy sailing, for he will not have to meet the tremendous expenditures for highway construction and water system.

The teachers' increases, together with the two platoon for the firemen and other salary increases, will mean $40,000 additional next year, and with the demands of the Insurance Exchange, substantially $140,000 will have to be financed, that a few months ago could not be foreseen.

In addition to this the State is to take one-sixth of all the assessment on merchandise in the factories which will be approximately the valuation on $1,000,000.

The Mayor plans to present the budget for next year before the first of January, so that the City Council may act on the matter early, and feels confident that he can finance the city, so that the tax rate can be kept down. The double platoon for firemen with the new tax law, he says, will raise havoc with the tax rates throughout the Commonwealth next year. He believes that the Mayors of the cities of the Commonwealth are facing the most difficult situation the coming year.

PLOT TO UNSEAT COTTON IS BLOW AT PRES. GILES

With the city election but ten days off, interest is beginning to take greater proportion and the contestants for the various lesser offices will plunge into the campaign from this out.

Election interest centres properly in the councillor fights and the School Committee. The wisecracks are predicting some turn-overs when the ballots are counted on Tuesday, Dec. 2. Supporters of Arthur J. Flynn, who is contesting Councillor Hogan for reelection, are sanguine that their men will become the new ward spokesman.

On the other hand, the followers of the doughty councillor feel equally confident that he will be returned to the Council.

In Ward Three, where the only other councillor contest is friends of both Councillor Cotton and Edward Eagan, his opponent, are hustling to assure a big vote. The best informed man is willing to admit the fight will prove close, with the betting odds in favor of Cotton. Mr. Cotton is

86 Per Cent of 1919 Taxes Is Paid To City

Up to yesterday 86 percent of the taxes for 1919 had been paid to the city, the amount being $420,300. The total valuation on which tax bills were sent, including the poll taxes, amounted to $486,800. City Collector Hershenson believes one of the contributing influences that has helped to put up the above record is the fact that the poll tax bills were sent out two months earlier than before and real estate tax bills were in the hands of the citizens at least a month earlier this year.

Boys' Life Saved By Allen's Lung Healer

Mother, Who Had Given Up All Hope of His Recovery, Tells This Remarkable Story.

This amazing story comes from the mother of a Portland, Maine, boy—her enthusiasm and gratitude at the curing of her son from a fatal disease being unbounded. Read every word of it.

"My 17-year-old son was taken last March with a bad cold and cough and got so sick that he had to give up his job in the store of Eastman Bros. & Bancroft. He coughed so he could not eat nor sleep and looked like death. After trying everything friends told me about, he continued to get worse and I gave up all hope of his recovery. Finally a friend gave him a bottle of Allen's Lung Healer and by the time it was half used his hoarseness disappeared. He continued its use and in two months his cough was gone and he began to get fat."

"He worked out through the summer and went back to work in the store in September a well boy, all of which is due to Allen's Lung Healer. It is a powerful medicine, worth a great deal of praise. It saved this boy's life and I cannot recommend it too highly for bad coughs and colds. It is also good for building up the body."

SIS HOPKINS AT EMPIRE MONDAY

Manager Katzes of the Empire Theatre announces for the holiday attraction a revival of Sis Hopkins, an old play made famous by Miss Rose Melville, which should prove a rare treat for the older theatregoers, and a revelation to the younger generation. There are many who will remember Rose Melville in the character of Sis and how she endeared herself into the hearts of the people as few other characters have ever done. It will bring back memories of the pigtails and striped stockings, a quaint maiden in a country town with her odd little ways and queer sayings. Sis Hopkins is one of those plays which one can see over and over again and never grow weary of it.

ST. JOHN'S HOLDS ALUMNI DANCE

The whist, entertainment and dance held in City Hall, Wednesday evening, under the auspices of St. John's Alumni was a very successful affair.

The whist tables were arranged on either side of the hall, while the center of the floor was clear for dancing.

The whist continued until 10 o'clock, with prizes as follows: First, Mrs. Merchant, second, Mrs. Lyons; third, Mrs. J. Higgins; fourth, Mrs. Hickey; fifth, Mrs. Nevins.

The entertainment consisted of appropriate readings by Miss Bessie Sheehan, who entertained in her usual finished manner. Mrs. Margaret Millea Henry, the well known soloist, rendered several fine selections, and Ruth Bresnahan of Salem, rounded out the program with a very graceful solo dance.

General dancing was enjoyed with music by the Waverly Orchestra.

FLAG MISSING.

Although many Peabody homes displayed the flag on Armistice Day, it has been remarked that many homes that have usually flown Old Glory failed to do so. Some criticism has been made by war veterans at the lack of patriotism shown on the recent holiday.

CITY HALL GOSSIP

Forces held to be inimical to Councilor Cotton are said to be working to bring about his defeat for reelection at the city election on Dec. 2. It is said that outside forces who have no vote in the ward are behind the plot to unseat Cotton, not that they have any grudge against this particular councilor, but because he is pledged to vote for President Giles to succeed himself as the presiding officer of the Council. Friends of Councilor Cotton who point to his effective work in promoting the improvements made in Ward 3 are appraised of the situation and a diligent effort is being made to secure for him support that will mean his success. It is undisputed that a certain group of Ward 3 voters did their utmost to defeat Cotton two years ago because he voted for licenses on his first year in office. His stand last year, however, is known to have won over this antagonistic element and they are said to be solidly for Cotton.

Mr. Cotton is a member of the Electrical Workers' Union, being employed by the G. E. Co. in West Lynn. His opponent is also a member of the union, being affiliated with the Leather Workers of this city. Mr. Egan is bound to give Mr. Cotton a hard fight.

William J. Dae, president of the Father Mathew Society and executive clerk in the city engineer's office, now has a keener appreciation of the detail that goes with the work of the successful advertising man. He has just completed the task of getting together the annual ad book for the society's big minstrel show set for the night before Thanksgiving and he confesses that there is a bit of work to the job. His efforts appear to have been most successful, however, which shows that the merchants and many citizens appreciate the efforts of the Mats to give a worth while minstrel show.

Who is going to get the job of assistant janitor at City Hall? This is one question more for Mayor Donnell to consider.

Truant Officer John Teague was called on to round up a couple of South Peabody boys this week who were about absenting themselves from school. The boys live at the upper end of Lynn st.

They are asking if Mayor Donnell's recommendation for increased salary for his successor is going to see a bill introduced in the next Legislature, and if so how far it will get in the hands of a Democrat. With the House Republican by a big majority, it will require some chewing to even have the committee hesitate to consider the possible prospect.

The mishap which occurred to Patrolman Robert Patterson when he was knocked down by an unlighted auto early Wednesday morning, may open the way for an order for patrolmen covering the night watch to wear full regulation uniforms including overcoats. Had he had the uniform on, the driver of the auto might have heeded the warning to stop in time.

Mayor Donnell was given a warm greeting by the Moose Lodge members last Tuesday night at the welcome home banquet of war veterans. And of course the Mayor paid the fraternity a fine tribute.

Contradicting the reported statement that the city had already bought the Alis-Chalmers pump before the Council appropriated the money, is the announcement that the purchase was officially made only last Friday, an acknowledgement to this effect having been received from the makers of the new seven and a half million gallon pump.

There are taxpayers who question the wisdom on blotting out $25,000 worth of taxable property on Central st and erecting the proposed Junior High School facing on the street on this property. These taxpayers feel that the seven or better acres in the rear of the High School should be utilized for the new school. Of course the committee's stand on this matter is to build a half million dollar school in the rear of the present High School would be very wrong since the magnificence of the new building should be dressed up to front on a principal thoroughfare. There are good arguments pro and con, but the chances are good for the new school being erected facing Central st.

In connection with the new High School comes the discussion of the best place to build the proposed stadium which is to serve as Peabody's memorial to her brave sons who gave their lives to the cause of the Allies. The plans call for the enclosure being laid in the rear of the present High School.

The Girl Scouts of Troop 1 under Mrs. Edith Howes and Miss Amy Merrill have been busy lately delivering handbills advertising "Donation Day" and getting subscriptions for the Red Cross.

C. OF C. ISSUES RATE CHART AS AID TO LOCAL SHIPPERS—MERCHANTS BOOMING TRADE

The Chamber of Commerce has recently gotten out a Shippers' Guide which contains some valuable information about parcel post and express shipments and shows some 1,000 cities and towns in the United States giving information as to when it is cheaper to ship a certain weight package by express instead of parcel post. This sheet is for free distribution to the members, and those desiring same can secure copy by calling at the offices of the Chamber. In addition to the information regarding parcel post and express shipments, a complete parcel post rate sheet is shown and the population in thousands, according to the 1919 census, is also shown. Shippers who have seen copy of this sheet have congratulated the Chamber on this fine piece of work and the amount of time that has been necessary to work up this information makes it a very valuable sheet for all shippers. The Chamber is also furnishing this sheet to shippers in Salem, Danvers, and Beverly at a price of $3.00 and has secured several orders from these cities, as Peabody, Salem, Danvers, and Beverly are in the same parcel post and express zone and the information is correct, applying from all these points.

Peabody merchants are going to make a showing that will equal if not surpass the Made in Peabody exhibit at the window display contest which will be held December 13. This contest is under the supervision of the Merchants' Committee of the Chamber and suitable prizes will be awarded the most attractive windows: First prize, $15; second prize, $10; third prize, $5. In connection with this display, the merchants are conducting an advertising campaign to secure the patronage of the Peabody citizens.

The Americanization work which is being conducted by the Chamber's committee and the Board of Education is progressing very nicely and the committee in charge is enthusiastic over the results already obtained. At the present time there is one class in civics for naturalization conducted each Monday evening at 7.30 and two classes in English are held in the Chamber offices and are in charge of competent teachers who are being paid by the City and State Board of Education. Persons desiring to enroll can do so by being present at the next session of the class which they desire to enroll in. Robert A. Bakeman, who has charge of the class of civics for naturalization, reports that the first session which was held last Monday evening was a very enthusiastic meeting and he is very much encouraged at the amount of interest shown by those taking this course. NEW TALENT FOR FR. MATS MINSTRELS

There remain only the finishing touches to be placed before the curtain is raised at City Hall Thanksgiving eve for the 39th annual minstrel show and ball of the Fr. Mathew C. T. A. Society.

A strong cast has been secured, including many new faces.

At the extreme ends will be found Messrs. George Gillis and John Doherty. The other black-face positions will be occupied by Misses Laura Murphy, Agnes Casey, Alice Peabody, Mabel Yales, and Messrs. Joseph Keefe and James Harris. Solo numbers will be rendered by Misses Pauline Poor, Morrine Rich, Helen McCarthy and Messrs. Frank Sonigan and Ollie Quirk.

As additional features George Duffy, a soft shoe dancer, will entertain; and John (Cy) McCarthy and Mrs. Veta Brown will appear in a specialty. A number of the young lady members in the chorus will also offer a number of dances.

The performance will be under the direction of Justin D. Hanscom, assisted at the piano by Leonard H. Powers. John H. Sullivan, a past president of the society, will act as interlocutor.

The Mats have labored hard to make the performance high class in every respect and feel sure that their efforts will be crowned with the desired result.

The show will begin at 8.15 sharp and last about two hours. Dancing will follow until 2 a. m. Lee's Orchestra of eight pieces will furnish music for the entire event.

Cars will run to all surrounding points at the close.

Reserved seat checks may be procured at the City Hall box office at 7 this evening. After the initial exchange the seat coupons may be procured at Reidy's Pharmacy, Main st.

Thomas McCarthy, U. S. N., is enjoying a 15-day furlough at his home on Shamrock st.

Miss Susan Bradley of Logan st, Salem, has accepted a position in Bresnahan's Department Store.

EDUCATION PAYS.

A large number of Peabody young men are at present attending evening business colleges, law schools, engineering classes and schools in other branches in addition to doing their day's work in the factory or in the office where they are employed. Still others are spending a few evenings each week in home study under the direction of some of the numerous correspondence schools. In a few years most of these young men will be reaping the harvest of their labor in better positions, and will be looked upon as "lucky" by some of their friends who now have the same opportunity, as they but are unwilling to give the time from their pleasures to build a solid foundation for their business careers. There is but little luck in the business world today. What is commonly termed luck is usually the power and ability to use knowledge effectively. A certain class of men when they reach the age of 40 and see that their life has been a comparative failure, begin to blame their luck. Their wiser friends, however, could tell them the real reason for their lack of success. No matter what a young man is working at today, there is a chance for him to make a success of himself, if he studies to lift himself up. Oftentimes the man with less natural ability will win out over his more brilliant friend simply because he keeps on educating himself, while his friend depends on his natural quickness and "luck."

"BABY WELFARE" SOLICITORS

Do you buy a magazine once in a while of an itinerant vender whose cry is "Help the Babies?" Such little deeds of charity give one a "Grand and Glorious Feeling." Possibly the small price troubles your conscience and you hand over a perfectly good quarter or half dollar instead of the dime asked.

It is a shame to disillusion you, but just see what is printed on the inside of the front cover of your magazine. It says it is not published in the interest of any charitable organization. What is it for, then? Just to make money for its publishers and the street vendors. It's a deceiving little piece of literature, and it fools thousands of good, charitably inclined people.

The girl with the persuasive smile whom you thought a real self-sacrificing charity worker is just a licensed street vender, licensed by the Boston Board of Health. She will doubtless continue to be with us until the Board of Health ceases to grant licenses which impose that form of bogus street vending upon us.

The above information is furnished the local Chamber by the Boston Chamber of Commerce, Bureau of Investigation.

ROUND ABOUT

John Titcomb, 91-year-old Grand Army veteran, did not permit his failing eyesight to keep him away from the election booth at the State election. He went to Ward 2 voting place and asked for a Republican ballot, requesting the warden to mark a straight ticket for him. His primary object was to vote for Governor Coolidge.

Peabody Moose Lodge members are to observe the sixth anniversary of the founding of the lodge in Peabody next Tuesday night. A large picture of Past Dictator William Shinnick whose death occurred last month will be unveiled and hung in the lodge-room.

Peabody coal dealers view with criticism the fact that out of town dealers supplying Peabody are not compelled to go to the city scales and weigh their loads. The local dealers say they are obliged to conform to the ruling that the city weigher put his stamp of approval on all loads of coal.

I observe that T. Hadley Sawyer, sealer of weights, was last week re-elected a member of the executive committee of sealers at the State convention and Charles P. Murray of Lynn was re-elected president of the State Association. It is pleasing to see the name of a Peabody man elevated to office in State convention.

Among the recent visitors to Peabody was Edward E. Bradford, former commercial instructor at the High School, who was in the city last Friday renewing old friendships. He is now a resident of Boston.

A Peabody grocer ingratiated himself with his trade last week by delivering surprise packages of five pounds of sugar at the homes of various customers. It was a welcome surprise to some of the families who were in sore straits in getting any sugar. It is said that the grocer only charged 11 cents, too, complying in this instance with the war board regulation.

Much credit is due Charles W. Southwick of 36 Holten st for the splendid showing made by the city in the recent Red Cross Roll Call drive. As chairman of the Ward 3 committee, he served faithfully and his untiring efforts were rewarded by the splendid returns made by him and his committee. Mr. Southwick has served on various other war work committees and his work along these lines has always been of the highest order, for he has proven himself to be a most able and efficient worker.

Albert W. MacNeil of the Peabody Electric Shop is coming in for a bit of commendation on his initiative that opened the way for the coming merchants' week and window contest in Peabody. He was the originator of the plan which fostered by the Chamber of Commerce got the retail merchants together in the first common cause effort Peabody has witnessed in some years. MacNeil turned over his own business to don the uniform and render service to Uncle Sam. As an expert electrician he saw plenty of war service and helped to fight off the enemy submarines on his trips overseas. He's a live wire.

Prediction on the part of Manager Frank Hardy of the Salem division that the Bay State fare between Salem and Peabody will be dropped to five cents and a 10-cent fare set between Lynn and Peabody will obviously startle the jitney owners now gathering in big revenues. I observed a Salem-Peabody electric leaving Peabody square at 7.45 last Tuesday evening without a single passenger, while a jitney which followed in its wake was crowded to capacity. Mr. Hardy is right when he says that the trolley system belongs to the public, but there are those who will say that this impression has not always been assumed by the officials of the railroad. The reduction in fares will be welcomed by the public.

I have heard much praise expressed for the woman who helped to make the annual hospital day donations the great success the event proved last week. These women who get behind the Visiting Nurse Association give their time and best efforts to aiding the worthy projects, and the public owes them a debt of gratitude, especially does the hospital.

Thanksgiving

By EDGAR A. GUEST

For courage that we sorely need,
For strength to do the splendid deed,
For youth, who made the sacrifice
And, smiling, paid the bitter price
That freedom asks of sturdy men,
Oh God, accept our thanks again.

To thee once more today we kneel;
Sad music of the crash of steel Accompanies our prayers, and yet
Thy mercies everywhere are met,
And we are grateful for the youth
That boldly dared to guard the truth.

Oh God, who gave us sight to see
The way to serve, we pray to thee;
We thank thee for all mothers fair
Who gave their sons into thy care
And bravely hid their grief and pain
That liberty and truth should reign.

We thank thee for each noble heart
That scorned to play the coward part;
We thank thee for the humblest lad
That in these bitter times is glad To toil until war's flags are furled
To make a kindlier, better world.

For yield of tree and fruit and vine
Once more our gratitude is thine;
But in these days of dangers, yet
Now offer prayers of thanks to thee
For all the brave and loyal breasts
Wherein the love of honor rests.

Oh God, we thank thee for our youth
That still hold dear the ways of truth;
We thank thee for their courage, and Devotion to our native land;
We're thankful that our flag still gleams
The emblem of man's highest dreams.

GREEDY TOMMY

THIS is little Tommy, who sat down to dinner at half-past 2 and though the company stared and stared, He ate and ate and never cared!

The company's eaten all they're able; They've gone and left him at the table! Oh, Tommy, Tommy! Now you've ate it, Somehow I feel that you'll regret it!

Still he ate till not a crumb Was left, and then he sucked his thumb! They lifted Tommy from his chair, They lifted him with the greatest care!

That night as Tommy lay in bed, Strange, awful things flew round his head! The things he'd eaten in a row Flew there and cried: "We told you so!"

He screamed, and when his mother came She hid her face for very SHAME! For there in bed, with snout so big, She found not Tom, but a little pig! (Really)

My dears! My dears! Let's you and me Be very careful so that we Will not end our Thanksgiving day In such a melancholy way!

Let Us Pray to Be Worthy.

The gold of harvest and of mine are good; untrammelled peace and carefree prosperity are blessings which America has enjoyed in large measure through many years, and for these things we are grateful. But there are greater blessings than these. And the thoughtful will recognize that one form of riches may come to a nation out of the experiences that search deep the hearts of men. The crushing and the melting both play their part in bringing out the gold that is pure and fine.

Let us as in other years give thanks, and in the giving let us renew our courage that we may measure up to the opportunities God is offering to us in these most momentous days of the world's history.

WARWICK AT STRAND TO-DAY

MAURICE TOURNIER Presents "The Life Line"
A Paramount-Artcraft Picture

Screen lovers who enjoy an exciting story of love, —an adventure superbly enacted, will welcome Robert Warwick at the Strand today and Saturday in "Told in the Hills," his latest picture. It is a big story of the great outdoors and provides Major Warwick with a rugged, heroic role that ideally suits his personality. One of the greatest casts ever assembled for any picture are to be seen in support of the star. Included in this cast are Ann Little, Wanda Hawley, Eileen Percy, Tom Forman, Monte Blue and Charles Ogle, all of whom have important roles.

The sacrifice of "Gennessee" Jack Stewart, played by Major Warwick, who marries the girl his younger brother has wronged, and his later adventures in the mountains of Montana, where he is shown as a scout and prospector, form the basis of the powerful story. The picture was made against a magnificent background of mountains and canyons. Wilham Duncan in "Smashing Barriers" and a funny Gail Henry comedy will be the features on this attractive program.

Mary Miles Minter in "Wives and Other Wives" will head the bill for Sunday evening. Miss Minter has not appeared in Peabody for some time and her coming will doubtless make a hit with her many admirers. Bessie Love in "A Yankee Princess" will be the second photoplay feature. Both of these pictures are charming and will appeal to all classes. Peter Rooney in popular songs will be offered as an added attraction.

A thrilling shipwreck and rescue by means of the breeches buoy forms the climax of Maurice Tournier's new Paramount-Artcraft special, "The Life Line," an eight-act feature, which will be shown on Monday and Tuesday. It was adapted from George R. Sims' famous melodrama of the sea, "The Romany Rye," and tells a smashing story in Mr. Tournier's masterful style.

The story centres around Jack Herne, the Romany Rye, young, romantic leader of a gypsy band, who is really the heir to Cragsnet, a fine old English estate now being occupied falsely by his half-brother, Philip Royston. How Jack, with the aid of some characters of the London underworld, regains his inheritance and wins the love of a beautiful girl forms the theme of the picture. A brilliant hunt, in which scores of lords and ladies take part, a thrilling rescue from a burning theatre, and the episode of the saving of Ruth from a ship being beaten to pieces on the rocks in a storm, are the high spots of the picture. While this production is one of the biggest put out by the Paramount-Artcraft Company this year, no change will be made in the Strand's prices during its run. Ben Turpin in "Uncle Tom Without the Cabin," a Mack Sennett comedy, will be the other attraction for Monday.

Charles Ray in "The Egg Crate Wallop" will be the feature attraction for Wednesday and Thanksgiving Day. Mr. Ray's pictures are always worth a special effort to see and in this one he has an entirely pleasing role.

PEABODY TACKLES HAVERHILL

Peabody High's biggest game of the season is at Haverhill tomorrow when the Tanners invade the Merrimac Valley stadium to tackle the claimants to the championship of Essex County. More than 500 Peabody supporters will be found at the great game, admittedly the stellar gridiron performance of Essex county.

Capt. Hubby Lawrence and his team have got back their punch following their victory over Gloucester here Wednesday and they will enter the game tomorrow with all of the regulars in line.

High School

The plans for the junior prom, Nov. 28, in the Moose hall, have been completed. The hall will be decorated with class colors by the committee, and Potter's Orchestra will furnish music for the dancing. The following have consented to act as chaperons for the evening: Miss King, Miss Masterson, Mr. King and Mr. Gilmore. The tickets are selling rapidly and the junior prom promises to be one of the events of the season in the High School.

Clara Ferguson '20 was confined to her home last week with bronchitis.

Miss Chandler and Miss Paulman saw Sothorn and Marlowe in the play "Twelfth Night" in Boston.

A mass meeting was held in the rear of the hall Friday to practice cheers for the Peabody-Marblehead game Saturday. There was also cheers Wednesday for the game at the park. Emma Hart '20 is ill with the measles.

If those comments about the different pupils written by a popular member of room 2 were printed, they would be well worth reading.

A good oral composition on "Obedience" was given by a pupil in Junior English. It would be well to let the American history class hear it, especially in regard to bells.

School was dismissed at 12.30 last Friday to enable the teachers to attend a convention at Boston.

Some very snappy posters are being displayed in store windows, advertising the junior prom.

A good crowd is expected to attend the Peabody-Beverly game Thanksgiving day. A reception will be held after the game in the City Hall. After the dance there will be husses back to Peabody.

NOT COMPLETE WITHOUT PIE

Time Was When No Thanksgiving Dinner Was Worthy of the Name in Its Absence.

Thanksgiving without pumpkin pie was held to be unthinkable. Yet there could be no pumpkin pie without molasses; because Colchester, Connecticut, did not receive its supply of molasses in season, it voted, in 1705, to put off its Thanksgiving from the first to the second Thursday of November! Pumpkin pies thus featured were usually baked in square tins, having only four corner pieces to each pie.

Second only to the pumpkin pie in importance at such a Thanksgiving feast as Whittier sings was the turkey which had been fattened for the occasion and which, when slowly roasting before the open fire and painstakingly basted from the dripping pan beneath, was fit to be the lord of any feast. Chicken there was, too, though always in the form of chicken pie, and vegetables of every sort, with raisins and citron, walnuts and popcorn, apples and cider galore.

Surely few could have really wished joys such as these to be sacrificed to a second service in the meeting house!

Leo Council will work the third degree on a class of about 50 candidates the early part of December.

MOOSE HONOR WAR VETERANS

There have been numerous welcome home receptions to Peabody's valiant war veterans, but it is doubtful if any similar occasion has outdone in enthusiasm and spirit that tendered the 69 members of the Loyal Order of Moose given in their hall last Tuesday evening. It was a banner evening and one which this great fraternal order will long cherish.

With over 200 seated at the several banquet tables, including the mothers, sisters and sweethearts who go to make up the Mooseheart Legion in this city, the welcome home to the brave soldiers and sailors was the biggest event the Peabody Moosedom has yet staged and counted from the viewpoint of success nothing was lacking to make it a perfect evening. The war veterans were in uniform.

Dictator Patrick T. Langan, one of the charter members, presided at the head table and introduced the speakers, chief among whom was Mayor Donnell, the net district attorney of Essex County and himself a charter member; Hon. John H. Cogswell of Lynn, member of the Industrial Accident Board, and who is also a charter member of the Lynn Moose Lodge; ex-Rep. William H. Mahoney, alluded to as the next Mayor of Peabody, and District Deputy Watson of Lynn.

The musical members interspersed among the speechmaking helped to make the entertainment complete in its variety, and all of the members and their friends were given an evening worth while.

Before the speaking, Dictator Langan called on the guests to stand in silence in tribute to Lewis McManus, one of the members who laid down his life in France. At 9 o'clock the guests again stood in tribute to Mooseheart children, of whom there are 700 being educated at the national home of the order.

The hall decorations were tastefully arranged and the tribute given to the flag by Hon. John Cogswell gave the patriotic touch to the welcome home. The banquet was one of the best served in this city and the service was faultless.

Following the entertainment the floor was cleared and dancing was in order until a late hour.

The officers of the lodge who headed the general committee in charge of the welcome home banquet are: Past Dictator John F. Young, Dictator Patrick T. Langan, Vice Dictator Patrick H. McDonald, Prelate William F. Robinson, Secretary A. Edgar Durkee, Treasurer John H. Thomas. The committee which outlined the program consisted of John H. Thomas, chairman; the lodge officers, William Sweetney, Napoleon Lafreniere, Albert Lafreniere, William Stewart, Charles Morrill and Charles Wilson.

pledged to vote for President Giles for re-election as presiding officer of the Council. No other issue is injected in the fight, at least, none is going the rounds with Dame Rumor.

Mrs. Mary C. Harrington and Capt. Louis P. P. Osborne, both diligent members of the School Committee, which has shaped the Junior High School, are seeking re-election, and they have every assurance of being re-elected to the office they have each held with fidelity and rare credit.

They are opposed by Atty. Louis F. O'Keefe, a clean young man, who is making his debut into city politics. Attorney O'Keefe is connected with a prominent law office in Boston. He worked his way thru the law school, acting as substitute clerk at the post-office. The other contestant for the School Committee is George Hammond of Tracey st., also a novice in the political arena. Neither is married. The remaining contest on the ballot is that of trustee of the Peabody Institute, two to be elected. It is pretty generally conceded that John J. Gallagher, whose friends insisted on writing his name on the primary ballot for re-election, will be returned to office with a handsome vote. This leaves three men fighting for the other vacancy caused by the death of the late Don Ingraham. They are Lucien G. Lewis of the firm of George H. Jacobs Co.; Charles M. Boyle, war veteran and well known political worker, and Charles E. Smiley, superintendent of the Densten Hair Co. Each of this trio have a host of friends who may be depended on to advance the chances of success for the favored candidate on December 2.

Peabody voters will also be asked to declare themselves again on license, the attorney general declaring that the question must go on the ballot. In view of the recent primary vote on the 4 percent beer amendment, there are those citizens who say a surprise vote may be recorded in this question.

The Glorious Gobbler

All hail the glorious gobbler! When autumn skies are gray He mounts his china platter throne And rules Thanksgiving day; It is a noble oval With gilded garlands fair, Or it may be an heirloom prized Of old blue willow ware.

Salute the glorious gobbler: (Though sometimes it's a hen That dawns in appetizing brown Upon our famished ken).

He wears his festive dressing Contrariwise, within, Receiving all his subjects true In nothing but his skin.

Here's to the glorious gobbler! Though far ahead they roam, Yet in his honor every year The children gather home. His drumsticks beat assembly From mountain top to sea, He wears a gold ebery crown, The king of birds is he.

Long live the glorious gobbler. With his attendant pies, Mince, pumpkin, apple, cranberry, And each of generous size, Of all famous monarchs From Ecuador to Spain, He is the only one who boasts An undisputed reign.

Election Interest Centers In School Committee

75 votes. In the only other councillor fight, that of Ward 3, Councillor Cot-

SHIPPERS SAVED BIG SUM BY NEW EXPRESS RULING

Initiative on the part of the Peabody Chamber of Commerce has resulted this week in the American Railway Express rescinding its order compelling Peabody shippers to box all packages of 25 pounds and up. The protest made by Peabody induced the express officials to raise the minimum weight to 75 pounds, which may still be sent in packages.
The new order was to go in effect
Dec. 10 and required all shipments of leather weighing 25 pounds or more to be boxed instead of wrapped as heretofore. This was taken up by the local Chamber, a hearing arranged for in New York with express officials.

The Chamber was represented by the Tanners' Council and Thomas McNamara, traffic manager of the A. C. L.
Hearings were held Nov. 18, 19 and 25th. At the final hearing an agreement was reached that the maximum weight of packages that would be accepted in rolls would be 75 pounds.

VOTERS OF WARD THREE Re-Elect Councillor

Charles H. Cotton

He is endorsed by Mayor Donnell, who has sent the following letter to the voters of the ward:

Dear Sir:

May I urge you to cast your ballot in the coming City Election on December second for Mr. Charles H. Cotton for Councillor from Ward Three.

The demands of the Insurance Exchange the coming year are very heavy and in my opinion can be met on the present tax rate if I can have the support in the City Council of men whose record has been one of cooperation in an endeavor to build up the City on an extremely low tax rate.
I have found Councillor Cotton to be one of the men in the Council upon whom I could rely for support in an emergency and I feel it would be a serious mistake to replace him at this time.

Beginning with 1921 the City of Peabody will be in the strongest financial condition of any City in the Commonwealth which will permit of extensive improvements each year upon a very low tax rate, but I need during the year 1920 the services of men in the City Council whose experience will enable them to view the many questions which will arise from a business standpoint.

Yours very truly,

S. HOWARD DONNELL, Mayor.

With the Employees of

A. C. LAWRENCE LEATHER CO.

Another familiar A. C. L. landmark will be a thing of the past next week, when "G" building, the two-story structure on Crownshield street which adjoins the powerhouse, will be torn down. This building formerly contained the general and executive offices of the company before the new administration building was erected. The removal of the famous old landmark is occasioned by an addition to the engine room of the powerhouse, which will cover the site. The excavating for the new mechanical department building is practically completed, and cement will be poured next week. The chimney at the Waters River Plant is about 200 feet on its way upward, and is an imposing spectacle.

Carl Feris of the Chrome Tan Glove and leader of the Finnish Band severed his connection with the company this week to take up new work at Ashburnham, Mass.

Ralph Raymond of the glove assorting room, returned to the plant this week after having served several weeks with the State Guard in Boston.

Charles Walker of the Sheepskin Department received his annual consignment of Vermont turkeys this week, which were greatly enjoyed yesterday by the fortunate customers of Mr. Walker. The birds were dressed by Jack Hockinhal of the Glove Assorting room, who is an expert in poultry dressing.

Fred H. Poole, superintendent of the Cut Stock Department, also had some choice Vermont birds arrive for himself and his friends. Mr. Poole is a former Vermonter and knows where to get the real thing in the turkey line.

William E. Cronin of the National Laboratory was married on Thanksgiving Day to Miss Shaw of Salem. The happy couple are enjoying their wedding tour this week and next.

James Pray of the Main Plant Laboratory returned from a two weeks' vacation on Monday.

Miss Madeline Heffernan has been transferred from the Japan Office back to the Main Office.

The girls' weekly bowling party was postponed this week, owing to the holiday, but the young ladies expect to be back on the alleys next week with higher scores than ever.

Miss May Gorman, clerk in B building, has been transferred to the Main Office and will start on her new duties next Monday.

Charles Stokes, who left the finish assorting department to do State Guard duty in Boston, has returned to work. He is now in the mechanical department, as the outdoor life made a strong appeal to him while in the service.

Barney Smallworth, the A. C. L. teamster who was injured by an unknown auto truck this week, is resting comfortably at the Thomas Hospital. He suffered a clean break of the right leg, but expects to be home in a few days.

William Joyce, chemist at the Main Plant, leaves the company next Tuesday to take a position in his home town, Worcester.

The Hide Curry departments of the company are shut down over the week end for stock taking.

Leroy Armstrong, formerly of Whitefield, N. H., has accepted a position in the putting-out department.

Cedric Ball of Salem is a newcomer to the Japan Shop.

Francis Boyle, Peabody's soldier hero, is now working for the A. C. L. Co. in the tannery.

Ernest Mitchell is another newcomer to the tannery this week.

The checks for the garden prizes went out this week and met with a great reception, coming as they did just before the holiday.

Thanksgiving this year was made a great deal of in the families of the A. C. L. soldier boys, some of whom spent their first Thanksgiving at home for two and three years.

Another sunning yard at the Japan Shop is being equipped with cement runways for the use of the electric trucks. The new runways are between No. 1 and No. 2 buildings, on the land formerly used for gardens.

Miss Cecelia Jean and Miss Mary Paskall have entered the employ of the Cutstock Department this week.

Leather coats will be the rage for a long time to come, if the volume of business in coat leather at the plant is any indication. Some handsome leathers are being made for this purpose in black, olive brown, slate and tan.

Macauley and Rackliffe, the Waters River bowlers, had an off night in their match with Buster Childs and Chet Hay, Tuesday night, neither star rolling up to their standard. Another match will undoubtedly result between these bowlers.

John Cole has been transferred from the Main Plant to the Japan Office.

John Ashley of Lake Shore Park is now working in the Glove Department.

Arthur P. Gould of Middleton entered the employ of the Japan Shop this week.

William Murphy began work in the Nubuck Dressing Department on Wednesday.

Raymond Begin of Danvers has started work with the Pigskin Department.

Here's Proof That Allen's Lung Healer

PREVENTS PNEUMONIA
Read Mr. Rhodes' Statement and You Will Realize That Our Claims Are Based on Convincing Proof.

H. J. Allen, Dear Sir: I have found Allen's Lung Healer very effective in warding off an attack of pneumonia. I contracted a severe cold, which developed so rapidly that by night my lungs were congested and breathing difficult, with a distressed cough, which racked my whole system. I was convinced from the symptoms that I was in for an attack of pneumonia. Having used Allen's Lung Healer before and having great faith in its effectiveness, I decided to use it over night and call a physician in the morning if I was no better. The improvement was so marked by morning that I decided to continue with the Lung Healer and by night, or within 24 hours after taking the first dose my lungs were practically clear of congestion and inside of a week the cough was gone. I feel positive that the Lung Healer saved me from pneumonia and I am recommending it at every opportunity.

CITY HALL GOSSIP

Mayor Donnell has been treated to not in the spirit of a rebuke to the two disgraceful scenes in the City Council meetings. Once, when he was virtually ordered out of the Chamber in those days when Messrs. Shea and Duggan et al were holding up the 1914 budget, and again last Tuesday night, when Duggan refused to heed the gavel and hurled undignified words at the chair. It must have been bitter gall for Dutchy to hear Mayor Donnell defend the City Engineer, against whom Duggan engaged in personal abuse.

Wonder if Dutchy will pursue similar tactics up on Beacon Hill? It would bring pitiless publicity on Peabody if he did. The Duggan incident last Tuesday night was little short of disgraceful.

Duggan insinuated that Engineer Emerson was to blame for the leaving of iron pipe along upper Lowell street, but Mayor Donnell quickly assumed the burden, if any is attached. The Mayor also came back with a fine wallop at the heated Councillor, when he said that the City Engineer had first recommended the purchase of the Allis-Chalmers pump before Expert Barbour had been employed, by direction of the Mayor. Politics that make such strange bed fellows become amusing to those who know the lay at City Hall.

"Our idea of nothing at all" is Dutchy knocking City Engineer Frank Emerson. He was boss of a city, Some said what a pity, But to those he said go to hades. His ambition did not remain there, He said to his lawyers—beware, For as district attorney, 'Twill be a tough journey, To pull off the raw stuff—take care.

Councillor Joseph Ryan is extremely sorry that he was kept from the Council meeting this week. Despite the fact that the Edward H. Porter Co. concern has received little of the city contracts, Councillor Ryan is a staunch defender of City Engineer Emerson.

While the loquacious Councillor was haranguing President Giles, Councillor McKee moved adjournment, and the rest of the Councillors so voted.

The 1920 budget will include salary boosts for heads of departments, some of whom today are getting less than the police and firemen.

Mayor Donnell went on record before the Council in declaring that the valuation of Peabody today is a joke,

Absence of Councillor Ryan caused a deadlock vote on the application of C. J. Dullea, who sought a pony express license for the month of December. It is said that the licenses granted by the Council are not valid, and that the expressmen need no license even to transport certain beer.

Councillor Horrigan started action this week which should do away with parking of autos on Mill and Foster streets. He also held up a wagoner's license, said to be sought by a Peabody resident for a Salem man.

Horrigan comes to bat frequently with excellent suggestions looking to "law and order," and on many questions has the majority of the Council with him.

The committee on public property ought to view that pile of soft coal in the rear of City Hall, and then start something, looking to its being cleaned up.

FROM THE NURSERY By "ENERGY"

There was a young man named Donnell Whose knack was to do things well, He was boss of a city, Some said what a pity, But to those he said go to hades.

His ambition did not remain there, He said to his lawyers—beware, For as district attorney, 'Twill be a tough journey, To pull off the raw stuff—take care.

This young man is apt to surprise, Those who don't watch his rise, He's there with both feet, He's a hard man to beat, He gets there whenever he tries.

This county is but a small part, Of the State, but he has a good start, He's climbing the ladder, To the pole 'twill be sadder, When they say—oh Sam have a heart.

Japanese Handmade Paper. Handmade paper is produced in Japan principally by farmers as a secondary occupation which they can pursue in seasons when there is nothing to be done in the fields. There are no fewer than 60,000 families engaged in this industry.

LEATHER PLANTS ARE CROWDED TO CAPACITY—GLAZERS GETTING $72.

(By Energy.)

Reading a recent editorial in a Boston paper, I voice their sentiments when they say that strikes which have apparently been made against capital are in reality made against the public.

Capital has a way of covering all raises in wages by increasing the costs of manufactured articles. I presume many people have thought out this problem as it really is, but the great majority of the people do not see it as it is.

One large concern in Peabody who in normal times had a payroll of $5000 weekly, now pays its employees $20,000 each week. This increase is added to the cost of production and all of us who wear shoes, and all of us who so far, pay the bills. It does not require a large assortment of brains to see this, and the public are commencing to think it over.

I say commencing, for the great cry by politicians and labor leaders has been, capital must be downed. But by dopping the situation as it should be and should have been long ago, the public must and will settle the difficulty sooner or later, and I am of the belief sooner. It takes time to get the masses ready to assert their rights, then look out.

Labor unions and capital who employ shady methods are due for a reckoning. I am of the opinion both are responsible for present conditions. The middle classes today are powerful. They are much more powerful than is realized. They have been knocked about during these prices like a Harvard-Yale football. They are not receiving wages as high as the pick and shovel men in many cases, which must be adjusted and will be. It is a fact that foremen in factories today are getting less money than the men under them. Does any fair minded man believe that glazers on the Bowers machines who earn $72 weekly are worth more than clerks who earn $25? Do not misunderstand me by thinking I deplore high wages. But equalize them.

A meeting of the superintendents and others connected with a local concern brought out the fact that leather conditions appear to them most optimistic. They believe that the present rush in business will continue at least to the middle of 1920.

Everybody in Peabody today who is fortunate enough to possess a factory is besieged with applications for work. By that I mean dealers want leather, and want it so badly they are imploring those who take in work to finish for them. Sheepskin presses are turning away work, and so on down the line. Compare with business in ordinary times, everything is reversed. It was a struggle to get work, now it is a struggle to keep it away.

New concerns are springing up like mushrooms in the night, and most of them will disappear as quickly, some day, and I am not a pessimist. If it were possible to make leather out of doors all would be in it. But factories and the machines necessary to run it are worth more than eggs, which is enough we all think.

When the time arrives to declare another tax rate, I am wondering what will happen. Perhaps I am early to anticipate so far away, but it looks to me as though our rate will jump considerable. I have attempted several times in the past to mention the fact that we are facing higher taxes. No fault can be laid at our city officials, but the 1919 Legislature saw fit to change the laws which has affected Peabody men more than any other municipality in the State.

It may be I am wrong in thinking that there are breakers ahead. I hope I am wrong. But when the next tax rate is announced, do not be surprised. The assessors must assume the burden, but the public will not worry until they receive their tax bills, which seems to be the way a fickle public do everything. However, by touching on these matters at intervals, it does no harm and probably darn little good. You need no medicine when well.

An advertisement recently appeared in the papers setting forth the qualities of a preparation applied to sole leather prolonging the life of such leather beyond comprehension. There has been many such preparations in the past, and they made little headway among the shoe manufacturers. They have been used, but the necessary punch to have them generally adopted failed. I do not know why a leather or shoe manufacturer wants his leather and shoes to last too long.

If we have to purchase four pairs of shoes each year to cover our pedal extremities against one pair of indestructible shoes, where does the manufacturer get away? When a specialist puts ashoe onmarket that outwears others two to one, we generally pay the extra price for such footwear. There are several makers of shoes today who ask and get double what others hope to get.

In many cases sentiment enters into the sale. Anyone who could take the cent out of sentiment would receive the thanks of thousands of us mortals. It cannot be done these times, for money is plentier than brains to my way of thinking. Some of us are shy both, which keeps us plugging to stay here. Sad but true.

They tell me there is a new process being perfected whereby about all work in the beamhouse is eliminated. If so, the tanners have much to be thankful for. No place in the manufacture of leather is so important as this same beamhouse, and more leather is made and unmade there than in any other place in the leather factory. Turks at $35 a week do not fit, but have been endured. This method compared with what has been accomplished in chemistry is not so much after all.

THOMAS HOSPITAL

The gift of the Josiah B. Thomas Hospital to the town of Peabody was intended for the citizens of Peabody and not for the benefit of the whole people of Essex County, nor for the citizens of Salem for that matter. Consequently, the announcement that the Peabody doctors have deemed it urgent to call upon the Salem Hospital Corporation to extend them the same privileges as are given to the Salem doctors at the Thomas Hospital will cause little surprise to anyone familiar with the overcrowded conditions at the Peabody Hospital, where today Peabody patients are being denied private rooms because these same rooms are occupied by Salem patients under the care of Salem physicians. The Salem Hospital at the time of the big Salem fire was extended the privilege of bringing their patients to the Peabody Hospital, and this courtesy has never been rescinded despite the fact that frequently Peabody doctors have been unable to find rooms at the Thomas Hospital because these same rooms were occupied by Salem patients. It is a matter of record that the leading Salem doctors who are members of the Salem Hospital staff are frequently sending Salem patients to the local hospital and the crowded conditions are depriving Peabody people the use of the hospital. Frequently Peabody patients who should have a private room and who are able to pay are obliged to take a bed in the ward. It is an unfair condition made so by the well known fact that some Salem doctors prefer to send their Salem patients to the hospital in this city rather than avail themselves of the opportunity to secure a private room in the Salem Hospital. Supported in large measure as is the Thomas Hospital by funds from the city treasury it is a bit unusual to herald a condition that deprives Peabody patients of the accommodations in favor of out of town patients. It is fair to assume that the Salem Hospital will be eager to reciprocate in the matter of accommodating the Peabody doctors who are unable to get their patients into the Thomas Hospital now seek privileges at the new Salem Hospital. Peabody patients should come first at the Thomas Hospital. That were obvious if the intent of the donor, whose name it bears, is to be fulfilled. He left this memorial for the benefit of the citizens of Peabody.

OFFICER PATTERSON

The Enterprise has every reason to believe that Mayor Donnell will make it his business to see that Patrolman Robert Patterson who was maimed by a fast speeding taxi-cab driver gets his just dessert in the matter of recompense for the injuries he sustained. It is to be expected that this officer, struck down and nearly killed in discharge of his duties, receives his salary while he is confined to the hospital pending the painful time in which his broken leg and ribs are mending. It is not so certain that this plucky officer will ever be able to don his police uniform again, for it is feared that the broken leg will be at least an inch shorter at his ultimate recovery. His age, at 62 years, makes for an uncertainty if he will ever fully recover from the terrible shock to his system by being dragged 150 feet by the fast speeding machine which was unlighted. If Peabody had adopted the police pension act there would be no question about this officer being retired on at least half pay. The fact remains that he has been drawn close to death's door while in the fearless discharge of his police duties, and the decent thing before the Mayor and City Council is to take such legal steps as are within their jurisdiction to see that this officer is suitably cared for in the matter of recompense. His hospital bills should be paid for by the city and his future income assured so far as the city authorities have it in their power to provide for his material comfort. His case rests with Mayor Donnell, representative of the 20,000 people of Peabody, who will insist on a square deal for this brave officer.

EXTEND THE WORK

Peabody, with its thousands of non-English speaking aliens, has no evening schools this year. There is a sound argument against throwing open the public school buildings evening to accommodate these people. But shouldn't the man who wants to learn of America and her ideals have an opportunity to do so? Why not continue the evening school work, if not in the public school rooms, in some other places? The Enterprise does not want to criticize without offering constructive criticism, and would therefore suggest that the school committee get in touch with some of the racial leaders in the city, and see whether, in their opinion, suitable classrooms couldn't be found in the various halls and society rooms of the different racial groups. With the cooperation of these leaders, classes could be held in different sections of the city that would be even better attended than the evening schools ever were, and the success of the undertaking would be assured. The city would be relieved of all expense for janitor service, heating and lighting, and would merely have to provide teachers. Under recent legislation the State will pay dollar for dollar spent by any community on work of this kind, so the financial burden would not be too great. One big factory is already doing quite a little on their own initiative; the Chamber of Commerce is doing pioneer work of the best kind. Isn't it rather up to the school committee to add its weight to the extension of the program?

A GOOD HABIT

Have you been to the library lately? The winter months, with their long evenings, lend themselves to the enjoyment of good books. The shelves of the Peabody library are filled with the best fiction, both modern and classical. Educational works on every art and science are there in abundance. Librarian Keefe is on hand to give you the best kind of service, the kind of library service seldom found in cities of our size. Brush up on your reading. Now is the best time to start.

ROUND ABOUT

That the A. C. L. Magazine which comes from the press twice each month is a popular household paper was brought to my attention this week by the announcement that the other day a class in one of the primary grades was asked to bring some anecdote to the class. Three pupils brought in copies of the A. C. L. magazine from which to read their verse. The magazine is replete with feature and news stories of the 3500 employees of the big A. C. Lawrence concern, and is eagerly awaited on its days of issue. Its editorials on world topics, its lessons in government and its doctrine of safety first give the magazine a high rating among its exchanges, who are unstinted in their praise for its editors.

Patrolman Jim Murphy of the reserve force sets a fine example to some of his brother officers by his efforts to compel storekeepers to remove refuse barrels from the sidewalks. I observed him the other day suggesting to Walnut st storekeepers the wisdom of taking in empty ash cans and boxes, and his requests were promptly complied with.

That the children of our aliens early make English their vehicle of speech while engaged in play was brought to me the other day when I heard three little Polish tots, none of whom was over four years old, expressing themselves quite forcibly in English during a childish altercation. I stopped long enough to satisfy myself that they spoke English. I am sure also that their parents are non-English speaking.

I observed Isaiah Chute, Peabody's grand old man, now in his 95th year, enjoying a walk last Sunday. He hiked briskly with little of the tell-tale age drawbacks that beset a man even 20 years his junior. I am told that he looked forward to his Thanksgiving dinner with much pleasure. He is probably the oldest living Grand Army veteran in New England, if not in the whole country.

Former fuel commissioner of Peabody, George E. Hayes, is occasionally reminded of his erstwhile official position by calls from Peabody residents, to aid them in securing their supply of coal. Mr. Hayes is no longer clothed with authority to help out in the delivery of anthracite production, and is obliged to send his inquirers to other officials.

I understand that Attorney William H. Mahoney, former Representative, is contemplating a trip to Havana, Cuba, this coming month. He is to be accompanied by a client who is interested in sugar lands. Attorney Mahoney received the biggest majority on his elections, ever given to a Peabody contestant for a seat in the House, and although a Democrat, got on some important committees. It was enough to know Representative Mahoney was a Dartmouth College graduate, the same alma mater as Lieut. Gov. Channing Cox.

Secretary Ralph E. Thomas of the Peabody Chamber of Commerce is coming in for much commendation for his successful efforts to prevent the American Railway Express from compelling shippers to box all packages of 25 pounds. Mr. Thomas is given credit for having started the movement that caused the express concern to recede from its arbitrary attitude.

I am told that the Peabody Community House is planning to raise $15,000 in a campaign next February, with which to promote its broad work in this city. The institution has long since justified its existence in this city, and it seems certain that the rank and file of citizens will be eager to subscribe funds for the continuance of the work of the institution, that knows no race or creed, but which entertains and instructs our youth.

I observe that the work of building the foundation for the new plant for Thomas H. O'Shea on Grove street on the site of his old factory, is being hurried along with dispatch. The new plant will be a model one in many ways, so I am told.

Peabody political leaders are viewing with interest the attitude of Charlie Baxter, who is chagrined at the failure to whip Gov. Coolidge into line in the matter of recent appointments. To some the incident proves that Calvin Coolidge has a mind of his own.

Freak of Nature.
One might think that the powerful bumblebee and the milkweed would make ideal partners, but such is not the case says the American Forestry Magazine of Washington. These remarkable plants, which not only flow with honey, but also invite their insect guests by a strong honey scent, are utterly ignored by the big hungry bumblebee.

THANKSGIVING

By JAMES W. BECKMAN.

We observe Thanksgiving day in keeping with the time-honored custom of the Pilgrims.

Thanksgiving day was born in the hearts of a grateful little group of people who had survived a harrowing season.

Real thanksgivings are those which come spontaneously in moments of gratitude for deliverance from distress, appreciation of the beauties of life or enjoyment of genuine friendship.

We are thankful that most of our troubles never happened and that those which did passed over like the storms.

The wealth of the world has been filling our coffers to overflowing. Millions of Mammon give thanks like the blattant fatted calf, all unmindful of the fate of the fattened and battered. We are thankful to have gone through another year with its alternating joys and sorrows and await with hope and fortitude the things the next may bring forth.—Illustrated Sunday Magazine of the Boston Herald.

Ain't It Splendid?

AIN'T it splendid to be livin' 'long about this time o' year, Just around before Thanksgiving, with the mornings crisp and clear; With the children's cheeks a-glowin', with the future lookin' bright, And the shops and mills a'go'in' like red blazes, day and night?

Ain't it bracin', ain't it cheerin', when the colts kick up their heels, To approach the corn crib, hearin' turkeys gobblin' for their meals? Don't it make a fellow kinda satisfied with life and glad, When it's got so hard to find a thing that's goin' to the bad?

Ain't it fine to feel the nippin' of the brisk breeze at your nose When the old dead leaves go zippin' down the lanes, in scraggly rows, When you've hay to feed the cattle, when you love your fellow men, And you've money you can rattle in your trousers, now and then?

Ain't it fine to wake from dreamin' of the home your boyhood knew And to find the glad sun beamin' just the way it used to do, Long ago, about Thanksgiving, when you'd energy to spare, When your pa and ma were livin', and the days were always fair? —S. E. Kiser.

Pays to Be Straight.

There's a satisfaction in living up to your obligations. Only the man who consistently meets his bills can look the world in the face without either feeling shame or acting the lie. It makes a fellow step with a firmer tread when he knows that he has done his best and that no one can call him a slacker or point toward him the finger of scorn. Sometimes he may feel burdened by this constant living up to ideals when others don't, but the load will soon become one of satisfaction as conscience declares approval. You can't do better than live up to your sense of obligation.—Grit.

Poise, Worth Cultivating.

Cultivate repose of manner, calmness, quietness, emotional control. If you want to grow in personal influence over your fellow men. Poise by no means constitutes the whole secret of personality. But it is an important element in it. If a choice has to be made between two leaders, one well poised, the other excitable, there can be no question as to which will be chosen. Always poise, with its unconscious revelation of well controlled energy, will carry the day.

UNIQUE WEDDING CEREMONY AT OLD NEEDHAM HOMESTEAD

The old Needham homestead in West Peabody, which has been the scene of many a marriage, beside several silver and golden anniversaries, since its erection 250 years ago, was again filled with gay festivity Nov. 22d, the event being the marriage of Miss Julia Brooks, daughter of the late Dr. Homer Brooks of Haverhill, and Mrs. Minna Needham Brooks, to Robert Oscar Fischer, son of Mr. and Mrs. William L. G. Fischer of Everett.

At 4 o'clock the bridal party descended the colonial staircase to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, played by William L. Fischer, brother of the groom.

Miss Ruth Needham Brooks, the bride's 2½ year-old niece, and Master David Noble Brooks, the bride's 4 year-old nephew, representing the ninth generation from Anthony and Ann Potter Needham, the builders of the house, led the procession dressed in white and bearing the rings in dainty baskets. The children were driven with white ribbons, pony-fashion, by the bridesmaid, Miss Mattie Brooks, sister of the bride, who was gowned in Mandarin blue embroidered crepe de chine with accordion pleated flounce of white crepe. The bride followed, escorted by the bridegroom, according to the Quaker custom which has always been followed in weddings held in the old homestead. The bride's gown was liberty satin, with tunic and sleeves of georgette crepe and accessories of pearl. She wore a veil and a wreath of orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of bridal roses and sweet peas.

Under the large picture window in the library the pair was met by Rev. Fred D. Gealy, pastor of the West Church, and the ceremony was performed in a bower of carnations and greenery. Besides the West Peabody guests, the 250 guests present included those from Boston, Providence, Malden, Melrose, Haverhill, Franconia, N. H., Arlington, Allston, Brookline, Wakefield, Lynn, Danvers and Peabody. There were many beautiful gifts.

Ices and cakes were served. An orchestra composed of Miss Pauline Taylor, violin, and Miss Rosalie Taylor, cello, cousins of the bride, and Everett Bromley, all of Melrose, played during the reception.

The bride was formerly a resident of Haverhill, where she was an active worker in the Society of Arts and Crafts. She was formerly a student at the Fenway School of Illustration of Boston. The groom served 19 months in France, with the Headquarters Company of the 103d Infantry.

Several rooms in the homestead have been fitted up for the new home of Mr. and Mrs. Fischer.

West Peabody

At the last meeting of the West Peabody Grange the following officers were elected: Master, George Taylor; overseer, Gus Fischer, lecturer, Grace Fischer; steward, Joseph Brooks, assistant steward, Edward Croughwell; chaplain, Clara Felt; treasurer, William Moore; secretary, Bessie Taylor; gate keeper, Camino Gelott; Ceres, Evelina Martin; Pomona, Susan Danforth; Flora, Dorothy Brown; Lady Assistant Steward, Priscilla Foster; executive committee member three years, Fred Wyman; delegates to State Grange at Worcester, Dec. 9-11, Mr. and Mrs. Perley Goodale; alternate delegate, George Taylor. The lecturer-elect is to attend the lecturer's conference in Boston, Dec. 10th.

The postponed agricultural meeting in which the county agent, the manager of the Co-operative Farmers' Association, the home economics demonstrator and others will be heard, is to be held in School House hall Dec. 1st at 8 p. m.

Everett White has been elected to membership in the Amphion Musical Club in Melrose.

Eben M. Taylor is chairman of the musical committee which is managing a production of the "Messiah" by the joint musical clubs of Melrose Dec. 16.

Ruth, baby daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Daughter, is seriously ill. Leslie W. Osborn of Duxbury visited B. P. Danforth Friday and Saturday. Joseph Nowak has moved to Danvers.

Mrs. Kate Clements of Cliftondale was a recent guest of Mrs. R. B. Munroe.

G. O. P. THANKS PEABODY VOTERS

Boston, Nov. 20, 1919.
Angus J. MacDonald, Chairman Republican City Committee.

Dear Sir: Since election I have been going over the returns in some detail. It was extremely gratifying to see how complete the victory was. It was not won in any particular section of the State, but represented the overwhelming sentiment of the entire Commonwealth.

For your part in achieving the result, I wish to thank you and every member of your committee. I hope also you will extend the appreciation of this organization to those outside of your committee who co-operated with you.

The victory in Massachusetts gave new courage to other States which faced similar problems. We can all take great pride in having worked this year under the leadership of Calvin Coolidge to uphold law and order.

We are now approaching another national election. We should all do our best to see that we keep our forces together to achieve another memorable victory in 1920.

Yours very truly,
FRANK B. HALL,
Chairman.

CARROLL WON

The Carroll School football team defeated the St. John's School team at the park grounds Monday night by a score of 24 to 7.

The Carroll eleven played a good all around game. The game was featured by end runs and line plunges. There was an 80-yard run for a touchdown made by Arthur Ghana-kopolous.

There was good all around playing by Simon Beris and Peter Chigos, the halfbacks. This is the second straight game the Carroll team has won, having defeated the South School a few weeks ago.

Captain Ahearn will trot his husky eleven out to play the Center School team this week at Emerson Park.

Leslie C. Tupper has written from Macklin, Saskatchewan, that he has now been permanently appointed as a station agent. He says that many farmers in that province are selling out and moving away because wheat yields have been so poor since 1915.

The stormy night of last week, Roy Condon, of Broad st., coming from Peabody, ran his truck into one of the water pipes which lie beside Lowell st. The impact turned his machine around and damaged it considerably.

Baking note: The perfect shortbread is mealy, crumbly and not over-rich. Does Ignition give you trouble?

Very often something besides the magneto is to blame for faulty ignition.

Frequently it's poor gasoline that fails to vaporize properly and therefore ignites reluctantly and burns slowly and incompletely.

You can easily eliminate this ignition trouble by standardizing on SOCONY Motor Gasoline. It is carefully refined and uniform in quality wherever you buy it—and you are never far away from a garage or service station that sells SOCONY.

Fill up on SOCONY and once your carburetor is adjusted for this quick-burning fuel, you are sure of plenty of power on a lean mixture that burns up completely—that gives big mileage per gallon in all weathers.

At filling time look for the red, white and blue SOCONY Sign.

MARGUERITE CLARK AT STRAND TO-DAY IN WIDOW BY PROXY

What is the difference between a "bachelor girl" and an "old maid?" Perhaps you will say the former is a polite term for the latter, but it doesn't work out that way in "Widow By Proxy," the Paramount-Artcraft picture starring Marguerite Clark, which will be shown at the Strand today and Saturday.

Although Gloria Grey, the role played by Miss Clark in the picture, is an unmarried woman of marriageable age, you wouldn't think of calling such a dainty little woman an "old maid!" When she masquerades as Dolores Pennington, the supposed widow of a soldier, and pulls the wool over the sharp eyes of a pair of Massachusetts spinsters, you know she is far and away out of their class.

"Widow By Proxy" is mighty good fun and introduces ever-charming Miss Clark in a role that fits her like a glove. Nigel Barrie, just returned from service in the Royal Flying Corps, is the leading man. William Duncan in "Smashing Barriers" and a Fox-Sunshine comedy entitled "Wild Waves and Women" are the features at the local playhouse today and combined they make up a program of rare excellence.

"The Overseas Quartette" will be the feature attraction on Sunday evening. It is composed of four young men who were in the service and they render a pleasing program of popular melodies. Mae Marsh in "The Bondage of Barbara" will head the pictorial end of the bill. June Elvidge in "The Love Defender" will be the other photoplay attraction. The Strand's Sunday evening concerts are proving very popular and compare favorably with any presented in this vicinity.

"Fair and Warmer," starring May Allison, will top a big bill at the Strand on Monday and Tuesday. This is the fourth of the Metro specials and is adapted from one of the most successful farces ever presented on the American stage. The story concerns the tribulations of two young married couples. In one case the young wife complains that her husband, Billy, is so perfect that he is dull; and in the other case the young husband, though he adores his wife, employs just the tactics Billy should take advantage of—he keeps his wife guessing. And when circumstances cast together Billy and the neglected wife, the result is one of the most absurdly funny situations ever contrived.

The famous cocktail is one of the high lights of the picture, and will bring back fond memories to some folks.

Tom Moore in "Heartase" will also be presented the first two days of the week. Mr. Moore needs no introduction to Peabody, being an established favorite, not only here, but all over the United States. Mr. Moore's compelling personality dominates every scene and his fine work makes it a decidedly worth-while attraction.

Bryant Washburn in "Why Smith Left Home" and the final episode of "Elmo, the Mighty," will be shown on Wednesday and Thursday.

DOLL CONTEST

DOCTORS WILL CHARGE $3

Peabody doctors will charge $3 a visit beginning with December 1, according to an announcement made on page eight of the Enterprise today. They claim that this fee is set in most every district except Peabody. They have also voted to charge $20, as the minimum charge in maternity cases. The last charge is said to be the lowest fee charged anywhere in the State. Increased cost of living, cost of medical supplies and automobile service, makes the new rates compulsory, say the doctors.

PEABODY 7, BEVERLY 12.

That was the score of the Tanners' final football game yesterday at the Beverly stadium, played in a slough of mud and water. Again outweighed and pitted against gridiron warriors who had been better drilled, Peabody did well to keep the margin of defeat as low as they did. With only five minutes more to play, Peabody had the home team 7 to 6 on straight football, but the Beverly team came from behind for another touchdown and the victory. Captain Hubby Lawrence and his men put up a great game against big odds.

Haverhill High beat Peabody High last Saturday in the former city, because they were far heavier and better coached. That the final score was not more than 19 to 0, was due to the pluckiness with which the Tanners held the Shoe City players. How game were the Peabody players was shown during the third quarter, when, with the ball but a yard from the goal line, Peabody held their much over-weight rivals for the final down, thus averting a sure score.

Coach Broderick, who has had the Haverhill job for the past nine years, had a smashing aggregation that went through Peabody for the most time, with apparent ease. Haverhill makes its coaching a feature, and so should Peabody, if it expects to compare with teams like Haverhill. It is estimated that 700 Peabody people took in the game.

Purchasing Agent

The Mayor's announcement that he will recommend the creating of a purchasing agent's berth is business like. The Enterprise has several times editorially urged the importance of an official to fill this position. Supplies of the same nature used in various departments should be bought in bulk, and this is one of the duties of the purchasing agent.

Gloucester police and firemen are getting only $3.50 a day. Peabody's blue-coated gentry receive 75 cents more.

Councillor James T. Sullivan, whose motion to have the City Engineer's office ask for competitive bids on iron pipe needed for next year, declares he will insist that the charter be lived up to in the purchase of all supplies in excess of $200.

Newburyport, which has adopted Plan B charter, thinks small salaries get small Mayors, for its charter allows the City Council to fix as high as $5000 for salary. The salary of the Peabody Mayor is far inadequate, when one stops to think of the hours the Mayor puts on the job at City Hall.

The social committee of Leo Council, K. of C., open a series of Friday night dances tonight in K. of C. hall. James McLaughlin and Harold Kiley are on the committee, which has secured the famous colored jazz orchestra formerly at Ferncroft.

House Problem Before C. of C.

The Chamber has secured Robert Tappan, President of the Tappan Service Co., of Boston, as the speaker at the regular monthly meeting of the Chamber, which will be held Wednesday evening, December 3, at 8 o'clock. Mr. Tappan is interested in the housing question, and has given considerable thought and time to plans that will relieve the shortage of houses in the manufacturing districts, and will have a message that will be of interest to every member of the Chamber. A survey will be made by the Tappan Service Company previous to the Wednesday evening meeting, and Mr. Tappan will be able to give some definite information as to how the Chamber can assist in relieving the present shortage of houses in Peabody.

The Chamber of Commerce rooms will be used as headquarters for the local committee on the Red Cross Christmas Seal sale, which is held under the supervision of the Massachusetts Tuberculosis League.

Several entries have been received for the window display contest, which is being conducted by the merchants' division of the Chamber of Commerce and this contest is arousing considerable friendly rivalry among the merchants, and the citizens of Peabody will see practically all of the stores of Peabody in their holiday attire early in December. The merchants have planned for the holiday business, and have a good supply of Christmas presents. Albert McNeil, chairman of the committee, is devoting considerable time to this work, and with the assistance of his committee, consisting of P. Berryman, K. Staley, L. G. Lewis, Leo Murphy, Ed Lynch and B. Levin, who are devoting considerable time to this contest, this promises to be one of the biggest displays ever made in Peabody, even surpassing the MADE IN PEABODY exhibit.

The Shippers' Guide, recently issued by the Chamber, is receiving favorable comments from all the manufacturers who have secured their copy, and a copy is available for every shipper who is a member of the Chamber. This Guide is for free distribution to the members. Several copies of this Guide have been furnished to shippers in Salem, Danvers and Beverly, who have complimented the Chamber on this fine piece of work.

Mats' Minstrels Score Big Hit

The Father Mathew C. T. A. S. minstrel show presented in City Hall Wednesday evening was easily one of the best productions this society has ever staged on its annual event, and the audience of over 1500 people who braved the elements to witness the show had nothing but praise for the entertainment.

Feature numbers were, if anything, superior to any the annual minstrel show has produced and particular credit went to the soloists, all of whom performed in excellent manner.

John Cy McCarthy and Veta Brown in their specialty were a crowning feature. The dancing girls won numerous encores with Edith Sewall, the prime favorite for her clever work. Of the soloists, Helen McCarthy and Ollie Quirk excelled. The chorus was a finished ensemble and the whole show reflected great credit on its director, Justin Hanscom. The costumes evoked much favorable comment.

Jews To Protest At Massacres

A Zionist mass meeting will be held in Moose hall Sunday evening to adopt resolutions on the Ukrainian massacre of Jews. Atty. Earl A. Hershenson will preside. The principal speaker will be Abram Halbert, editor of the Jewish-American of Boston, Jacob de Hasse, national secretary, and Robert Silverman will also address the meeting.

KING IS MADE SUB-MASTER AT HIGH SCHOOL

Henry King, member of the High school faculty, has been elected sub-master of the High school. This is an innovation for Peabody, Principal Woodman having had to shoulder all of the details in addition to his class work. Mr. King is a graduate of the school and on his first term as teacher, has endeared himself to the 500 students. He has had an excellent training for his position.

MERCHANTS' WINDOW CONTEST DESERVES SUPPORT OF PEOPLE

With a winow dressing contest opening next week Saturday, as a forerunner of a big Christmas shopping for Peabody, the local merchants are anticipating the greatest holiday trade this city has recorded in years. More than 60 merchants are cooperating in the movement to give the purchasing public one of the best treats it has ever had, and the stores will be filled with all kinds of goods for the holiday trade.

The window contest for which prizes will be awarded has aroused the merchants to a high pitch of interest, and some attractive displays are assured, with novelty one of the keynotes.

By arrangement with Mayor Donnell the fire alarm whistle will be blown at 1 o'clock on Dec. 13, as the signal for the shopkeepers to unveil their windows, and the contest will be on. The committee has offered a prize of $5 for the person naming the winning window, decided upon by the judges.

A fine spirit of rivalry has sprung up among the merchants with a view to displaying the best window, and with the campaign of trade at home, it is certain that better business will result.

Christmas goods will lead in the displays in the various store windows.

Never before have the local merchants shown better concerted action in a campaign, and their efforts to boom Peabody as a shopping center, is finding a punch that is bound to stimulate the local trade.

JUDGE FAY TO BE NAMED SOLICITOR

JUDGE WILLIAM H. FAY.

Arlington High Here Saturday

Peabody High stages its last game of the season here tomorrow afternoon when the Arlington High champions of the Mystic League will bring their powerful eleven to Emerson Park. The game will be started at 2.30. Peabody fans are bound to keep their eyes on Eddie O'Connor in this game, for he has been one of the real mainstays of the Tanners all season, his tackling alone qualifying him to be rated among the leading players.

Judge William H. Fay, intimate friend and associate of Mayor Donnell, is slated to be the new City Solicitor early this coming year, according to a well founded report going the rounds.
He will succeed Judge Horace P.
Farnham, who has held that position since Mayor Donnell took office in 1917. The salary is $1600. During the several months' illness of Judge
Farnham, the office was filled by Judge
Fay. It is understood that Judge
Farnham is relinquishing the position.

BAG 2 BRAKEMEN STEALING LOOT FROM FREIGHT

Chester K. Corthell of Mt. Pleasant street, Lynn, and Merrill E.
Wheeler of 37 Mt. Vernon street,
Somerville, both brakemen on the B.
& M., were held in $1200 bonds in the district court this morning on their pleas of guilty to larceny of $1000 worth of cigars and other freight from the railroad.

Their sensational arrest occurred yesterday afternoon, near Phelps Mills, West Peabody, where they went to secure their loot. The loot they had thrown early yesterday morning, from the freight train, while it was standing.

Not until shots were fired at them by the railroad detective, Sanborn, did the men surrender. Both are married men with families, Wheeler's wife giving birth to a child within a few days. The railroad has been missing freight and detectives on the trail found some packages early this week, where the new loot was found.

When the two brakemen came yesterday in an auto to collect the stolen loot, Detectives Sanborn and New-comb of the road, Station Agent Harry Rankin and Lawrence Durkee, the latter armed with a gun, were waiting for them. The men came in

CITY HALL GOSSIP

There can be no denying the assertion in the News that the defeat of Capt. Louis P. P. Osborne for re-election to the school committee is a blow at progressive Peabody. Mr. Osborne can feel, however, that with the average vote coming out his return to the board would have resulted. He has given his best efforts to the work of the committee and the board has been just so much stronger as a result.

Atty. Louis O'Keefe, who succeeds Capt. Osborne, while a young man, has passed the bar examinations and is a prominent law office in Boston. He is a clean young man who has gotten ahead largely by his own efforts and those who know him are confident that he will do his best to further the interests of the public schools.

On the eve of election Councillor Cotton of Ward 3 informed the writer that if it were not for wanting to give his vote for the re-election of President Giles of the council, he would prefer not to be again a candidate for re-election.

The new councillor from Ward 3, George Eagan, is the proud father of a fine family of children, and those who know him expect he will make an able representative of the ward.

From this out Councillor Hogan will be the boss of Ward 4, having defeated the proclaimed Martin Lomasney of the district, whoever that person is. Mr. Hogan staged a conference 10 days before election that gave him the needed votes to win which was outgeneraling the best the opposition leaders could do to beat him.

The completion of the 1920 council doesn't appear to be worrying many department heads.

Wilbur Merrill of the board of Registrars didn't play any active part in Tuesday's election. He's thru with politics now that he has helped to land the Mayor in a nice warm county berth for three years.

It looks as if there was sure enough other guess coming in the choice of a president of the council. It won't surprise many citizens to find Giles still presiding and keeping decorum where possible among gentlemen.

Councillor Brown has received word this week that the Boston & Maine will place wig-wag signals at Lake, Winona and Summit st crossings. He got what he went after.

Mayor Donnell refuses to take the responsibility for the defeat of Councillor Cotton and the re-election of Councillor Hogan and is passing the buck to others.

They are asking who the Mayor has in mind for the job of purchasing agent and they are wondering, too, why the Mayor didn't follow the suggestion made early in his administration calling for the job to be created.

Whatever may be said about the city election, it is freely admitted that result was an aftermath of the State election that saw Rep. McVann beaten by a measly 10 votes. It's a great game, this of politics, if you have the stout heart, pipes the barnyard rooster.

There was no plot to defeat Mrs. Harrington for the school committee. She was merely a victim of the small vote and the deadly bullet.

A Peabody school teacher recently resigned to take a position in Salem schools at $900. Had she remained here she would be getting $960 by the increase in salaries. She has a school at Salem Willows and pays carfare. She lived in North Salem and could walk to the Peabody school.

Supt. Andrew of the Salem schools is most likely to fail of a reappointment next year if the report abroad in Peabody is true. His future is a matter of concern in Peabody among the school authorities, for the Salem official has drawn heavily on Peabody to fill gaps among his teaching force.

Residents of Water Works road, Arlington ave and other streets of Lynn st are saying a good word for the city engineer's office, who last week made these highways more passable by new surfaces.

A group of politicians were betting yesterday that Mayor Donnell would remain in office as Mayor until January, 1921. Why let Dutch have anything on him?

Doctors Said He Had Consumption

Cured by

Allen's Lung Healer.

We have always claimed that Allen's Lung Healer cures when all other remedies fail. Here is a case that confirms our claims. We have many other similar letters.

Mr. H. J. Allen, Dear Sir: Several years ago I contracted a heavy cold on my lungs which hung on until I began to lose weight. I tried every remedy that I could find and all that were recommended to me but continued to get worse. Finally I began to lose weight so fast that all my friends told me I had quick consumption and I was pretty well discouraged of ever being cured. I went to several doctors and the verdict was all the same, that I was rapidly going into consumption. A friend told me that your Lung Healer was doing a lot of good for different people and I resolved to try a bottle. After using one bottle I felt so much better that I took several more, with the result that the cough was cured and today I am a well man. I never fail to recommend your medicine to anyone with a bad cough.

Yours truly,

HENRY P. McLOUGHLIN,

HOUSING TALK MAY LEAD TO TENEMENTS

At the regular monthly meeting of the Chamber which was held on Wednesday evening, Robert Tappan, president of the Tappan Service Co., was the speaker of the evening, and he outlined the work of his company towards assisting communities to solve the housing question and during the course of the discussion, furnished the members with some very valuable suggestions, as to how Peabody could no doubt work out their serious question of furnishing suitable tenements for their citizens.

After Mr. Tappan's talk, it was the unanimous opinion of the members that the Housing Committee should be instructed to consult further with this company and see if some plan could not be devised, whereby houses could be erected in Peabody. This committee will meet with Mr. Tappan's company in the near future, and see what can be done towards improving the housing conditions in Peabody.

RUSSIAN CALFSKINS MAKE APPEARANCE IN PEABODY

There is a lull in the leather market. New business is coming slow but there are many orders to fill, orders that carry with them skins to be delivered for many months to come. It is natural that lulls should occur, and they make business healthy. Going at top speed does considerable wearing, whether it be machinery or the physical conditions of men. There is business enough ahead but the foreign end has slowed up no doubt due to money conditions or perhaps some of the European countries are showing their hand and offering leather at cut prices. Such a thing is bound to occur, as does a can on a dog's tail. We are destined to meet stiff competition in the near future and England, Germany and France are in a position to make a strenuous effort to get business at any cost. I hope U. S. manufacturers will show the pep to hold such business, but it is a fact they have been slow years past and must change.

A lot of Russian calfskins have arrived in Peabody. There may have been other lots, but I am of the opinion this lot of 1400 bales is the first real large invoice since the close of the war. These skins make light leather for a long time. Whether they will repeat is a matter of conjecture. It remains to be seen whether Russia will continue to be a revolutionary government for a long while or will the people finally wake up to the fact that a stable government must be accomplished before they can live in peace. What a pity with priceless resources including horsehides, cowhides and calfskins in such quantities as to be a big factor in the leather business, that some man big enough to grasp the situation as it should be grasped, cannot take the reins. With a strenuous assessing year facing me I am sorry I cannot assume the job.

Pickled sheepskins are selling like sugar. Dealers have not arrived at the point where they limit the quantity as yet, but prices are high and there does not seem to be any occasion of lowering them. In fact, there appears to be plenty of excuse to raise prices, and as everybody else does it, why not these dealers? In pausing for a reply, I might enumerate they apparently know their business, and I am intruding. I saw some pickled for 25 cents a dozen. Cheap enough you say, and they were. By placing them along side of some that sell for $29 for 12, most anybody but a Bolshevik could see the difference. Surely there are poor sheep, as well as persons, and I should judge that from 25 cents to $29 might illustrate the difference. How would it do for all of us count ourselves up and find out how much we are worth? I would say if you contemplate such an undertaking, do not hire an expert to juggle the figures.

Christmas will soon be here, and the employees should offer thanks for the many blessings thrust upon them this year and two years previous. I offer this suggestion now, for when we were at war there was little time to think of such things. We were not sure we would have a country at the beginning. But now that we are settling down on a secure basis, why not us of Peabody look the situation square in the face and acknowledge the fact that ours has been bright? I am now referring to the employees of leather factories, and not to salaried men. Should the coal famine strike our industry it may be different. But surely such business is an essential and I can see no reason why we will not be supplied with coal. If not, how nice a central plant would be to furnish power. Turn on the juice. When less than 500,000 men can stop the wheels of industry there is something wrong. Again I say, I am busy in other directions.

There appears to be little prospect of more building among the factories this year or well into next year. It costs too much they say, and we must make the old buildings do us. Many wise ones predict that prices of materials and labor will continue high.

MERCHANTS' CONTEST.

Peabody storekeepers are coming in to their own, if the interest being manifested in the coming merchants' window contest may be taken as a good criterion, and the pleasing thing about the contest is the fact, that there appears to be concerted action on the part of the retail trade. Those of us who patronize the Peabody stores know that they carry ample stocks to satisfy the purchasing public, and with anything like a vigorous campaign, the slogan of "Trade in Peabody" should be made to yield big business for the local merchants. The vying with each other to see which store window dressed for the approaching holiday will be awarded the prize, is bound to disclose many attractive windows on next week Saturday, when these will be unveiled for the public. The movement has been given the hearty support of the Chamber of Commerce, which is working with the committee to make the contest a harbinger of brisk trade for the holiday. The merchants pay a considerable part of the taxes and obviously have helped to pay for the good streets the city now boasts of, and the many other improvements which have come to this young city. Their shelves are stocked with goods that equal, and even rival those of other competing cities. The merchant stands ready to boom every Peabody movement that has for the public good, and he gives freely of his cash to help along all money campaigns.

These facts should carry weight and persuasion, where necessary, among the Peabody purchasing public who owe it to our merchants to give them their trade, where goods can be obtained here. More Peabody trade for Peabody stores would help bring about more civic improvements. Get behind our merchants and encourage them to give Peabody even better stores.

BE NEIGHBORLY.

Only a few years ago it was easy to find a section of the city where each family knew all the other families intimately; where the housewife "neighbored" with her many friends on the streets in her immediate vicinity, and where many real and lasting friendships were founded among the men, women and children of these genuine "neighborhoods." Today in Peabody, as in most other cities, it is by no means a rare thing for a family to live for years without becoming acquainted with the family next door. This condition is the result of several contributing causes, one of which is the rapid development of transportation, which enables the thrifty housewife to travel quickly to places, where in former years, she would go but seldom. But there is, no real excuse for anyone not being neighbors in every sense of the word. Webster defines the word in two ways: A person who lives near another, and one regarded as a fellow being, and hence entitled to receive, and expected to render, kindness; one on friendly terms. Spend a little time next week in living up to the full meaning of the word. Be a genuine neighbor.

RED CROSS SEALS.

We have become used to the campaign for funds since the great world war and the announcement that the annual Red Cross Seal drive for money with which to combat the great White Plague, is now on in this city, should find Peabody people ready and eager to give what they can afford to this great cause. More than 6000 men, women and children died in this State alone last year from the disease that America and the world has the most to fear in mortality. The work of the Red Cross through the sale of its Christmas Seals is to check the inroads of this White Plague among the masses. The health of our neighbors is our concern, and what makes for a low mortality rate by a cooperative effort is a movement that deserves support of the public purse. Buy the Seals and help make this campaign a big success. Of the money raised locally, 72½ per cent. remains for expenditure in this city or health district administered by the Red Cross.

WHAT ABOUT LUNCH FOR THE CHILDREN?

(From the Essex Farmer.)

Are you interested in the welfare of the children in your community? If so, have you looked into the lunch conditions in your school? How many children are eating a cold lunch every noon? Wholesome food is perhaps the most important factor in the development of the child, for children who are not properly nourished are retarded in growth, both physical and mental.

Most mothers realize that the lunch packed in the morning and carried to school to be eaten at noon, is far from satisfactory both to herself and to her children. The child soon tires of the cold lunch and less and less is eaten. The monotony may be remedied by having a hot dish prepared at school. A cup of cocoa, or soup, with the cold lunch helps to make it more palatable and a better meal will be eaten. This will result in the improved physical condition of the school children, and teachers tell us that they do better mental work when a hot dish is served.

In nearly every case where there is a hot lunch served at school, local women's committees helped in organizing and carrying on the lunch. The problem of planning, preparing and serving the midday meal for the child in school will vary with each school, the equipment of the school, and many other factors, but in no town are the problems so complex that the warm lunch should be considered an impossibility.

PURCHASING AGENT.

Mayor Donnen's announcement that he will recommend in his budget for 1920, the creating of the office of purchasing agent, is being hailed by the taxpayers, as a move in the right direction. The office properly conducted by a competent and honest man, can save the city treasury two and three times the salary which will probably be paid him, and this alone would justify the cooperation on the part of the Council in passing favorable legislation. Supplies that are in use in various offices should be purchased in bulk for proper distribution and under the hand of a purchasing agent this distribution can be made with a large saving to the city. The position calls for a competent man, and it is to be presumed that the Mayor has such a man in mind for the position, who can deal with the heads of departments and render a real service.

GRATIFYING.

Cities of several years' standing have had the baby city, Peabody, held up to them as a model by aspirants for municipal offices this year. Mayorality candidates have patterned their platforms in many cases on similar lines to those put through in Peabody. It should be gratifying to every citizen of this progressive city to have their older contemporaries set us up as a standard. Let us keep in the foreground by the same progressive, business-like methods that have made up the enviable reputation that we now have.

TEACHERS' PAY.

Editor Enterprise: The citizens of Peabody are glad that the School committee has readjusted the teachers' salaries.

This is a state-wide movement and does not affect taxes to any extent, as the State will assist all cities increasing teachers' salaries. Peabody's share will be $14,000.

The grade teachers received a higher per cent. of increase than the High school teachers, and many of the higher taxpayers feel they should receive what they petitioned for. The difference between what the committee granted and what the teachers asked for, is not more than $4500, and would make no perceptible difference in the tax rate, and it would enable the committee to retain teachers who go to cities where the salaries are larger.

CITIZEN.

The Wonders of America

By T. T. MAXEY

THE KEOKUK DAM.

THE Mississippi river has been harnessed! A genius named Cooper (Hugh L., late of General Pershing's forces in France) turned the trick.

He built a concrete dam, 42 feet wide at the bottom, 29 feet wide on top and about 53 feet high, across the river; a powerhouse in which will be housed thirty 10,000 horsepower turbines, each with its generator weighing 850 tons; a lock 400 feet long and 110 feet wide (the width being the same as the locks in the Panama canal, but the lift is higher); the largest dry dock (at the time) in fresh water and an ice fender.

It was necessary to acquire about 25,000 acres of land, build 50 miles of roads and streets and clear 5,000 acres of brush and timber. More than 1,300 property owners were dealt with. Litigation was resorted to in only about ten cases. Two hundred and eighty-nine tons of dynamite were used. Construction work required about 800,000 barrels of cement, 7,500 tons of steel, 300,000 cubic yards of sand, 3,500,000 pounds of structural steel and 20,000,000 feet of lumber.

Now, the "Father of Waters" turns the machinery that lights cities, runs street cars and operates factories. Sixty thousand horsepower of electricity is used in St. Louis, 141 miles away. Sufficient power is generated to light a boulevard from Portland, Me., to Los Angeles, Cal., using 48 candle-power lamps set 100 feet apart.

Construction started January 5, 1910. The first current reached St. Louis July 1, 1913. The total cost of the plant was $28,000,000.

ROUND ABOUT

Isaiah Chute, Peabody's grand old man, civil war veteran and the oldest living male resident in this city, called at the Enterprise office this week, and good naturedly took exceptions to a statement published recently about him in this column in effect that he was 95 years old. Mr. Chute will be 97 years old next March, and he is looking forward to his next birthday. He is still alert and takes his walk every day with a surprisingly elastic step. He is obliged to have the papers read to him, owing to his failing vision, but this is the only real tell-tale of age that he has. He ascribes his long years to a life of hard work and good habits.

According to the Thomas Carroll School magazine which is being published by the class of 1920, one of the pupils on being asked who was Governor of Massachusetts quickly replied, "Howard Donnell." The magazine is due to make its appearance this coming week and is a credit to its young authors. It contains many original stories written by the class members that show real merit. The publication has been supervised by Principal Herbert Larrabee, who is very proud of his young editors.

I am told that plans are being formulated to secure a professional football coach for Peabody High school next year, the plan being supported by the alumni in an effort to bring even greater lustre on our local athletes. The fact that Peabody High won the championship of the North Shore League reflects no mean credit on Coach Gilmore of the faculty, who gave his best efforts, and who may properly take home to himself some of the glory achieved by our boys this fall.

One of the aims of the Peabody Post Legion of War Veterans will be to establish a soldiers' and sailors' burial lot in Cedar Grove cemetery. The project will undoubtedly find the support of the cemetery commissioners.

WOMAN'S CLUB.

Peabody matrons are assured of an interesting afternoon today at the Peabody Woman's Club, when Miss Lucy Taylor of the N. E. Art School of Boston, will speak on the home furnishings. The meeting will open at 2.30, instead of at 3.30, as usual, and it will be held at the Institute.

GIRL SCOUTS IN SHOW.

Girl Scouts of the Universalist church are to hold a Christmas sale on Dec. 19 in the church vestry. An entertainment will be given the girls staging a comedy sketch, "Three of a Kind."

UNDEFEATED THIS SEASON.

The Carroll School Football team defeated the Center School last Wednesday coming off with the neat score of 13 to 0. Arthur Giancopoulos played a fine game for the winners, making two touchdowns, and also featuring a 50-yard run. Chigas also starred for the Carroll and Pitman for the Center. This is the third, and probably last game of the season.

The Carroll has not been defeated this season.

LAKE SHORE PARK.

The Ladies' Aid will hold a sale and supper next Tuesday and Wednesday. The committee in charge comprises: Mrs. Lillian Winslow, Mrs. Jennie Gould, Mrs. Elizabeth Hetherington, Mrs. Leslie Keyser, Miss Gladys Frazier, Mrs. Hattie Evans, Mrs. T. R. Burns, Mrs. Josephine Riley, Mrs. Eva Cronin, Mrs. Sadie Rainford, Mrs. Gertrude Smith, Mrs. Mary Smith, Mrs. Margaret Godwin.

Remember Those Who Served.

The great spirits of earth have been men and women who, with thanksgiving in their hearts and on their lips, served faithfully the ages in which they lived. They won the victories and reconstructed the situations through which our blessings have been handed down to us. For their consecrated services let us be truly thankful. Nor in our thanksgiving must we overlook the heroic service rendered by our own boys in the great, recent conflict, and the supreme sacrifice many of them made. They, together with their brave comrades of the nations allied with us in the battle for righteousness, saved democracy for the world.

Tribute to the Press.

Millions have no literature but the press. It is parents, school, pupil, theater, example, counselor, all in one. Let me make the newspapers and I care not who makes the religion or the laws.—Wendell Phillips.

High School

A very enjoyable evening was spent at the Junior dance in the Moose hall, Friday night. The hall was decorated in red, white and blue. There was a good sized crowd present, including many out of town people. A good sum was realized.

Emma Hurt has returned to school after an illness of a few weeks.

At a meeting of the Freshman class last Monday, the following were elected officers: President, George Lawrence; Vice President, Florence Holden; Secretary, Winham Katchure; Treasurer, Elizabeth Lins; Executive Committee, John Murray, Willis Moore and Blanche Hayward.

It is expected that many of the pupils will go to the park tomorrow to the Peabody-Arlington game, and help cheer. One of the features of the Peabody-Beverly game was the cheering, which was favorably commended, not only by Peabody people, but by others.

A meeting of the Sophomore class was held yesterday in room eight.

The pupils of the school should take advantage of the dancing class, which is to be held at the community house, Francis Merrick, '21, was out this week with a bad cold.

Many of the students went to the reception given to Peabody on Thanksgiving.

The sympathy of his schoolmates is extended to Stephen Cross on the death of his father.

Beauty.

Animals living in nature are everywhere beautiful; but it is only among men that ugliness flourishes. Savages nearly everywhere are graceful and harmonious; it is only among the civilized that harshness and discord are permitted to prevail. If the eugenic ideals that are now floating before men's eyes never lead us to any heaven at all, but merely discourage among us the generation of human creatures below the level of decent savagery, they will serve their turn.—Havelock Ellis.

A very pleasant surprise party was given Martin Peabody Doyle of Granite street, Monday evening, the occasion being his 19th birthday. A large number of his friends attended, including out of town guests from Danvers and Marblehead. During the evening, selections on the victrola were much enjoyed. Francis Collins and Roger Desmond rendered some vocal solos and Herman Young gave some fine piano solos, and was pianist during the chorus singing of popular music, in which everyone had a part. ROBERT WARWICK IN "MIZZOURA" IS THE STRAND HEADLINER TODAY— CHARLIE CHAPLIN HERE NEXT WEEK

Another famous American play has been adapted to the screen. Augustus Thomas' well known success, "In Mizzouri" which will be shown at the Strand today and Saturday, starring Major Robert Warwick. The popularity of the star in virile, all-American can roles since his return from France has been steadily increasing. His work in "Mizzouri" will add new laurels to his reputation.

The picture is a red-blooded melodrama and concerns Sheriff Jim Radbourne, and his love for Kate, daughter of his friend, Joe Vernon. Jim secretly pays for the girl's education, but when she returns from her years at school, she has grown too fine for her plain lover and becomes fascinated with Robert Travers, a fashionable fellow from St. Louis. Sam Fowler, the fiancé of Jim's sister, Emily, is accused of conspiring with the highwaymen who robbed the ex-

It is evident others differ by the way they duck new building. T. H. O'Shea has the courage to start a factory, however. He is attracted back to the place where fortune smiled on him, and with his son, will tackle the game of which he was a master practically during manhood. A. C. Lawrence Co. are building a carpenter shop to take the place of one that had a leaning toward the north. This building appeared to be ashamed of itself, no doubt because the office building appeared so stately. I do not hear of any further move by the Chamber of Commerce as to factory buildings. There is no charity in capital and it must be that there are no figures at hand which would warrant an investment in factory buildings, otherwise something would be doing, for they would let quickly.

I see that Mayor Donnell advocates a raise in water rates to the manufacturers. Sewer rentals are said to be too low. There is one thing about our sewer and water. The wants of the householders can be amply taken care of with our present equipment. Whatever needs to be added is because the manufacturers need the water and sewer. The question then comes who shall pay the bills? I will let my readers answer the question and draw their own conclusions. If we eat eggs we have to pay for them. On the other hand do not forget that a large majority of the citizens of Peabody derive a livelihood from the leather factories. They must be considered.

Keeps the Cattle Away.

Cattle will not allow young hazel, oak and most other trees and shrubs, to survive in a pasture, says the American Forestry Magazine of Washington, but the thorn-apple bushes will flourish because their sharp thorns keep away the browsing cattle.

The Humble Part.

In imperishable characters there will be inscribed on the success roll of honor names unfamiliar to most of us, the names of those who performed nobly humble parts in life; the unknown workers for humanity, the heroic sufferers—some blind, some crippled or handicapped by the loss of hands or feet, or tortured by incurable diseases—who with a fortitude equal to that of the martyrs of old, took up life's burdens and bravely made the most of the powers and opportunities bestowed upon them by the Almighty. —From "Ambition and Success" by Orison Swett Marden.

At the Monday evening agricultural meeting in School House hall, it was decided that there should be more local activity in the way of co-operation with the agents of the county's Agricultural School. Several projects are to be undertaken during 1920. The women present arranged with Miss Stratton, the home demonstrator, for courses in dressmaking and in millinery under a competent teacher.

The dressmaking project, with Mrs. T. A. Martin as leader, will begin in January, and classes will be held in some appointed place. Similarly the millinery project, led by Mrs. H. H. White, will start in February. Ladies interested in these free courses should communicate with the respective leaders.

The men of the community are to undertake pruning and poultry projects and co-operative buying. At an appointed time the pruning work, led by J. WOMEN WAR WORKERS, EAGER TO SERVE, GO TO AID ARMENIANS

Mary Vail Andrees, Only Woman to Receive Distinguished Service Medal, Heads Party.

Dissatisfied with uneventful civilian life, after two years' vivid experience as workers abroad in the world war, a party of young women, led by Miss Mary Vail Andrees, of New York City have just gone to the Near East where nearly a million people are suffering from disease and starvation.

MISS MARY VAIL ANDREES, Distinguished Service Heroine Who Now Goes to Near East.

Miss Andrees had returned to this country after serving for the Red Cross, but when she read of the sad plight of the Armenians, she at once offered her services to Near East Relief, the former American Committee on Armenian and Syrian Relief, which already has saved thousands of lives in Western Asia. Miss Andrees is the only American woman war worker who was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal by Congress. Most of the other members of her party likewise served with honor for the Red Cross and other war service organizations.

Among the other members of the group are the Misses Frances and Betty Anderson of New Canaan, Conn., who were decorated with the Croix de Guerre by the French Government; Miss Margaret Milne of Washington, D. C., who was a member of the Hoover Relief Commission for Rumania, and Miss Alex Sidney, an English woman who served for three years with the British Relief Commission in Serbia. Miss Doris Nevin, another member of the party, is a daughter of the late Ethelbert Nevin, the composer.

Col. William N. Haskell, commissioner to the Near East for the Paris Peace Commission and official representative of the Near East Relief, has cabled that the relief workers now in the field are overwhelmed by the magnitude of their task. Col. Haskell says 800,000 Armenians will starve before the next harvest unless they are given aid and 120,000 orphan children face death from hunger and exposure.

Thousands of refugees are daily being brought to the relief centers from the deserts.

EMPIRE THEATRE.

"The Other Wife" is the show to be presented at the Empire theatre, Salem, next week, with all of the popular players in the cast.

It is a vivid portrayal of a family skeleton in which the lives of two women are entwined about the one man. There is plenty of action in the plot that keeps the audience alert to the end.

Among the graduates at the Essex Agricultural school last week was Raymond H. Witham of this city.

Harry E. Trask, assistant cashier at the Warren National Bank, who served the Red Cross, as its local treasurer, resigned that office, to take effect December 1.

Council Boosts Water Rates To Factories By Vote 9 to 2

Water will cost the Peabody manufacturers beginning Jan. 1, next, 20 cents per 1000 gallons or the same rate or paid by the domestic users, as a result of the vote of the City Council last night. Messrs. Hogan and Sullivan alone opposed the recommendation of the Mayor. Both of the latter charged there was a plot on the part of big interests to make the "small fellows" engaged in the leather business pay more for their production.

The motion to increase the rates was made by Councillor McKeen, chairman of the water committee, who had figures showing that a number of other cities, including Lynn, were charging 20 cents and more. Former Public Works Chairman Edward A. Blaney was not present at the meeting in protest.

Councillor Sullivan wanted to know why a deficit was recorded in the water department of over $30,000 for the years 1916-17-18 and his question was answered by Chairman McKeen who said the only reason was because the city was not getting enough money in rates. Councillor Hogan offered a minority report.

Councillor Dugan gave it as his opinion that the increase in rates would check some of the waste of water among the various plants. He also said that in view of no opposition presenting itself from the manufacturers that he felt in duty bound to vote for the McKeen motion.

Traffic Policeman.

Councillor Ryan, chairman of the committee on streets, got by a motion calling on the Mayor to include in his 1920 budget an appropriation to pay for a traffic policeman to be stationed in Peabody Square. The same councillor made a similar motion a year ago but nothing came of it. It is said an irate business man protested a policeman moving his car only this week from Peabody Square where it was obstructing traffic. It is believed that Mayor Donnell will act favorably on the motion and order a human traffic post placed in the city's principal square as in other cities and even towns.

Councillor Sullivan got by a motion requesting the City Clerk to confer with the Mayor to have the latter include in his new budget a sum to pay for printing a financial statement of the city.

Councillor Horrigan favored having the day police directed to report at Councillors McKeen and Horrigan, Who Loomed up in Meeting Last Night.

school houses at the dismissal of school to give protection to the children in crossing streets.

Night Captain McCarthy of the police was voted an increase of $150 salary to date from July 14, 1919. This was on the motion of Councillor McKeen, who stated that the increase given to Inspector Price made the latter receive more salary than his superior officer. Capt. McCarthy was being paid $1600.

Dealers in second hand autos will have to pay a license fee of $25 in the future in this city. This amount was set by the Council last night following a communication from His Honor, the Mayor. Two applications, one from Doyle's garage and the other from Elder's garage on the Turnpike were read and granted.

Mrs. Mary E. Cassidy, through her attorney Judge Fay, served notice of a claim for personal injuries against the city caused by falling on Holten st. on the morning of Nov. 28. It is alleged a defect in the street was responsible for her injuries.

The Peabody Historical Society sent a communication to the Council protesting against changing the names of the streets in honor of deceased

JITNEYS SURE TO LOSE LICENSE--- TROLLEYS TO RULE

It is pretty well understood that the City Council will vote to revoke the licenses of the jitneys in Peabody at their meeting next Monday night when a public hearing will be given. The committee representing the jitneys will be present in a vigorous protest at the anticipated action and a lively hearing is assured.

Mayor Donnell sent in a letter to the Council last night informing them that the city electrician had brought to his attention the fact that the city is dependent upon the Bay State railway for compressed air to blow the fire whistle and also to refill storage batteries in use by the fire service. To place this a motor driven compressor would have to be purchased at a cost of $500 with no promise of an immediate delivery. The Mayor further informed the Council that the Bay State had posted notices in its cars of a suspension of the trolley service in Peabody on Dec. 18. This will be carried out unless Peabody, Salem, Beverly and Lynn revoke the jitneys.

600 Cases For Grand Jury Is Mayor's Task

Mayor Donnell who assumes his new office of District Attorney of Essex county on January 6, will have 600 cases to present to the grand jury at the beginning of his term. He is making an effort now to prepare these cases before the January sitting of the grand jury.

STATE GRANGE TO COME HERE

For the first time in the history of Peabody a meeting of the State Grange will be held in this city next October at the time the national convention of the Granges is being held in Boston. Several hundred delegates are expected to attend the Peabody meeting and plans are already being made for the convention here.

Mrs. Deborah Thomas

Funeral services over the remains of Mrs. Deborah S. Thomas will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon from her late home on Oak st. and the body will be shipped to Middleboro where she was born, for burial at Rock, Mass., a suburb of that town. Mrs. Thomas was the widow of the late Josiah B. Thomas, donor of the hospital. She was born in 1832.

Stores Ready For Window Display Prize

The window display contest under the direction of the Merchants' Division of the Chamber of Commerce which opens tomorrow at 1 P. M., promises to be one of the biggest things that has been done by the merchants in Peabody for several years. About 60 merchants have signified their intentions of taking part in this contest, and while the government restrictions on window lighting will make a hardship on their night displays, the windows will be decorated in an attractive way and should draw the attention of all Peabody citizens.

The committee has secured a silver loving cup which will be used as the tournament prize in addition to the cash prizes which are being offered by the Chamber; namely, first prize, $15; second prize, $10; third prize, $5.

In addition to the prizes offered for the best display, the committee has decided to offer a prize of $5 to the first person selecting the winning window. All persons wishing to participate in this contest, must submit their report in writing to the Window Display Contest Committee, Chamber of Commerce, before Tuesday, December 16.

Santa Claus will arrive in Peabody tomorrow at 2 o'clock, and spend Saturday afternoon and evening among the Peabody stores.

A big gallery was present at the Re-liable alleys in Salem last evening to witness the match between a team composed of the Main Office Girls and Capt. Rackliffe's Team Two of the A. C. L. league. The Misses Mary Stokes, Elizabeth and Margaret Higgins, Agnes Gorham and Blanch Southwick represented the Main Office, while the regular lineup of Team Two was on hand. The girls were "spotted" 20 points each.

A very enthusiastic meeting of the Musical and Dramatic club was held Wednesday afternoon, after hours, at the Main plant, nearly 60 people being present. The great interest shown insures the success of the show to be held next February, which is to be under the direction of Sidney Mansfield, and is to be entitled "Line Busy." Joe Lawlor and Charles Spaine are to provide the musical setting for the show, which means that many novelties will be introduced. A live committee is in charge, and all three plants are putting support behind the movement.

Edward Fitzpatrick, one of the holders of a 19-year service record with the National, passed away this week. Mr. Fitzpatrick entered the employ of the company in April, 1900. He was remembered with floral tributes from his many friends at the plant.

Hooper Southwick smashed two bowling records on Tuesday night, when he hung up a new high single string of 144 and a three string total of 340. No wonder Capt. Southwick's team is in first place in the league standing.

A match is being arranged between the Peabody Knights of Columbus bowlers and a team from the A. C. L. The K. of C. bowlers challenged the plant people last week.

George Abbott of the Book Leather department is on a business trip to New York.

Miss Mae Murphy of the Cutstock department has been confined to her home with an attack of blood poisoning in her foot.

Tom "Beef" Gildea, former baseball coach of Boston college and an A. C. L. player last summer, entered the employ of the company this week. "Beef" will come in handy the coming season, and will be a big asset to the Athletic Association.

The National Billing and Shipping departments have been moved to the fourth floor of the Main plant administration building this week, pending the construction of a new storehouse and administration building at the National. The plans for the new structure call for a seven-story building somewhat similar to that at the Main Plant, and it will be nearly as large as the original main plant edifice.

George Peabody and Daniel Collins are newcomers to the Japan Shop this week.

Miss Margaret Riley of the Japan Shop is recuperating from an operation for appendicitis at the Thomas hospital.

The Misses Annabel Sinclair, Evelyn Pitman and Elvira Macione, all of whom have been absent from their duties on account of illness, are back at the National this week.

John Cloutman, well known locally as a dog fancier, entered the employ of the company this week, starting in with the Chrome Glove Finish department in B building. Mr. Cloutman is a member of the American Kennel club, Boston Bull club, and former owner of "La Belle Wonder," that sold for four figures. He has judged numerous shows in Boston, New Bedford and surrounding cities, and is acting as ring steward at the show in Paine Memorial hall in Boston this week for Paymaster Goodhue of the U. S. N., who is judge. Mr. Cloutman was chief petty officer of general storehouse supplies in Boston Navy Yard during the war.

Kenneth Bain of the National office has been receiving congratulations upon the arrival of a seven-pound son, a few days ago.

The National are to put down a novelty in the way of wells. It will be of concrete with steel casings perforated to permit of intake of water at all water-bearing layers. The well will be 14 feet in diameter, about 70 feet deep, and dug under compressed air conditions. A few wells of this type have been put down in the West, but this is the first of the kind in the East.

Francis Hurley of Lynn has accepted a position as chemist in the laboratory, Main plant.

Plans are already under way for a Christmas entertainment at the National Office on the afternoon before Christmas. A committee is at work on the annual affair, which promises to exceed all previous offerings.

William Conroy of the National has returned from his wedding tour and is residing in Gardner Park.

Clifford Chase, formerly employed at the Cutstock, has returned to work this week in the same department.

Ronald McGilvary is now working in the Nubuck Dressing department afternoons.

Miss Edith Brown of Spring st. is newcomer to the Japan Shop this week.

David Jones, formerly of the National Shipping room, is back again on his former job this week.

Joseph Mahoney, formerly clerk of the Dyehouse, has been transferred to the Finished Assorting department.

Leonard Cassidy of the office force has been promoted to foreman in the Chrome Tan department.

THE UNIVERSALIST MEN'S CLUB.

The latter part of October the men of the Universalist Parish met and organized a club to be called "The Universalist Men's Club." The primary purpose of the club is to fill a place in the social life of the men of the parish and their friends. The meetings take place on the second Monday evening of each month. An enrollment of 50 men has already been obtained. At the meeting on Monday night last, an escalloped oyster supper was served by a committee composed of Lewis Bodge, Charles S. Batchelder, Herbert L. Brown and Frank H. Childs.

After the supper Nicholas Casavetas of the Pan-Eperotic Union of America gave an address on "American Mandated in the Near East," in which he brought out the fact that the Greeks and Armenians are calling for their independence, being wholly separated from the Turk. They want their status as a nation recognized. A quartet composed of Nikita Mitulinsky, Michael Fischuke, Evan Sukach and Chariton Demchenkp gave a number of Russian folk songs and tenor solos were given by Stephen Frages, in both English and Greek.

Leach—Durkee.

There was a pretty wedding Tuesday evening, Dec. 9, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer E. Durkee, West Peabody, when their daughter, Mary Evelyn, was married to Charles Austin Leach, son of Charles E. Leach.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Fred D. Gealy, pastor of the West Church, the couple standing under a pretty arch in a room decorated with palms. The double ring ceremony was used, the rings being borne in dainty baskets by Virginia Durkee, a cousin, and Harlan, a little brother of the bride. The wedding march was played by Miss Hazel Durkee, a cousin.

The bride was given away by her father. She was gowned in white satin with pearl trimmings and wore a veil caught up with orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of white roses.

The guest book was in charge of Miss Mabel Leach, a sister of the groom. Relatives were present from Danvers, Lynn and Salem.

Mr. and Mrs. Leach are graduates of Peabody High School, both being in the class of 1915. Until recently Mrs. Leach held a responsible position with the New England Confectionery Co. of Boston. Mr. Leach is a veteran of the World War, going to France as a sergeant of Sanitary Train, in the Medical Corps of the Seventh Division.

After a short trip the couple will make their home at 61 Court st., Keene, N. H., Mr. Leach being a Y. M. C. A. secretary in that city.

Further discoveries have been made of loot hidden by the two brakemen, whose arrests were reported a week ago. Four more cartons of cigarettes were found near Taylor's Ditches, all more or less damaged by water. Evidence has been found that some loot, in the past, has been removed from near the red bridge on West street.

Francis M. Jones has sold his place on Forest street to a Greek physician from Lynn. Mr. Jones plans to locate in Salem.

Robert Fischer has accepted a position as electrician for the Esse Amine Works, South Middleton.

Mrs. Charles Miller of Millis was a recent guest of Mrs. B. P. Danforth. Joseph Brooks is working in a downtown factory for the winter.

The 11.20 Saturday night train and the 2.25 p. m. daily train for Boston have been removed because of the coal shortage.

A class has been organized at the West school for the study of the violin. Lillian Rankin, Robert Moulton, Amo Mackie, Catherine and Grace Houghton, Willard Tenney, Edward Moore, Joseph Druin, Ada MacDonald and Merton Cashmas make up the class, which is to be taught by Miss Helen Lane of Peabody.

George Colford of the household of W. B. Phillips was operated on for appendicitis at the Thomas hospital Dec. 4. He is fast recovering.

Habitual driving of autos across the grass in the front of the West School is not improving appearances. Why be careless with public property?

Ralph Ambrose has left the employ of F. K. McIntyre and gone to live with his sister in Needham.

Some person borrowed two ladders of W. B. Phillips recently and neglected to tell him of it.

Miss Marion White entertained five of her young friends at a party in observance of her first birthday Wednesday. Though much younger than her guests, she was the most traveled, having been born in Shantung, China.

Assessors Have Given Service

There is not likely to be any change in the personnel of the assessors next year and on their record of having secured results in their important office there is little excuse to unseat any member. Chairman Quirk has proved one of the best appointments of Mayor Donnell's regime and the position of clerk filled so capably by George R. Nelson insures that official a re-appointment.

CITY HALL GOSSIP

Peabody could well save money in its water department if it used a Henry Ford to convey the man who reads the factory meters.

Councillor Hogan will vote to re-elect President Giles of the City Council.

Atty. Michael J. Sherry, former town auditor and representative, is going to be a candidate for mayor next year. One of his campaign issues will be the publishing of a city document so that the rank and file of taxpayers can read at first hand the financial condition of the city.

Dame rumor has it that Mayor Donnell is likely to make several new appointments early in 1920. It is said he has asked for resignations of some of his appointments.

Apocryphal of resignations, Judge Farnham took exception to the "scoop" in the Enterprise last week which stated that Judge Fay would be named to succeed him. His exception is that he is not resigning of his own free will.

Mayor Donnell put Citizen Edward M. Blaney, former chieftain of the public works, in the class with Demosthenes and Aristotle a few days ago while engaged in his favorite pastime. That's some compliment to the erstwhile P. W. chairman who startled the citizens last week by giving some facts on the cost of the water supply. Just why Mr. Blaney was styled a radical is not clear in the minds of some of the citizens for those who knew his services with the old public works gave him credit of having proved a painstaking official. Anent the water charges which he elaborated on at length, it might be interesting to know that it was his motion that raised the rates of the manufacturers from 12 cents to 16 cents back in 1916. Mr. Blaney is honest in his deliberations and his article (which he wrongly and unfairly thinks the Enterprise would have refused to print) has caused a lot of comment. In passing it must be admitted that Mr. Blaney showed he had studied the situation even if some of his points are said not to be borne out by facts.

City Auditor Goggin is likely to be named purchasing agent if the mayor's suggestion to create the office is carried into action by the council. He should make a good man. He has certainly proved a most efficient man in his present berth.

Councillor Cotton of Ward Three, who was defeated at three city elections, greeted by colleagues at the special meeting with a smile and did not appear eager to accept condolences. Will all of his troubles on the claims committee be handed over to Councillor-elect Eagan?

The re-election of City Clerk Francis L. Poor appears to be a foregone conclusion without a dissenting vote, and it is only proper that this should be. He has given his best efforts to the offices which he holds and there can be no criticism of his work. His records of the meetings are flawless and his grasp of the multitudinous duties of his exacting office entitle him to the votes of every councillor. He answered the call for volunteers and secured a commission, and it wasn't his fault he didn't see service in France.

DENTAL CLINIC IN SCHOOLS WOULD AID PUPILS' HEALTH

Editor Enterprise:

The health of this city is its greatest asset. The mouth is the entrance to the human system. A neglected, unclean and unhealthy mouth impedes the possibility of a healthy individual.

The numerous consequences which result from a broken down and diseased set of teeth are too well known to intelligent people to need elaboration; but even a well known fact often gains force by repetition.

Decayed teeth not only interfere with the process of nutrition, but favor the growth and multiplication of disease germs so that the person whose vitality is already lowered becomes an easy prey to disease.

Infections at the root ends caused generally by pulpless teeth ("dead teeth") so called produce poisonous products which are readily absorbed into the blood and result in poor health, lowered physical efficiency and diminished capacity.

Now if one were to go with a dentist through the schools of Peabody, examining the teeth of every child, one would find decayed teeth to the positive estimate of over 95%. Are not these figures startling? And yet it is only too true, as may be borne out by the fact that records of school clinics in neighboring and distant cities show this very condition to exist previous to the establishment of such clinics.

All the world now realizes that prevention is more important, more sane, more economical than actual cure. Therefore, it follows that the remedy for the present condition of the mouths of the children of Peabody is the establishment of a Dental School Clinic, where these children may receive systematic and proper attention at a smaller cost.

It has been observed in other cities where school clinics are now in operation that the atmosphere in the classrooms is more pure and free from malodor, and that the children of these schools have progressed more rapidly in their studies since the establishment of these clinics.

A resolution that was offered and adopted at the meeting of the Dental Society of New York State in May, 1919, in regard to the city of Bridgeport, Conn., which had inaugurated dental clinics in its public schools, set forth:

As a result of five years of school clinics, which was acted on by this society:

1. The cost of re-education of children in 1912 was 42% of the budget, and in 1918 this cost was reduced to 17%.

2. The decay of the teeth in 15,000 children was reduced 33 1-3%.

3. The number of children failing to pass in their examinations for promotion was reduced in some grades as much as 50%.

4. The death rate from diphtheria, scarlet fever and measles was reduced 70 %.

5. During the influenza epidemic the death rate was the lowest of any

COUNCILLOR HOGAN.

dozen or more Republican votes which went to his candidacy, Councillor Hogan was returned to office for another two years, and as stated in last week's issue of the Enterprise, he proposes to be the boss of Ward Four from this out.

The records of the City Council since its inception back in January, 1917, will show that numerous worth while motions have come from him, and while his vocabulary has not been as profuse as some of his contemporaries, he has been able to deliver a punch every now and then that kept his name in print.

In the earlier days of his office he was misguided by almost sinister influences that prevented him from showing to best advantage, but the wool came off his eyes and he was less pliable. For sometime he has been running to form and he has a way of driving home truths. Those who know the Ward Four spokesman give him unstinted credit of being honest and on the level. This attribute is his even from those who don't agree with some of his logic.

THE JITNEYS.

Whatever the outcome of the public hearing Monday night before the City Council on the "petition" or "threat" on the part of the laymen trustees of the so-called Bay State Street Railway it is certain that no small public sentiment is with the jitneys. It is also positive that unless the railroad officials improve their service and regulate the fares that public sentiment will again grow strong for the resumption of the jitney busses which have since the trolley fare increased taken the cream of the transportation here. A ten-cent fare to Lynn and a five-cent fare between Peabody Square and Town House Square are two conditions that the Peabody City Council should insist on being guaranteed by the railroad. A ten-cent fare to Beverly is not held excessive by Peabody men who are employed in the shoe machinery city but these men have a right to demand ample seating capacity to handle the traffic else the jitney bus is a thing to be desired. It has taken the trustees a long time to improve on the old methods and the public is not to be blamed if it is still skeptical as to the wisdom of ruling the jitney competition outlawed. As a Danvers writer stated this week, "It might be a good thing to let the railroad pull the chestnuts from the fire for the jitneys were forced on the public by the railroad." It must be borne in mind that hundreds of Salem, Lynn and Danvers residents who are employed in Peabody, as well as the manufacturers—the employers—are concerned in the outcome of the jitney muddle and this concern should be part of the business of the City Council of Peabody in its deliberations and action next Monday night.

CARELESSNESS.

At the foremen's meeting held at the Water Rivers plant of the A. C. L. last week, Dudley M. Holman, former member of the Industrial Accident Board, gave a most interesting address on prevention of accidents in industrial plants. His address given in large part in the coming edition of the A. C. L. magazine is bound to be read with absorbing interest by every one of the 3500 employees of the big Peabody concern and much good should result. The speaker laid great stress on the importance of treating so-called minor injuries at the time of their occurrence and he had copious facts and figures to prove that the proverbial "ounce of prevention was worth more than the pound of cure." He held that foremen were in a large way responsible for many of the accidents that maim our workers in the factories, a responsibility they frequently dodge by failing to sufficiently instruct the men under their supervision in the ordinary precautions against danger in operating machinery.

CHILDREN'S TEETH.

The Enterprise calls attention of all parents of children in the public schools to an illuminating article published elsewhere in these columns on the wisdom of establishing a dental clinic in the schools of Peabody. It is a subject with which the school committee should concern itself and with the support of the Mayor endeavor to advance the means to supply the facility to all of the grade schools, at least on a scale which will give the work a sufficient test to warrant its expansion. Medical authority has come to lay great strength on the importance of care of the teeth among our children as preventative of many diseases they are heir to. The clinic is not an experiment and indeed in several cities including Beverly it has become an excellent adjunct to the public school system.

SMALL HOME OWNERS.

The home owner is the best little stabilizer in all this great country. When the question of law and order arose in Boston, the bone and sinew of the State, the small home owner, was a unit in support of the Governor. Home owners, whether of the laboring class or the employing class, have a different outlook on life than do those who own no homes. They have stability, a sense of pride in the community, a strenuous antagonism against "direct action." Others undoubtedly have the same feelings, but in a different degree. The answer is to encourage everybody to own their own home, or at least a fair equity in it. Not only encourage them to own it, but help them to do so.—Lynn Item.

GIVE THEM A SHARE.

When the merchants of Peabody unveil their show windows to the public tomorrow, a fine exhibition of their wares will be offered. Probably the larger part of the purchasing public of the city will view these windows. During the next two weeks a tremendous amount of buying will be done by these same people. The Peabody merchants are competing for their proper share of this business. They are willing to have the quality and price of their wares compared with those of neighboring cities. All they ask is that the people of Peabody give the storekeepers at home an equal opportunity with the "other fellow." It is good business for everyone to do this; it is the proper community spirit, and it all goes toward a bigger and better Peabody.

Useless to Try.

ROUND ABOUT

The Salem Chamber of Commerce is sailing under false colors, if it is responsible for an article published Dec. 6 in a Salem paper which made it appear that the Witch City commercial body was the first one of its kind to remonstrate with the American Railway Express Co. proposed ruling to have all packages of 25 pounds boxed. As a matter of fact, the Peabody Chamber of Commerce was the only commercial body in Massachusetts to make an issue of the proposed ruling with the result that the local Chamber was given the official credit for the new ruling which allows packages of leather up to 75 pounds to be shipped without being boxed. Too many Peabody men who help support the Salem Chamber know the truth to quibble over the credit of the thing. But then, Salem has long been jealous of Peabody.

I observe that William F. Fitzgerald, president of the Turner Tanning Machinery Co. of this city, has been named a director in the national exhibition of U. S. manufacturers to be held in Buenos Aires next April. Mr. Fitzgerald is one of the live wires of State st., Boston, and will add a force to the board of directors that will go far to insure success of the exposition in the South American country.

I doubt if it is generally known that six former A. C. L. employees lie buried in Flanders, having made the supreme sacrifice in the successful drive against the German invaders of France. Three other A. C. L. boys answered the final roll call in the States while in the service of Uncle Sam.

A year ago today the Enterprise carried an interesting letter from Charles A. Wells, the registered clerk at Curtis' drug store, which told of his work among the wounded Yanks in a base hospital in France. The outstanding feature of his letter was the compliment he paid the wounded boys all of whom, he declared were very brave and uncomplaining despite their severe injuries from shrapnel. Wells was a first class sergeant in charge of the dispensary and rendered fine service to Uncle Sam.

Roger H. Smith, one of the leading auto supplies store owners of the city, has acquired a new hobby this week in the installation of a new heating apparatus for his business block on Lowell st. It is the only one of its kind in Peabody and when the genial Roger isn't talking shop he is fast acquiring an expert's knowledge of heaters that heat and save coal.

A good-sized limb of one of the elms near the corner of Main and Washington sts. came crashing to the pavement early Wednesday afternoon in the strong gale to the consternation of sundry passersby and barely averted striking a passing auto and a trolley.

Chief Grady is on the warpath of motorists who park their cars and trucks near the soldiers' monument in Peabody square noontimes, and as a result of his activity a former political satellite is waxing warm under his collar. The chief is likely to have his way about it. One day this week some careless autoist left his car almost touching the traffic post near the South Church and directly behind a big truck headed almost up Lowell st.

I am told that nearly 100 Peabody men are employed at the United Shoe Machinery Co. plant in Beverly, not a few of this number holding responsible positions with the big concern.

A new leather stretcher which is said to yield greater measurement per skin is a new invention of interest to the leather world so I am told. The Woburn Machine Co., which operates a large plant in this city, is manufacturing the product which is from the hands of a Detroit inventor.

Agent Irving M. Forrest of the B. & M. has received instructions as to the delivery of coal shipments made to Peabody during the federal control. He is furnished with a priority list.

SCRUB BULL DOOMED.

The death knell of the scrub bull in Essex county was sounded at the annual Farm Bureau meeting at Hathorne, (Essex County Agricultural School), December 3d, when the report of the committee on the Pure Bred Bull Campaign was read and accepted enthusiastically by the 300 farmers present. Farmers all over the county have committed themselves to work hard to eliminate the wasteful pest, the scrub bull, and systematically, too.

Member of Committee Directing Nation-Wide Episcopal Campaign

REV. ALEXANDER MANN, D.D.

The Rev. Dr. Alexander Mann, who twice declined election to the Episcopate and who was elected to the chair of the House of Deputies in three Episcopal General Conventions, including that of this year, is a member of the Joint Commission on the Episcopal Nation-Wide Campaign. Dr. Mann has been rector of Trinity Church, Boston, since 1905.

Dr. Mann, entering the Church in 1885, became assistant of St. James' Church, Buffalo, and in 1900 of Grace Church, Orange, N. J., ultimately being made Archdeacon of Newark. He declined his election as Bishop of Washington in 1906, and as Suffragan Bishop of Newark in 1915. He has been a deputy to six Episcopal General Conventions.

The purpose of the Nation-Wide Campaign is to arouse every member of the church to its responsibilities and opportunities in the present crucial era of reconstruction; to send out 1500 new workers that the church may expand its educational, hospital and social service work at home and abroad. More than one hundred thousand men and women are workers in this tremendous campaign.

High School

At a largely attended meeting of the sophomore class last Thursday the following were elected class officers: President, Ralph Holden; vice president, Marguerite Smith; secretary, Elizabeth Gourley; treasurer, Mildred Platts. The executive committee are Helen Southwick, Grafton Broughton and Mansfield Monroe. The class decided to have their colors blue and gold. The committee on class rings are Dorothy McCharles, Maria Johnson (chairman), Eldridge Tarbox and Grafton Broughton.

Elizabeth Flynn is recovering from a severe attack of appendicitis.

Mrs. Ralph Kelly substituted for Miss Cashman in room 7 this week.

The Juniors and Seniors will hold their monthly dance in the assembly hall tonight.

Strikes are in the air even with the High School pupils. Last Monday some boys in the High School Annex refused to go into the classroom. They did go and as a result were given three afternoon slips apiece.

The Senior class will hold their dance the night after Christmas. As all Senior dances are a success, it is hoped this one will surpass all previous efforts.

It was planned that all the Junior girls would come to school Tuesday with earrings.

Gladys Durkee, room 1, was absent from school last Wednesday.

Copies of the Carroll School Magazine, which is presented semi-annually, are being sold. This is a very interesting magazine and it seems as though the High School should have a similar one.

The sympathy of the school is extended to Miss Cashman of the faculty on the death of her mother.

Many High School girls are already working in stores afternoons for the Christmas season.

VIVIAN MARTIN HEADS STRAND BILL TODAY--NEXT WEEK'S SHOW

Would you sign an agreement to become the fiancé of your cold-blooded millionaire employer for a few weeks "for business reasons only?" That's the peculiar proposition that is put up to Vivian Martin in her new picture, "Her Official Fiance," which will be shown at the Strand today and Saturday. Being hard pressed for funds, she agrees to the arrangement and complications and fun start that moment. She finds, to her surprise, that, given proper surroundings, her stern fiancé is not the bear the office force has always considered him. A former lover, a pest of an uncle, and the sudden appearance of a French girl, in whom her employer takes an unwonted interest, pique the audience's curiosity, it is said, and carry this delightful picture to its startling and thoroughly satisfying denouement.

William Duncan in "Smashing Barriers" and a Fox-Sunshine comedy, entitled "The Yellow Dog Catcher," will also be shown today and Saturday in addition to the Miss Martin's picture. The comedy is the one selected for the Prince of Wales during his visit to the Academy of Music in New York City.

Madge Evans, the popular juvenile star, will head the program for Sunday evening in a charming little story, "Home Wanted." Miss Evans has recently signed a contract with the Prizma Producing Company and this is one of the last World pictures in which she will appear. Marguerita Fisher in "Charge It to Me" will be the second attraction for Sunday. Emory Johnson and Bull Montana, who will be remembered for his fine work in Fairbanks' pictures, have prominent parts in "Charge It to Me."

Arsene Lupin, the French crook character made famous by Maurice Le Blanc, is the hero of the Paramount-Artcraft Special, "The Teeth of the Tiger," which will be presented at the local playhouse on Monday and Tuesday. The role of Lupin is portrayed by David Powell, who has appeared recently in support of Elsie Ferguson.

One of Mack Sennett's rib-tickling comedies, entitled "Back to the Kitchen," will hold up the comedy end of the bill for the first two days of the week. It is a positive cure for the blues and the Pictograph will be shown along with the rest of the program.

Charles Ray in "The Crooked Straight" will be shown next Wednesday and Thursday.

Among the big features listed for an early showing at the local playhouse are included Ethel Clayton in "More Deadly Than the Male," D. W. Griffith's "Scarlet Days," Irene Castle in "The Invisible Bond," William S. Hart in "John Petticoats," Charlie Chaplin in "A Day's Pleasure" and the Cosmopolitan special, "The Miracle of Love."

Writer Favors Dental Clinic For Children

city of the same size in the United States.

The fact that so large a percentage of children have defective teeth is proof that the problem is a most serious one, and one that must be taken up from a public standpoint for the future safety of our citizens. The problem is too large for the dental profession to handle privately. It is essentially a public health and educational problem and can only be taken care of by the municipality.

The proper place to conduct such a clinic is in the schools and nowhere else, as may be proven by the experience of Dr. Blum of New York City, who found that by not having the clinics in the schools nearly 50% of the children who had been treated once never returned. Whereupon he suggested to the authorities that these clinics be established within the schools, and the result was such a success that the Oral Hygiene Committees are now engaged in the task of arousing public sentiment so that a Dental Clinic may be established in every school in New York City.

The problem of keeping spark plugs free from carbon crust that cuts down the spark gap, short circuits the current and makes your engine "miss," is not hard to solve.

It is largely a matter of uniformity in the vaporizing and in the flame speed of your gasoline, combined with correct adjustment of your carburetor to insure clean, complete combustion. Standardize on SOCONY Motor Gasoline. It is carefully refined, high quality gasoline that always has uniform vaporizing and ignition qualities. What an opportunity for the crook to Lord Leverhulme spoke before the Boston Chamber of Commerce recently. His pet theme is a six hour a day program. Within a year one of his plants in England was visited by an American citizen, whose word would not be doubted, and with the exception of workers who could not stand a longer working hour, owing to the kind of work they were doing, there was no six-hour working day in that factory. Lord Leverhulme is the head of a monstrous soap concern. The dexterity with which that soap was handled was wonderful. It may be his Lordship was handing us a specimen of soft soap. He may have a reason for practicing what he does not preach. There are many others. Theorizing costs little money as compared with putting it into practice. That is why so many professional men assume to tell the people how to run the country, when some of them at least have shown us they are unfitted for the job. Rhetoric sounds well to the audience.

Funds for the furniture needed to equip the rooms of the Peabody Post are coming in very slow and the committee has about decided to begin a personal canvass of the manufacturers and citizens in general in order to raise the required $2000.

The election of officers is set for Monday night. There are several sharp contests looked for, chief among which is that of Commander Osborn Palmer who is opposed by Lieut. William Walsh. There are 25 candidates for the executive board, nine to be elected.

An appeal to the public for magazines and good books is being made for the reading room of the Legion.

There is some talk that an Auxiliary may be formed in this city as in other places where the women folk work to advance the interests of the war veterans.

The Legion members hope to see a winning hockey and basketball team in action in this city. Manager John Quinn has asked for the use of the City Hall auditorium in which to hold the basketball games.

EXHIBITS SKINS IN C. of C. WINDOW

Much interest is being shown in the exhibit of tanned leathers in the Chamber of Commerce window on Lowell st. which are being displayed by Walter J. Lloyd, a former Peabody man and now a resident of Miami, Florida. The exhibit comprises alligator skins, shark skins and other hardy fish of the gulf stream and all have been tanned in Peabody by the new American extract prepared by Mr. Lloyd.

Mr. Lloyd claims that his tanning preparation precludes the necessity of foreign extracts. His preparation is known as Gametto which comes principally from the palmetto roots of the southern state.

NEEDS TRAFFIC POST.

There would seem to be urgent need of a traffic post being placed at the junction of Walnut and Central sts. to divert autos entering Central st. There have been several near crashes of autos due to the fact that machines coming from Walnut st. take the left of the street into Central.

Peabody will be well represented tonight at the public installation of officers in Camp Parker, Lynn, which is composed of Americans who served in the Canadian forces.

JITNEYS WILL FIGHT DECREE

A. P. Merrill Died Dec. 13
In Pasadena

Mr. and Mrs. Albert H. Merrill received the sad news of the death of their son, Arthur P. Merrill, at his home in Pasadena, California, on Dec. 13. Mr. Merrill was born in Peabody May 8, 1878, attended the public schools, graduating from the high school in the class of 1897. He studied architecture at Technology and worked at his profession in Boston for a few years and in 1909 moved with his family to Tacoma, Washington, continuing in his line of business there, later going to Southern California, and previous to his death was employed in architecture at Los Angeles. He married Rosaline, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William T. Lee, formerly of Peabody, who survives him, together with three boys, aged 14, 4 and 3 years. His early passing away is a sad blow to his family and his parents, who have the sympathy of a large circle of friends.

Somerville
Mayor and Officials Here
To See Streets

Mayor Eldridge and city officials of Somerville will be the guests of Mayor Donnell and Council this afternoon for an inspection of Peabody's streets. The party is due to arrive here at 2 o'clock. The visitors include the Aldermen of the city and they are interested in seeing Peabody's half million dollar streets, the municipal garage, police ambulance and patrol. They will also be shown through the A. C. Lawrence Leather Co. plant. Following the afternoon inspection the party will go to Wardhurst where Mayor Donnell and city officials will give the visitors a dinner.

BUS OWNERS GET POLICE ORDER ON VOTE OF COUNCIL

Jitneys were declared outlawed by the Peabody City Council last night by a vote of 7 to 4 and the Bay State Street railway restored its car service to the city early this morning. It found, however, the jitneys still operating and taking the cream of the early morning traffic to Lynn and Salem. Beverly and Salem voted out the jitneys also last night.

Although apparently ruled out of business, the jitney owners, 26 in numbers whose permits ran to net May, are determined to use every means to combat the edict and the end of the mooted question is likely to find its way into the Supreme Court. Not until the police step in and enforce the revocation of the jitney licenses will all of the jitneys withdraw from the field.

Acting on orders from Chief Grady today Inspector Pierce notified the jitney owners to stop doing business. Arrests will follow their refusal to abide by the edict.

As a preliminary vote the adoption of the order. Council was first called on to pass on the revocation of a license granted to Jacob Eidelstein and Councillor Reed moved

CITY HALL GOSSIP

The suggestion is made that the city erect signs in front of City Hall warning autoists approaching the square not to exceed an eight mile an hour speed. It might help some.

I hear much sympathy expressed for Miss Boyle, the nurse in the employ of the Board of Health, both as regards her salary, which is still $18 a week, and secondly because she has to walk to all parts of the city. Miss Boyle has made a competent nurse, and gives the best effort possible to her work, and the high cost of living hits her like all of us.

Next week being Christmas week, what would be better than to give and receive presents in City Hall? It may be premature, for although salaries are said to be "going up," that bird in the hand stuff should be remembered.

The Mayor attended a dinner to the Mayor-elect of Methuen recently. Methuen became a city recently, and of course, our Mayor was called on to start the machinery, so successfully started in our city.

I heard a citizen remark recently, that should the building of a new

High school be left to the voters, it would be easily voted down. That are assuming new expenses the commission is the opinion of others also, for we are year in our water department, and they are of the opinion the school can wait. No doubt many differ.

Never were politics warmer than after the recent city election. There were as many sores as an epidemic of boils. But like all elections, everything has returned to the regular channels, with nothing doing.

It has been intimated that Charley Cotton would run another year as councillor-at-large. I think this statement is premature, and that Mr. Cotton is satisfied to set on the side lines for a while, and let the other fellow suffer. Politics may be attractive, but not always healthy.

No one is predicting who will be the next president of the Council. We have our ideas, but why publish them, for all have a guess. Our friend Hogan holds a part of the whip, it would seem, and no one can figure how he will crack it. If the stories about electioneering in Walnut street are true, Giles should win the money. But—

Chapman had held a similar position with the company in Manchester, N. H.

Miss Maria Curtis of Elm street and Miss Alice Barry of Washington street, arrived home today for their Christmas vacation. Both girls are students at Trinity college, Washington, D. C.

William A. Elliott from Edmonton, Alberta, Northwest territory, is spending the next few months with his sister, Mrs. H. M. Blair, 69 Endicott street.

S. Walter McDonough, president of the Lynn City Council, has been ill at the home of his sister in Perkins' Park this week.

LEADS DOLL CONTEST.

Julia Sheridan of 15 Beacon street is leading in the Christmas doll contest at Curtis' drug store today, with a number of close rivals, who will make a great effort to go into first place this coming week. The girls who are highest in the contest next to the leader are Louisa Moura, Francis Ryan, Mary Morris, Jennie Sylva, Eleanor Donovan, Eleanor Hammond, Sara Stern, Pearl Poeton, Rose Glass.

He Knew.

The teacher had spent twenty minutes impressing on her pupils the correct pronunciation of the word "vase." The following morning she wanted to find out if the children remembered, so she turned to one little boy suddenly and demanded: "What do you see on the mantelpiece at home, Jackie?" "Father's feet, miss!" came the prompt reply.

USE TO IT.

Do you mean to say that your daughter hasn't told you she was engaged to me? Yes, I told her not to bother me with those affairs unless she intended to get married.

"Oh, Boy!" comes to the Empire theatre for the holiday week, and lovers of musical comedy should wax exceedingly glad. All the members of the Empire Players have congenial parts and will surprise all with their singing ability.

WEST PEABODY

The 11.20 Saturday night train from Boston has been put back on schedule, beginning tomorrow night.

West Peabody people are wondering how the High school pupils and the others of the West school will be transported, if Peabody abandons the jitneys. It would not pay anyone to maintain such a large bus simply for two trips a day.

There have been 24 women who have joined the millinery course, which is to be given in February under the auspices of the Essex Co. Agricultural School. All additional names must be handed in to Mrs. H. H. White this week in order that a teacher may be engaged.

Rev. Fred D. Gealy will leave Monday for his Christmas vacation which he will spend at his home, 1109 W. 2nd St., Oil City, Pa.

George Thurrel has gone to visit his sister at North Berwick, Me.

Robert Gallup, who has been put in full charge of the plant of the New England Sand and Gravel Co., leaves tomorrow for his Christmas holiday at his home, Fairport, N. Y. He plans to move his family here in the near future.

Mr. and Mrs. Perley Meek of Newburyport visited his sister, Mrs. H. W. Rankin, over Sunday.

Mrs. E. E. Nelson of Camden, N. J., and her two young sons will spend the winter with her brother, Olaf Monson. Mr. Nelson is in the U. S. navy, and is stationed in Florida.

Miss Dorothy Danforth has been too ill to attend school the last two weeks. Edward L. Pease is having serious trouble with his eyes. It was necessary for him to seek a specialist, Wednesday.

Special attention is called to the Christmas activities of the West church, as given under "Church Notes."

Christmas is to be heartily celebrated at the West School. Already in each of the four rooms, have appeared trees and extensive decorations.

A thorough canvas of West Peabody was made by the cooperative grain-buying committee. It was found that the amount of grain used locally per month, barely comes up to the new government minimum allowed for a car, of 25 tons. Subtracting those who cannot buy on the cash basis and those who have two or three month's supply on hand, it appeared necessary to abandon the project for a few months, when factors might become more favorable.

West Church.

Rev. Fred D. Gealy, pastor. Sunday morning service at 10.30 A.M. Theme, "The Coming of the King."

Special music by Primary Department with the chorus, and a duet, "On Bethlehem's Plains" by Miss Clara Morey and the pastor. A Christmas offering will be received for the benevolences of the church, it confidently being expected that $55.00 will be received.

Sunday School, 11.45. Christian Service, 6.45 P. M. Leader, Bessie Taylor. Subject, "Giving." Interesting facts about Christmas hymns will be told.

Evening worship at 7.30. It will be in the nature of a Christmas service. Anthems by the chorus, directed by E. L. Pease.

Sunday School Christmas Tree on Wednesday evening at 7.30. Before the giving out of presents, there will be an interesting program of recitations and music, and a play entitled "A Christmas Lesson" in which 11 of the older children take part. All are invited, whether members of the Sunday School or not.

CHRISTMAS BELLS

Hark! Hark! I hear a distant bell,
And now a chime they softly ring;
What joyful things do they tell
As back and forth they awing.

'Tis mid of night—who rings those bells?
Perhaps some doves there nestling,
And while each little bosom swells,
And warm they touch with gentle wing
The tinny metal, and it rings
So loudly it would swing
To life, and wake the world with peals
Of gladness as for new-crowned King.

Those midnight bells, how sweet they chime,
The welkin vibrates with their sound;
To hearts attune they are sublime,
Nor spread they dread alarm around.

Lo! now I see, from East afar
A light shines through the steeple's frame
'Tis brighter than the brightest star,
It glides the bells with golden flame;
There, too, I see some cherubs cling Fast hold the ropes. How fair they be!
They swing the bells and sweetly ring
"This is the Christ's nativity."

Wake every heart, join in their song
Of praise to Christ, our new-born King,
To him our sweetest strains belong,
And his, our richest offering.

When wakes the god of day, and shines
Athwart the heavens, what of glee
Will wake as well? With box and pines
And flowers gay, yon houses will be Adorned, and while the anthem swells
With organ's voice, all Christendom
Will vibrant be as are those bells
That Christ's nativity has come.

FEWER STYLES OF FOOTWEAR ADVANCED AS MEANS OF CONSERVING MUCH LEATHER

By "ENERGY"

The coal situation seems to be in a far more settled condition. While it is settled so far as resuming production, the time when no coal was mined will make a break which we are yet to feel. Western tanneries have been hard hit by the shortage, and by diverting the coal to the western section which would ordinarily have been sent to New England, some of our factories will no doubt be short. I note in looking over many factories in Peabody that a good size coal pile looms up in the yards. There is enough of these piles to last for a month or more. Some of the larger consumers have not been so well situated. They have been handicapped not only with a shortage, but the quality has been so poor, as to slow down the machinery.

Now a slow up of the leather and shoe industry means that shoes that should have been produced and are needed in the market will continue to carry along the shortage and a tendency to increase prices. I believe that the coal strike being over, that we shall see little stoppage of our industry. The pessimists are getting in their work as usual, perhaps for a reason to increase prices which means money in their jeans. Natural I presume.

Again comes the idea of making fewer styles of footwear. The associated trades as represented in the Allied Council of American Shoe and Leather Industries and Trades, (a name long enough to produce results) are exerting themselves to conserve in every way, so as to keep prices down. It is recognized that materials, and the saving resulting from fewer styles is the proper way to go in the situation.

A suggestion that low cut shoes be worn in winter may appeal to shapely limbs, silk stockings of variegated colors, in fact to the young people, who aspire to the latest fashions, but how about us fellows who are lucky to have any old stocking, and whose blood has thinned to the extent that Jack Frost gets in his work? Nay. Get those who believe they are comfortable in winter in low shoes, to wear them. In fact, pass laws they should wear them, and by pointing out how husky they are, there is nothing to it, they will fall. We have a few who wear no overcoats in winter, but that is no reason they are comfortable. If so, they must suffer in summer, or they should wear no clothes to be in the same proportion.

must not be allowed to come to pass, so let us keep on making every color in the rainbow and then some. The male limb of the family must settle even if it takes his right eye. He would probably see too much then with the other one.

Shoe designing, they say, is the corner stone of the shoe industry. It was such, no doubt, but it seems difficult for some people to realize that we in this world are in a terrible muddle. Perhaps they do not care just so long as their own pleasure is satisfied. I feel like delving into this question deeply, but I am paid to write about leather, even if I get away without doing so.

It is a fact that production in shoe and leather factories is far below normal. It is a fact that labor unions back their members to do little work as possible, or at least, it seems so from the outside. It is a fact that much more could be accomplished today than is accomplished, should those who do the work so elect. I know of one sheep leather factory located in this section, who are producing today 400 dozen sheep, when before the war with the same help, they could turn out 800 dozen. Is this the proper spirit to get us back to normal conditions? Is it the proper way to get us where all admit we should be?

There is no use pausing for a reply, for a reply is not necessary. Until such time as all of us look to the good of our neighbors, follow the golden rule, as we all admit, is the best way to live on this earth, then an improvement will come. Otherwise pay $15 for your shoes, even if you cannot afford stockings. Let us see the light with the exception of the red hue. There has been too much of the red light stuff for some years. It has done to place us where we are. Let it over.

The holidays are here, and the shoe dealers report a brisk business. I never knew of many men who received shoes as a Christmas present, but it would be an acceptable one this year. I for one will throw out a few hints to that effect and see if they take. If not, perhaps it would be well to buy one's self such a present instead of spending more on candy and grapes.

TROLLEY OR JITNEYS?

It is not the purpose of the Enterprise to take sides in this all absorbing question. From our point of view there are features which would attract the unbiased observer on both sides. The street railroad is the original claimant to attention. When everything was normal in this world, everything went on its way apparently unnoticed by the public for the reason fares were cheap and accommodations acceptable. The public in fact were spoiled as it were with cars running so often. They were brought up as is a child to have all these favors and in return paid little for the privilege. Having spoiled the public, when increased expenses for equipment and increased wages to employees showed a deficit, retrenchment was the watchword. Everybody was aware that many lines running to the suburbs did not pay. Such lines increased and those that did pay could not balance the expense account. Why such a state of affairs existed must be left to the management of the railroads, or mismanagement, if you will. With the enormous business done and no profit to the stockholders, it appears that something should be done to clean house. It has been the policy of many large corporations of this kind to make money by manipulation in many directions. We do not know as such proceedings happened in this case, but it is plain that the policies carried out by the management of the street railroads in our midst were not sound from a business standpoint. Nothing succeeds like success and success did not come to those who had their money invested in street railroad stock. When fares were increased radically, the spoiled public turned to other ways of transportation. Natural. They cared little for what had happened. It was only the jitney rides at old rates, and those rates were the only ones in sight like former normal times. Peabody has had the jitney for several years. Until lately no one talked or apparently cared whether it lived or passed away. But when they came in droves as now, from a hen coop to a fairly respectable conveyance, everybody took notice and especially the railroad, for their trade was diminishing. If permitted to run any old way as now, they cannot be accepted as a permanent institution. If governed so as to give the public speed and comfort, the majority of those who use them daily would be in their favor. Those who only use them a few times a year should not be considered in this great question, we believe. But will not jitneys come under a few heads in a short time, if allowed the business? Will not they follow the same path followed by all public corporations, the public be damned? If so how are we bettered by jumping from one octopus to another? Until such a time as we can send men to the Legislature who will really do things for the public instead of assuming so to do, then laws will not be passed with loop holes in them large enough for all lawyers to pick them to pieces and discover after all that corporations are well protected.

BOY SCOUT WEEK.

On February 8, 1920, there will be a tremendous birthday observance—that of the Boy Scouts of America. The Scouts of every place will unite with hundreds of thousands of others all over the country in observance of the Tenth Anniversary of Scoutcraft. The celebration will continue for eight days. It will also be known as Father and Son Week. During that time in hundreds of cities there will be held fathers and sons banquets, where boys and men will get together for fellowship and mutual help. The Anniversary is to have as one of its objects a request to every man, woman and child is the nation to "do a good turn daily" for one week, the same as the Boy Scouts do throughout the year. Every Boy Scout, wherever he may be at 8.15 on the night of February 8, will stand at salute and repeat the Scout Oath, which is as follows:

On my honor I will do my best:

1. To do my duty to God and my country, and to obey the Scout law;
2. To help other people at all times;
3. To keep myself physically strong, mentally awake and morally straight.

INVEST, BUT WISELY

The ultimate result of saving is investment. Probably every man when he has saved a few hundred dollars which is earning him in the savings bank four or five per cent feels like drawing it out and putting it to work at a much greater return. This is a natural inclination and a right one, for the wise man is the one who can both save and invest. But unless the investment is a wise one, the results are apt to be opposite from expectations. There are more people today with money to invest than ever before in the nation's history. Most of them are wholly unfamiliar with investment securities. They are easy prey for the smooth tongued salesman who infests the country at present with worthless stocks. There is a way of protecting yourself from falling into the traps of these get-rich-quick men. Either ask for their endorsement card from the Chamber of Commerce, or ask them to go to any bank with you while you get the advice of your banker. If they are unwilling to stand these tests, form your own conclusions.

A GOOD IDEA

Most cities are fortunate in having well equipped Y. M. C. A. buildings with gymnasium facilities, where the indoor worker may indulge in the much needed exercise that he is unable to get at his daily task. Peabody has long felt the want of a similar building to accommodate the hundreds of business men and office workers who crave systematic exercise under expert direction. Many belong to out-of-town organizations in order to obtain this privilege. The opportunity is now present at the Community House to join a gymnasium class, under the instruction of Mr. Killam. A class is meeting at present every Wednesday evening, and a nominal fee is charged for the winter course. If the demand for this kind of work is manifested, the prospects are that it will be extended to meet the requirements.

ROUND ABOUT

The re-election of Commander Osborn Palmer of Peabody Post, American Legion, is, I am informed, a reward for his untiring efforts to advance the welfare of the local organization. He has not only given freely of his time, but has also shouldered some of the financial obligations in order to make the Peabody Legion add new members. His margin of majority was not so very large over "Billy" Walsh, but in view of the several contests he has reason to feel sure that his efforts have not been in vain.

Albert MacNeil, the well-known electrician, whose initiative put over the window display contest in Peabody, has entered the employ of a Lynn concern, and is engaged on large contract in Boston. "Mac" is hailed as a live wire and a seven day a week booster for Peabody.

Noah Maron, jitney owner, who made the greatest plea for the opposition to the Bay State at the public hearing last Monday night, acquired his ability to talk before an audience in his lodge work. He possesses all of the enthusiasm of a paid in full lawyer, and the only criticism I heard of his speech was, that he spoke too rapidly.

Fred A. Cummings, the publicity man for the Trustees of the old Bay State, who presented the trolley road's ultimatum here, is a former Lynn newspaperman, and admittedly one of the best who ever sat at the editor's desk, and got out the paper. There is nothing in the newspaper game that he cannot handle, and the big house at the public hearing will probably agree that Cummings would have made a first class lawyer had he elected to follow that calling. He began his newspaper work in Haverhill. He gained prominence in Lynn, as City Hall man for the Item, and he left an enviable record in the number of daily scoops he put over. He was a special writer on the Boston Globe at the time he allowed Trustee Wadleigh of the Bay State to lead him into the job he now holds.

Boniface McDonough of the new Central cafe came in for much commendation as a result of the special banquet he served the Chamber of Commerce directors last week.

Up to the hour of going to press today, I had not heard that the Salem Chamber of Commerce had sent any apology to the Peabody Chamber for having taken credit for inducing the express company to accept bundles weighing 75 pounds. Well, maybe things will be different when our Peabody Mayor takes up his new office in Salem, as the next District Attorney of old Essex.

I observe that Miss Mary Poole, one of the sponsors for the Visiting Nurse Association, has been designated as the Peabody representative to advance the public health crusade among the children. Miss Poole has rendered valuable service in the visiting nurse association, and is well qualified to assume her new, but unpaid position.

To many citizens the "packed" house at the public hearing given the jitneys last Monday night was a replica of "ye olde towne meeting" with several of the old time spouters in their element in the public debate. I listened in vain for that familiar voice of erstwhile member of the old Public Works, Edward Blaney. It would have been complete with him in action.

Arthur Barry, conceded one of the cleverest gridiron players ever to represent P. H. S., gave the local players some valuable coaching for their Thanksgiving game. He is captain of the Exeter team for 1920, and will also marshal the baseball team of that school in the Spring. Barry's future in athletics is well assured and whatever college he elects to enter, he will be sure of a welcome. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Barry of Washington street.

I am told that Santa Claus will be ably represented in Crow Village this year by an unusually stately Stork and that a dozen or more homes are happily awaiting the grand occasion.

BIG CHRISTMAS CAKE.

Good at guessing the weight of a cake? Well, here's a chance to get a big Christmas cake for the holiday feast if you guess the nearest to the correct weight. The cake is in the window of Klemm's bakery, and is attracting much attention. It is from the hands of Peabody's leading baker.

The privilege of voting on the weight of the cake will be given to every purchaser of 50 cents worth of goods and several hundred contestants are sure to be numbered.

Respectfully represents AUGUSTUS L. THORNDIKE, Bank Commissioner of the Commonwealth, that, acting under and by authority of and in accordance with the provisions of chapter 399 of the Acts of 1910, as amended by chapter 472 of the Acts of 1912, he has duly taken possession and control of the property and business of the Peabody Hebrew Credit Union, of Peabody, in the County of Essex and said Commonwealth, a bank made subject to his supervision by the laws of the Commonwealth; that upon examination of the affairs of said bank it appears that said bank is in an unsound condition to transact the business for which it was organized and it is unsafe, and inexpedient for it to continue business, as appears from the statement hereto annexed, marked "A"; that the assets are not sufficient to meet the liabilities; that there is no desire on the part of any one that the Credit Union should continue, all parties concerned being of the opinion that its affairs should be closed and a dividend paid by the Bank Commissioner, according to law.

WHEREFORE, your petitioner prays that this Honorable Court authorize him in his capacity as Bank Commissioner—

1. To pay the expenses incurred, as they appear in a statement hereto annexed, marked "B"; and
2. To pay a dividend to the shareholders and depositors of the Peabody Hebrew Credit Union of fifty percent.

BOY SCOUTS MAY AID TREE CENSUS

A tree census in every state at the same time the 1920 population count is made is advocated by officials of the American Forestry Association. The census of trees to determine the extent of American forests, both in the country and in towns and cities, may be begun.

"Block-by-block" listing, including the size and variety of the tree, may be done by Boy Scouts and children, under supervision of civic leaders. Planting of memorial trees, it is believed, will swell the figures by many thousands. Planters will register new trees with the association, which will also keep the "census" records taken by children and scouts.

Girl Scouts To Present Play

Girl Scouts of the Universalist church will present a one-act comedy tonight in the vestry, entitled "Three of a Kind." The sketch abounds in many amusing incidents and the players are seen at their best. Those in the cast are Dorothy Lord, Florence Haynes, Mary Batchelder, Dorothy Tibbets, Elizabeth Matheson and Florence Mackinnon. At the conclusion of the comedy the girls will give a demonstration of Girl Scout work. Preceding the entertainment the girls will hold a Christmas sale.

Causes of Memory's Stirring.

"How I love the smell of a wood fire," is a common exclamation. Now, there's nothing delightful about smell of wood smoke, but, oh! the memories. The lavender sprigs in grandmother's bureau drawer did much toward keeping her memory green. Returning seasons redolent with the fumes of flowers and fruit are responsible for many a homesick hour.

PEABODY MEN NAMED AIDS FOR CENSUS

Peabody men, Attorney Daniel L. Tumulty and Henry F. Foley, have been appointed on the staff of census enumerator James L. McCartney of Lynn. Attorney Tumulty is named second assistant and Mr. Foley is made a clerk in the census headquarters in Lynn.

Twelve enumerators will shortly be named in Peabody. The work will start January 2, and two weeks are allowed for the returns from the cities.

Plans are nearing completion for the taking of the Fourteenth Decennial Census. An army of 87,000 enumerators, under the direction of 375 Census Supervisors will be engaged in making the count of the people of the United States and its possessions. The returns of population and agriculture will be gathered in January; mines, quarries and manufactures, probably in March. All enumerators were given a test as to fitness by a rigid examination involving the filling of various schedules on which they are to work. This information was taken from a narrative describing a number of families in a district.

There are 29 questions on the population schedule covering, place of abode, name, relation to head of house, tenure of property, personal description, (race, color, sex, age); citizenship, education, nativity and mother tongue, occupation.

Farmers will be asked the question contained in the Agricultural schedules relating to their farms. These questions cover farm tenure, farm products, values of farm lands, buildings, implements and improvements, field crops, garden crops, farm expenses, live stock, poultry, bees, dairy products, improved and unimproved land, farm drainage and irrigation, in fact, all phases of the farming industry are covered.

The Census Bureau desires to emphasize the fact that the information

MERCHANTS' CONTEST WAS BIG SUCCESS

The committee in charge of the window display contest is receiving the congratulations of the merchants on account of the interest that this display aroused among the citizens of Peabody. One merchant stated to one of the members of the committee that his business had increased considerably during the past two days, as compared with similar days of any other week, and he was urging that another display contest be held in the near future. From reports that the committee have received, all the merchants have been busy since the display was put on, handling their trade. The silver loving cup which was tournament prize, was presented to Thomas Reinzi, and this cup remains the property of Mr. Reinzi until the display of 1920, when it will be given to the person winning first prize at that time. This cup must be won two successive years.

The December meeting of the Essex County Associated Boards of Trade was held in Haverhill, December 18. Secretary Thomas attended as representative from the local organization. Among the subjects considered at the meeting was the question of Electric Street Railway, both passenger and freight transportation.

Several members of the Chamber attended the New England Traffic League meeting in Boston today, at which time questions pertaining to rates, claims, ferry car charges and switching charges were up for discussion.

A referendum vote is being mailed to the members relative to the proposal of Daylight Saving in Massachusetts. The Chamber is desirous of having an expression from every member on this important question, and urge that the members file their votes not later than January 10, with the secretary.

ENID BENNETT IS AT STRAND --DOROTHY DALTON MONDAY

ENID BENNETT
"Stepping Out"
—A Paramount Picture

Enid Bennett in "Stepping Out" will be the feature attraction at the Strand today and Saturday. It tells the story of a middle class salaried clerk who becomes dissatisfied with his wife and home because of the interest a pretty stenographer arouses in him. Miss Bennett plays the part of the thrifty wife who hit upon the idea of showing the girl who was dining out with her husband just what husbands many times expect of a wife—to iron, scrub, mend and economize on food. It was a daring experiment and just how it worked out furnish many laughs and also a few heart tugs.

It is a picture that all married couples should see.

Larry Semon in "Passing the Buck" will be the comedy feature of the bill. Mr. Semon has recently signed a three year contract with the Vitagraph Co. calling for three million, three hundred thousand dollars. This puts him in the same class with Chaplin and his comedies will cost nearly three times the price the Strand has been paying.

Bessie Love in "Cupid Forecloses" and Evelyn Greely in "Phil For Short" will be the photoplay attractions for Sunday evening. Both pictures are of the comedy-drama type and are said to be entirely pleasing throughout. Chet Potter in a new program of selected xylophone solos will be an added feature for Sunday evening.

The Paris underworld in all its romantic glamour lives before the audience's eye in "L'Apache," the new Thomas Ince picture, starring Dorothy Dalton which will be offered at the Strand on Monday and Tuesday. Miss Dalton is seen in a dual role. As an Apache dancing girl, she performs at the command of her criminal husband, and finally flees from his cruelty and finds refuge in the Bohemian quarter. By a freak of fortune she encounters her double, a rich American girl who has fallen under the power of a profligate millionaire. This part is also played by Miss Dalton and gives her an opportunity to wear some exquisite gowns. After many thrilling adventures and a startling climax, the drama is worked out to a happy ending. A Sennett comedy "Up in Alf's Place" and News Weekly will be the other attractions.

For Wednesday and Christmas Mgr. Chet Bent has arranged a special program of unusual merit headed by dainty Marguerite Clark in "Luck in Pawn," "His First False Step" and Pearl White in "The Black Secret" will be the other attractions on this big holiday bill.

MISS POOLE TO HEAD STATE HEALTH WORK

The Health Education Committee of Massachusetts, of which Dr. Harry A. Garfield is honorary chairman, and Mrs. William Tilton is chairman, is getting actively to work in Peabody. Miss Mary E. Poole has been asked to work for the movement locally.

This committee, which was formed at the instance of the National Physical Education Committee created by the Bureau of Education, is actively engaged in pushing bills for the health education of children. These bills include:

1. Appointment by the State Department of Education of a director of health education, who shall direct health instruction and physical activities.
2. Local supervisors.
3. School nurses.
4. Teaching of simple health habits in our Normal and Public Schools.

These bills, which will lay the foundation for a uniform and adequate health campaign in our public schools, are endorsed by the Commissioner of Education; State Department of Health; Massachusetts Superintendents' Association; Teachers' Federation; Public Health Department of the State Federation of Women's Clubs, and many other organizations.

Although Massachusetts has led in training men and women for this work of Health Education, it is far behind many states in the opportunities which it gives its school children. About 180 towns in the State do practically nothing in the direction of teaching their children along lines leading to health.

LEATHER NOTES

In Canada a maximum profit of 33 1/2 per cent. is allowed the shoe retailer as a profit. Above that, it becomes a crime. Fair priced committees are being organized in many communities. Such committees ought to do much for the suffering mortals, but it strikes me, extreme care should be taken in the selection of such committees. If they could be reached as easily as are some of our representatives in nation and state, then when will the train stop? We have not to rid ourselves of this growing tendency of graft, which is crawling to everything that pertains to our living and is in the air. How? as they say in Kentucky.

ANCIENT CHRISTMAS TOYS

Dolls That Delighted Children of Rome and Greece in Early Days Recently Excavated.

Rag dolls are as old as the hills and so are dolls with movable arms and legs, toy dogs, rocking horses and a host of other things that bring delight to the children on Christmas morning.

Recent excavations in the ruins of ancient Rome, Greece and Egypt have placed the British museum in possession of an interesting assortment of these relics of early Christian days, some of which may possibly have been given to the children of the followers of Christ at a time when the observation of Christmas day was an innovation.

In the nursery of a newly excavated house at Behnesa, Egypt, a fairly well preserved rag doll was found with arms and legs still intact and painted face. The doll is by no means a beauty and does not compare with the Christmas dolls of today, but nevertheless it must have brought joy to a little girl's heart nearly 2,000 years ago.

The jointed dolls of long ago were made to sit down, stand up and move their arms, but they didn't close their eyes or squeak "mamma." Among the toy dogs, horses and donkeys are some made of stone and baked clay and others carved out of wood.

A CONVENIENCE.

"So you think the Santa Claus myth is a good thing?"

"Yes, it's a great convenience to have some imaginary person to take the responsibility when the children are disappointed Christmas morning."

Where Some Men Fail.

Moreover some men give so much attention to their principles they don't have time to do real work.—Dallas News.

Center School Pupils Saving Many Nickels

There has been a drive on at the Center School during the past two weeks for thrift in savings, through the medium of the school savings bank. Owing to the government's drive in thrift and war stamps, the school saving's plan has lagged. Children of the elementary schools could not be expected to keep up in all the drives for money.

The school saving's plan is the more practical plan for children. They have a choice of two things: To save money for some particular object, or to save it for transfer to the Warren Five Cents Savings Bank.

Three dollars in the school bank entitles a child to a bank book in the savings bank. Money is transferred on the last Thursday of October, January, April and June.

It can be easily seen that more children can have a part in the school savings than in the Thrift Stamps, because the saving's plan is more readily within the means of children. Hence, the Center School drive for savings, and while buying Thrift Stamps continues to be encouraged, let the present idea is to boost the saving's plan.

Principal Stickney has posted a chart, whereby the pupils may read the gains of their class room, by means of painted thermometers.

The saving's plan started with Miss Taylor's first grade leading, with 50 per cent. The second week shows Mrs. Packard's seventh grade leading, with 65 per cent.; Miss Mc-

Glone's third grade being a close second, with 60 per cent.

With the Christmas holidays so near at hand, it seemed an unpromising time to make a 100 per cent. record drive, but Miss Farnum's fifth grade went over the top this week, with a jump from 40 per cent. to 100 per cent., thus leading the Center school, if not the city, in school savings.

You can't expect to get utmost gasoline economy and engine efficiency if you constantly fill up with various fuels of different qualities—that require different carburetor adjustments.

Brains Not Their Strong Point.
Even an oyster has a brain of a sort; and a clam likewise. The brains of fishes are very inferior, as compared with those of mammals, but the optic lobes are enormously developed, because finny creatures, to get the food they need, must be able to see well in dim light under water. Reptiles generally are very stupid creatures, and so it is not surprising to find that their brains are remarkably small. That of a 12-foot alligator is no bigger than your thumb.

THERE'S A SONG IN THE AIR

There's a song in the air!
There's a star in the sky!
There's a mother's deep prayer,
And a baby's low cry!
And the star rains its fire
While the beautiful sing,
For the manger of Bethlehem
Cradles a king!

There's a tumult of joy
O'er the wonderful birth,
For the Virgin's sweet boy
Is the Lord of the earth.
Aye! the star rains its fire
While the beautiful sing,
For the manger of Bethlehem
Cradles a king!

In the light of that star
Lie the ages imperiled,
And that song from afar
Has swept o'er the world.
Every heart is aflame,
And the beautiful sing
In the homes of the nations That Jesus is King!

We rejoice in the light,
And we echo the song
That comes down through the night
From the heavenly throng.
Aye! we shout to the lovely Evangel they bring.
And we greet in his cradle
Our Savior and King.

LORE OF THE YULE LOG

Should Be Lighted From Portion of Last Year's Which Should Be Preserved for Good Luck.

The Yule-log, a probable variant of the bonfire—so characteristic of sun festivals—has some interesting folklore of its own.

In medieval England, its duration coincided with the Christmas revels. As long as it burned, the tenant had a right to feed at the lord's expense. The log was often cut from an ash-tree—the sacred tree of our Saxon forefathers. There is a gypsy legend that our Lord was born in a field and brought up by an ash-fire.

The log should, properly, be lighted with a portion of last year's log, a piece of which is always supposed to be preserved for luck. At the same time that the Christmas fire was lit, the Christmas candle had to be lighted. (A portion of last year's taper has also to be kept.) It was unlucky to snuff the Christmas candle, which burned for 12 days—the period of festivity. At St. John's college, Oxford, can still be seen the ancient stone socket with the Agnus Dei stamp, in which the Christmas candle was placed on the high table.

On the Isle of Man, the folk formerly carried long tapers to church on Christmas eve.

Quaker's Name.

The society of Quakers received that name originally because they bade certain magistrates to "tremble at the word of the lord."

The readings portraying these four events are selected from Lew Wallace's "Ben Hur" and Ingraham's "Prince of the House of David"—full and vividly dramatic cuttings, which bring these periods of keenest interest to humanity, where they are sharply visualized to the listeners.

The "Introduction" to the program will be given by Herbert Kimball. In the prophetic stage of the story, short connecting poems will be read by Messrs. Spurgeon Watson, Rodney Hobbs, L. McLean and Harold Sparks.

The readers for the four periods of prophecy fulfilled, will be "The Annunciation"—Mr. Carl Richert. "The Crucifixion," George Ballentine; "The Resurrection," Ralph Nash; "The Ascension," Ralph Ballentine.

Can marriage out of one's social class be successful?

Their worlds were poles apart. He was of the people and she was of aristocratic birth. It is the old, old story that is forever new—new because it has been touched by a master hand, because it deals with a new conflict—between love and labor—a conflict every man and every woman may soon have to face. "Children of Storm," by I. A. R. Wylie, begins where most novels end.

The next President will be elected by women

In politics you get what you ask for. And the women of America are going to ask for—and get—the man who will be the next President of the United States. What the platform of the feminine voters is going to be, how it will be organized, what women should vote for—all these vital problems of government are outlined by Anne Martin, Independent candidate for United States Senator.

This diary places the author, Judge Henry A. Shute, with Mary Twain and Booth Tarkington—the literary fathers of a few immortal boys.

The first match was won by the score of 1406 to 1217, while the second was closer, 1405 to 1381. It is only fair to the boys to state that they gave the girls a handicap of 300 points in each game. Jitneys Will Fight Decree objection could not be sustained and his ruling was supported by City Solicitor Farnham who ruled the order was before the Council in due form and after having been read at a previous meeting. The first order came before the Council Wednesday night at which time Councillor Hogan served notice of his objection. That sent the order to the net meeting which was last night.

Councillor Ryan asked for a ruling on the liability of the city in revoking the licenses and Judge Farnham quoted the decision of Judge Carroll of the Supreme Court who had ruled that cities and towns had the right to revoke the licenses on the grounds of insuring adequate transportation means to the public.

Councillor Ryan, who is one of the directors of the Chamber of Commerce, voted in favor of the trolley cars on the referendum of the Chamber, but he took the ground that as a Councillor he was bound to protect the city's interest and liability, if any there was.

The four who voted against revoking the 27 licenses of the jitneys last night were Councillors Hogan, Ryan, Jones and Sullivan.

Mr. Hogan declared that it would only be a short time when the trolley system would have to give way to faster transportation. He argued that the jitneys proved yesterday their ability to handle the traffic with the cars not running.

In addition to the revoking of the 27 licenses four others were given leave to withdraw on motion of Councillor Brown. Three of these were on the Salem-Danvers line and the other wanted to run between Peabody and Salem.

When the question of revoking the whole number of licenses came before the meeting there was a deadly silence and everyone ducked, waiting for some other Councillor to start the ball rolling. Councillor McKeen didn't wait long, and prefacing his motion that no one seemed to want to make the motion he would do so.

CHRISTMAS ACTS AS TONIC

Happy and Exhilarating Mental Spirit Has Good Effect on People, Declare Medical Observers.

Close observers in the ranks of the medical profession have noted one very interesting fact concerning the Christmas season—that it generally has a good tonic effect upon their patients. In explanation of this the London Lancet says that since Christmas has come to be regarded as a time for good cheer, a universal feeling of contentment and happiness is engendered at this time of joyousness, routine is for a while relieved, a certain freshness is given to the daily round, differences of opinion are sunk, and a charitable spirit prevails. Is it, by the way, hoping for too much that the season of good fellowship should leave some lasting effect upon the manners and methods of all?

It may not be easy to trace exactly why this sense of exhilaration and well-being comes with the advent of Christmas, for the psychological factors concerned are not simple. But the main point is that the mental state does everybody good, and the annual festivity is just as excellent an institution as the prescription of the physician which gives tone and vigor to the struggle in life's race. There is no need nowadays, thanks to the good sense of the people and the counsels of their medical advisers, to moralize about the evils of a stupid indulgence in food, alcohol and tobacco on a festive occasion such as the present. Practically everybody realizes the great physiological advantages of being wise on a merry occasion and the disadvantages of being a fool.

Many more persons than formerly feel where use ends and abuse begins, and they act sensibly accordingly; and so far from it being a crime to make the season festive by enjoying, on a little extended scale perhaps, the creature comforts of life, some decided good is done to both the mental and physical health of the individual.

The festive season may, therefore, be welcomed which brings cheer to thousands, which induces the generous and charitable to brace the mental and physical functions of the community at large, giving it the opportunity of relinquishing its business and its worries for a time, to start again refreshed and ready for "the trivial round, the common task." The prescription "A Merry Christmas" is sound so long as the "signature" of good sense is observed.

ESPECIALLY AFTER CHRISTMAS.

Miss Romantique—You men—before marriage you pay compliments, but after—

Mr. Wise—We pay the bills.

Christmas.

It is a blessed thing to believe in Christmas and all that it means. It is a blessed thing to be able to hear the song of the heavenly visitors. It has never sounded sweeter; never more necessary, never more full of hope and promise.

CHRISTMAS REBORN

My heart's throbbin' like it used to, old tunes play along its strings
At the thought of Christmas comin' and the thought of Christmas things.
And the thought of little children climbin' out of little beds
With the Christmas candles throwin' golden glory on their heads,
And a-standin' like I've seen them all about the Christmas tree;
There is memories a-plenty comes along the years to me.
But no memories are sweeter than the memories that come
Of the fur-of Christmas mornin's and the children with their drums.

Little children tippytoin' down the stairs in nighties white,
Then a sudden rush an' clatter, and a squealin' of delight
When they see the tree a-standin' in the crispy Christmas dawn,
And a look has made them certain that old Santa Claus is gone—
For although they write to Santa tellin' what they'd like to get
They are always sort of skeered that they will find him there till yet
When they're gettin' up so early, so they give a squeal to see That he's got his work all finished and has left the Christmas tree.

Children late years ain't been gettin' all they writ him for,
For his work was interfered with by the horrors of the war;
But the war is done and ended, and we've got to rise and go
All the gaiters for this here Christmas that we ever used to know;
Got to do our shoppin' early, and enough for years gone by;
Got to bring back Santa Claus and get the Christmas tree, an' try
To forget that there was hatred in the world, an' grief and tears;
Got to do our shoppin' now and brighten up the comin' years.

Aspirations.

The chief use of any man to the world is the influence of his aspirations. Not achievement alone can determine a man's value to us; but the vision of the ideal which he has and gives to us, in words, on canvas, in marble, in stately piles of architecture.—Solon Lauer.

MAYOR'S PROCLAMATION

In accordance with the request of the Census Bureau of the United States, I hereby urge upon all residents of the city to answer all questions of the census enumerators. The information will not be used for the purpose of taxation or to interfere with the rights of any person, but simply for the purpose of ascertaining the population of the City of Peabody and other facts regarding the resources of the country.

The taking of a census in a city like Peabody is attended with great difficulty because of the presence of so many persons unable to talk English and the co-operation of everyone is necessary in order to determine accurately the present population of the city.

S. HOWARD DONNELL, Mayor.

Peabody, Dec. 24, 1919.

Correspondent Hills Puts 'OK'
On City Form of Government

The spirit of Christmas pervaded the City Council chamber last Monday night on the occasion of the last meeting of the 1919 Council, and the love feast which found expression in the usual swan-song was the large part of the concluding exercises.

Eulogies of Councillor Cotton, the only retiring member, and President Giles, City Clerk Francis L. Poor and get this—"The press for its good and bad comment," and lastly praises for city form of government and compliments for the personnel of Council, these, dear readers, were chief among the attributes of the fare-the-well meeting of 1919 of the august city fathers (and some who are not.)

Charles C. Hills, dean of the Peabody newspapermen and for that matter of the staff on the Salem News and the local correspondent who has seen Peabody office holders come and go for some several years back, made the real speech of the evening. His dictum was in substance, a boost for city form of government and a nice he averred compared with that of any city. He declared he had enjoyed the Council meetings of the last three years or since Peabody took her place among the cities of this glorious Commonwealth, and he congratulated the Council on its work of helping Peabody to progress.

Coming from his lips it was a tribute to city form of government for it was tantamount to a confession that his prediction back in 1916, that Peabody would regret it if it threw off the yoke of town form of government, had gloriously failed to come true. Mr. Hills concluded his address by hoping that the city would continue to progress, and that the citizens would never be sorry they had made Peabody a city.

Councillor Hogan of Ward 4, who was re-elected this month, rendered the first number on the swan-song exercises by expressing sorrow that Councillor Cotton of Ward 3 was concluding his duties as a colleague and as if he had prepared his little speech, he moved that the Council

ELLIS WATSON DIES
FROM INJURIES
IN MOTOR CRASH

Ellis Watson, aged 23, chauffeur in the employ of the A. C. Lawrence Leathr Co., an overseas war veteran, received injuries from which he died last night, as a result of a collision between his motorcycle and an automobile, driven by Frank W. Budgell, the leather manufacturer. Charles Prince, another war veteran and chum of the dead man, who was riding in the side car of the motorcycle escaped injuries, when the crash came.

The fatal accident occurred on Andover street, near Cross street. Watson's scalp was torn open and his left leg broken by the impact, and he remained unconscious from the blow for four hours, when death came at the J. B. Thomas hospital. He was returning home from a short ride to Danvers.

It is believed that the motorcycle struck a frozen rut in the street, that prevented Watson, who was driving, from getting his car to the left of the street, as the Budgell auto was passing.

The accident happened some few minutes after 6 o'clock. Watson and his chum were returning from a ride to Danvers, and were making the hill near Cross street, when the motorcycle crashed into the big Cole car, operated by Frank W. Budgell, who was going to his home in Danvers.

Mr. Budgell says he observed no lights on the motorcycle, which he was barely able to discern in the distance. He was coasting down the hill averaging a speed of about 15 miles an hour. As the two vehicles came nearer, Mr. Budgell turned more to the right side of the street and supposed the motorcycle car would bear to the left. Instead of that, however, Mr. Budgell avers the motorcycle made a jerky turn to the right, which resulted in the collision.

Reserve Officers Burns and Lee were sent to the scene of the accident in an ambulance, and Watson was hurried to the hospital in an unconscious condition, and died at 9.35, still unconscious. His left leg was badly fractured, and his scalp torn open with evidences of a skull fracture. The

CHILDREN'S DAY
AT WOMAN'S CLUB

The annual program of the Peabody Woman's Club would always be incomplete without its Children's Day, which adds much to the happiness of its little guests each year.

At the meeting this afternoon Children's Day will be observed, and a real treat is in store for the youngsters, as well as the "grown ups," who attend this meeting.

The entertainers are to be the New England stage children, who are said to have been trained by Mrs. Mabel Lyman to entertain in a most attractive manner.

Refreshments will be served at the close of the program, to the little guests.

Each member of the club is entitled to bring one child.

The meeting will be held at 3 o'clock.

PRAISE FOR XMAS TREE

Peabody's Chamber of Commerce which staged the Christmas tree, the first one ever exhibited in Peabody square, has been coming in for much commendation, and the consensus of opinion gives it, that no city displayed a more attractive tree, than did Peabody. The red, white and blue incandescents, which were placed on the tree Wednesday afternoon, were loaned by the Danvers Electric Light Co. The tree itself was served by Joel E. Ballentine, master mechanic at the A. C. Lawrence Co., whose workmen built the cement foundation. Everything that went to make up the tree was procured free of expense. The Peabody Electric Light department employees arranged the lights, and did a good job. With its mantle of snow which fell Wednesday evening, the tree stood out in all of its Yuletide splendor.

get together for a complimentary dinner to the departing member as a testimonial of the esteem in which Councillor Cotton was held by his colleagues.

Councillor Sullivan next moved a rising vote of thanks to President Giles for his impartial rulings. Next came a tribute to City Clerk Poor from Councillor Duggan and again the Council gave a rising vote of thanks.

At this juncture Councillor Ryan moved that the City Clerk, City Solicitor and the press be included in the complimentary banquet to Councillor Cotton.

And then, as if to prevent the press of feeling slighted, Councillor McKee, chairman of the committee on water and defender of the Allis-Chalmers steam-driven pump, proposed a toast for the press for the good things they had said along with the bad, while the Councillors blushed and said "Amen" in unison.

President Giles called on Mr. Hills, whose speech was the real speech of the evening's gladsome performance.

Sealer of Weights T. Hadley Sawyer, alleged maker and breaker of statemen, missed the love feast, for he left the Council Chamber, a bit too soon. Hadley has been sort of political godfather to Councillor Cotton, but the best he could do in the Ward 3 fight this time, was not enough to return smiling Charles to his seat for two more years.

President Giles is candidate to succeed himself in the chair Jan. 5, when the 1920 Council will organize but he went on record at this meeting, that if he was returned to a chair in the semi-circle, he would be found doing everything he could, to make easy the work of the presiding officer. He made a very acceptable and withal modest speech, as he thanked the Council for their cooperation the past 12 months.

Someone remarked that the reason the love feast of the Council was such a big success was the fact that the lid was off, and for the first time since the Council took office in January, 1917, the Councillors were allowed to smoke in the session.

Judge Farnham, associate justice of the district court and City Solicitor since Peabody became a city, will be succeeded by Judge Fay, as exclusively announced some weeks ago in the Enterprise.

Councillor Cotton's final official acts were as spokesman for the committee on licenses of which he has been chairman the past year. He moved the granting of licenses to Charles M. Doyle & Son and Edward M. Elder to deal in second-hand automobiles, and asked that more time be given on the application of a coffee house license at 27 Walnut street, to permit Chief Grady being heard on the matter. Both motions were heeded.

Councillor Ryan, chairman of the committee on streets, asked for further time in which to report on the acceptance of Longwood avenue as a public thoroughfare and admitted he had neglected to bring in his report. He was on his second cigar, when he made this confession, and the swan-songs were still in abeyance.

Councillor Horrigan wanted to know when West Peabody is going to christen its new fire whistle? He asked Councillor Brown how about it during the discussion of voting increase in pay to the call firemen.

Councillor Sullivan, who holds the record for the largest number of resolves voted by the Council started the debate on more pay for the call firemen. He took from the morgue, a dust-laden resolve of Councillor Ryan, which in effect, put the Council on record as favoring $200 a year for the "down town" call men and half that amount for the West Peabody firemen. According to Councillor Brown, West Peabody fire ladders stifled 23 fires the past year and drew the wonderful reward of twenty-five dollars. The Council voted to advertise their resolution in favor of the firemen.

Councillor Duggan asked for a ruling as to the legal status of the resolve, but City Solicitor Farnham did one or two things, either misunderstood or deliberately ducked, answering that the Mayor's failure to disapprove the proposed ordinance within 10 days, would send the matter back to the Council. Obviously the Council has not the right to fix salaries. That is the Mayor's sole privilege.

Oh, Mr. Mayor, is the expert who is to look over the Electric Light plant coming by jitney or Bay State? This question was overlooked by some of the agile minded Councillors last Monday night. The question before the house now is, how much of the $10,000, which Manager King of the P. E. D., is to hand over to the city treasury, will be expended in new lights about the city? This is the burning question all right, for there is urgent need of numerous new lights. It was a slight shock to some of the Council to hear Councillor Brown quote Manager King as having installed but one new light in the city since Peabody legislated town form of government in the discard, in 1916.

Once again Councillor McKee qualified as the charter expert of the Council this week, when he blocked a vote on the proposed call firemen ordinance, introduced by Councillor Sullivan on the grounds that it had no preamble and consequently could not be passed as an emergency measure. McKee has the charter provisions down pat, patter, patter.

Larceny of granite blocks from the city land on Endicott street may be one of the new cases presented to the next Essex county grand jury, and thereby hangs a tale that doesn't carry the aroma of new mown hay. No one is yet specifically charged with the theft, but granite blocks are granite blocks. Some call them cobble stones, and they are used primarily and most generally in street construction. Seldom are they used as the foundation on which dwelling structures rise toward the blue sky. Now and then they are used for such a hidden purpose. The story of the cobblestones being used for the foundation for a house within the confines of the city of Peabody is in full and complete possession of the new district attorney, Mayor Donnell, who is determined to force an issue in the matter. The granite blocks in question were not removed with the knowledge or consent of City Engineer Frank Emerson. Who took the stones in question and where they are now is likely to be the interesting expose of a plot to make a city official a goat.

South Peabody citizens who want the jitneys, flayed both Councillors Giles and McKee, their representatives this week, for voting to revoke the licenses. Councillor Horrigan was also taken to task specifically, and so were the other four, who voted in favor of the trolleys.

It was Councillor Sullivan who first suggested a dental clinic for the public schools. His motion that the Board of Health consider the measure was made some months ago but nothing has been heard from the health department who will probably refer the Council to the school department.

KEEP WAR INSURANCE.

It is regrettable that so many former service men are not keeping up their government life insurance issued through the Bureau of War Risk Insurance in Washington. The fact seems to be due largely to widespread confusion and lack of information as to the right of former service men to permanent government life insurance, and the process by which this insurance may be retained. The demobilization of our armed forces was so rapid and was attended by such uncertainty on the part of service men as to future civil occupations and permanent places of abode that it was not surprising that many of the men gave little thought to the matter of insurance. Others doubtless thought the original term insurance (War Time Insurance) ceased when they were demobilized and did not know it might be converted into any one of the several forms of permanent Government Life Insurance (Converted Insurance.) Still others, immediately upon their return to civil life, felt financially unable to continue the insurance. They should now take advantage of the liberal provisions for reinstatement.

THE SHORTEST NAME.

Among the names of 4,500,000 soldiers, sailors and marines recorded in the files of the War Risk Insurance Bureau at Washington, the shortest family name was "Li," borne by two soldiers who were natives of Hawaii. Their name consisted of two letters, but it was pronounced in two syllables.

DISABLED SOLDIERS.

Every man who was in the military or naval service of the United States during the late war, and who on account of such service is not physically fitted to engage at once in a gainful occupation should at once notify the Bureau of War Risk Insurance in Washington.

Under the law this Bureau is charged with providing for service men discharged because of disability incurred in active service in the line of duty, compensation and free medical treatment until such time as they are restored to physical fitness.

THE JITNEY ECHO

If the "Bay State" hopes to mould public sentiment in its favor there must be a rapid improvement in the trolley service from Peabody Square to Salem and Lynn, else the exponent of the auto busses will find the public joining its ranks for a return of the jitneys. There have been all kinds of criticism directed at the trolley system for its lack of adequate Christmas shopping service since the auto busses were removed last Friday and storekeepers have had their business considerably affected if half of the criticism is founded. When patrons of the trolley were compelled to stand in Town House Square 15 and 20 minutes for a car to this city as was the case both Tuesday and Wednesday afternoon of this week there is ground for caustic criticism at the trolley system on which the traveling public is entirely dependent for frequent travel between Peabody and Salem and Lynn. When the jitneys operated, the railroad maintained better service with almost a seven minute car between Peabody and Salem. Another conspicuous lack of trolley service this past week has been the lack of extra cars to accommodate the patrons during the rush hours. The frequent spectacle of patrons jeering at the Bay State because of lack of room in its cars is an incident that the railroad does well to circumvent in the quickest possible time, if it hopes to effectually kill the countless jitneys that at least gave quick transportation and prevented the congestion of travel. It may be that Manager Hardy of the Salem division has a good alibi, but there is no denying the assertion that the majority of the traveling public has this week wished that the jitneys were back in service and the Bay State by its inadequate service has not helped itself to regain popular favor.

THE 1920 COUNCIL

The City Council which assumes the legislative duties of the municipality of Peabody on January 5 is confronted with many vexing problems in assisting in the progress of the world's largest sheepskin center. The problem alone of making for an adequate water supply will compel the earnest study of the Councilors in aiding the Mayor to complete his 1920 budget. Certain it is, that while differences of opinion are to be expected and even opposition on various measures recorded, the problems before the incoming Council call for a greater spirit of cooperation than has frequently marked the progress of the city in the past three years. If Mayor Donnell is wrong in his recommendations, the Council should not hesitate to point out the mistakes in the interests of the citizens and taxpayers. If there is merit in the suggestions of the Mayor there should be no room for personal bickering and obstruction. What the citizens have a right to expect of their legislative agents is an earnest adherence to their oaths of office, and the everlasting determination to protect the interests of all citizens. There is much work ahead for the Council, and here's hoping that the acts of the members of the honorable body will make 1920 another banner year for progressive Peabody.

SAFE NEW YEAR.

In the city of Peabody during 1919 there were 25 fatal accidents. This figure is alarming, and seemingly excessive. A large part of these accidents were railroad fatalities, due in nearly every case to carelessness on the part of the victims. Almost without exception, every one of these accidents could have been avoided, with the result that these people would be alive and happy today, instead of being mourned by their beloved families and friends. The Safety First movement has made rapid strides in industry during the past few years, education in Safety having materially reduced the number of industrial accidents. Here in Peabody, one of our largest firms is making contributions to the Safety idea, that is benefiting the leather industry all over the country. Industry, however, was responsible for only a small per cent. of Peabody's 1919 total. The Safety idea must be absorbed by the general public. There are only a few rudimentary rules of Safety. They are so simple that everyone can learn and practice them. "Be Careful," "Watch Your Step," "Stop, Look and Listen," "Wait Until the Car Stops" are all familiar, but often unheeded signs. Failure to practice these simple precautions has cut short many promising careers. For 1920—SAFETY FIRST—Make it a Safe New Year.

PROTECT YOURSELF.

It would be well for all property owners, and in fact all heads of families, to check themselves up on the amount of fire insurance they are carrying on their homes and their furniture. Values have increased so rapidly in the past five years, that the old policy, which was adequate to cover loss by fire in 1915 falls far short under the 1920 replacement costs. Building rates and repairs are double what they were, and furniture has kept pace with the rising scale of prices of other commodities. Fires come without warning. You recognized the necessity for insurance when you took out your policy. For your own protection, re-appraise your property and cover it with sufficient insurance to recompense you for damage or destruction by the fire-fiend.

ROUND ABOUT

Fred A. Smith, director of the Essex Agricultural School at Hathorne, under whose regime that institution has become a flourishing seat of learning, is being complimented on his annual report just issued. The publication, while not a lengthy one, is profusely illustrated showing at a glance the diversified courses of instruction from which the student body is being afforded. Director Smith, a resident of Ipswich, has added to his multiple duties those of an editor for he supervises the monthly paper of the school, the Essex Farmer and Homemaker, which is welcomed in the many homes of the county. Mr. Smith has many friends in Peabody.

I observe that Henry J. Bang, vice-president of the Armstrong Leather Co., celebrated his 40th anniversary with the concern of Solomon and Phillips (New York leather people), this week with a complimentary dinner at the Salem Club, to his business associates. Mr. Bang, a New Yorker by birth, has readily adapted himself to New England. He takes a keen interest in the progress of Peabody. He is a Spanish war veteran, having served with Roosevelt at San Juan Hill and carries an ugly bullet wound on his chest that tells only too forcibly how near he came to being a victim of a mauler slug in the emancipation of the Antilles.

One of the most popular skating ponds in the city this past week was the so-called flume, the artificial lake perfected by the Danvers Bleachery west of the Reading branch and Poor's field. The ice was six inches in thickness and was practically free from snow. Its easy access made it a haven for the hundreds of skaters.

I observe that Attorney Michael J. Sherry has been designated special agent for the Peabody census work which begins in this city Jan. 2. His appointment at the hands of Supervisor James L. McCarthy of Lynn places a highly capable man in charge of the local work. Beverly and Danvers will also be in his charge.

The Enterprise is in receipt of an unusually handsome Christmas card from Horace H. Atherton, Jr., registrar of probate and who is president of the Essex County Press Club. The card is of neat steel plate engraved inscription with the motto, "To wish you a real old fashioned Merry Christmas and a glad New Year." Surmounting the inscription is a real old fashioned plum pudding ablaze at the top with the old rum flames without which our forefathers would not have considered that delicious part of the Yuletide feast to have been complete. Mr. Atherton entered public life from the ranks of the reporters, having been Washington correspondent for the Boston Record. He is a versatile writer, with humor his pet diversion.

Edward E. Cann, the amusement promoter of Lynn, tells me he feels confident of making Rockdale Park take its place as an amusement center. He had staged what would have been one of the most successful fairs ever held in the county last September had rain not deluged the Park.

Mayor Eldridge of Somerville, who headed the city officials of his bailiwick here on a visit last Friday, quit Beacon Hill as a State Senator to run for Mayor two years ago and was re-elected for another term this week. He was a power in the Senate, and his re-election as mayor of Somerville shows how well the citizens regard him in his home city. He was unstinted in his praise for the progress of Peabody under Mayor Donnell.

Peabody's latest drive for funds in aid of the Red Cross Seals netted a rising $400, according to Henry King, who had charge of the campaign drive. ADD SOUTH PEABODY

ETHEL CLAYTON IN "MORE DEADLY THAN THE MALE" HEADS STRAND

The truth of Kipling's famous line, "the female of the species is more deadly than the male," is said to be demonstrated in Ethel Clayton's new picture, "More Deadly Than the Male," which will be shown at the Strand today and Saturday. The central figure in the picture is a capable high-spirited girl in love with a wealthy club man, who is used to searching in far-off corners of the world for excitement and adventure. When his sweetheart urges him to settle down, he retorts that there are no thrills in modern civilization. Whereupon she sets out to prove him mistaken.

All sorts of hair-raising incidents in a mountain camp follow. The conservatory has been transformed into an African jungle. He fights a fatal duel with the girl's supposed husband; a dam bursts with nearly disastrous results, and finally there is a rip-snorting set-to with the harbor police, at the end of which the harrassed is brought to, informed of the real state of affairs, and agrees to stick close to the fireside thereafter. One of the funny Fox-Sunshine comedies entitled "Footlight Maids," and the last episode but one of William Duncan in "Smashing Barriers" are the other attractions on the bill for today and Saturday.

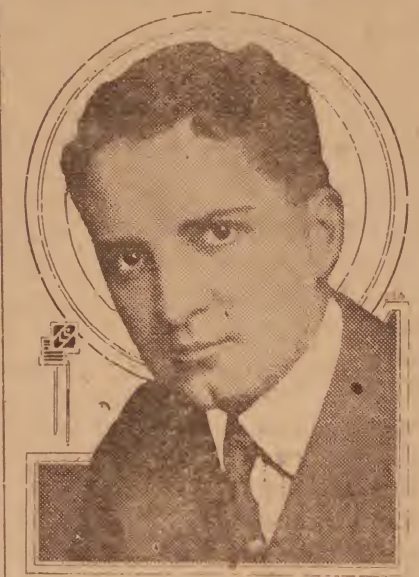

Bryant Washburn, the popular Paramount star, will appear Sunday evening in "All Wrong." Mr. Washburn is a great favorite here in Peabody, and his many admirers will want to see him in this picture, which is a comedy with a load of complications and a laugh in every scene. Hale Hamilton in "5000 an Hour," a Metro picture, will be the other attraction for Sunday.

"23 1/2 Hours Leave," a Thomas H. Ince special production, co-starring Douglas MacLean and Doris May. Douglas MacLean will be remembered as the young man who appeared in support of Mary Pickford, Dorothy Dalton, Enid Bennett and Dorothy Gish. Banagher Chet Bent boldly pronounced this the best all-around comedy of the season, and cannot recall when the Strand has had a better one. It tells of a young sergeant who disliked the many regulations imposed upon him in army life. His dog bites the commanding officer on the leg just after he had made a bet that he would shortly be eating breakfast at the General's table.

And of course, the General has a pretty daughter, and the usual things happen when two good-looking healthy young persons meet and are then forbidden to see each other. When the young sergeant obtains 23 1/2 hours leave, which he plans to spend in the immediate vicinity of the General's daughter, he is halted because his new uniform he has had made does not meet the army regulations. In fact it is taken away from him, and he has to loll around in his B. V. D's.

With a long ulster around him he escapes with the girl in her auto in this unconventional attire. They accidentally capture two spies and just when everything is going along nicely the young lady accidentally discovers how her companion is attired. Curtain. He finally wins this bet and incidentally the General's daughter, but not until one of the funniest stories ever screened has come to a close. Sessue Hayakawa in "The Grey Horizon" will also be shown on Monday.

BRYANT WASHBURN in "All Wrong"

D. W. Griffith, who is conceded to be the greatest of all directors, will offer on Wednesday and Thursday, his latest special "Scarlet Days," a tale of the early West. Richard Barthelmess heads an exceptional cast. Pearl White in "The Black Secret" and Larry Semon, the new king of comedy in "Dew Drop Inn" will be the other features on this big holiday bill.

So. Church Tots In Xmas Carols

One of the most enjoyable Christmas trees was held for the benefit of the children of the South church last Wednesday evening with a musical program in which the little tots took part. Santa Claus made his welcome appearance and presented the gifts. The following program was given by the children:

Merry Christmas, Phyllis Spears; Dolly's Presents, Virginia Arnold; Mrs. Santa Claus, Phyllis Larrabee; Jolly December, Irene Smith; Ring, Christmas Bells, Doris Robinson; Jack Frost, Frank W. Pennimania Jr., Edward G. Pennimania; Reading, Madeline Foley; Santa Claus Has Come to Town, Small Child; At Christmas Time, Stuart Woodbury; Our Beautiful World, George Hammond; The Most Noted Man, first boy, John Mentus, second boy, Franklin Slatter, third boy, William Woelful, fourth boy, Stephen Barno; Christmas Lullaby, Group of girls; Christmas Weather, Merle Brown; The Longest Day in the Year, Shirley Allen; Carols, children; The Christmas Tree, Andrew Paton; The Day After Christmas, Eleanor Hammond.

West Peabody

WEST PEABODY BUS.

There will be many complaints from West Peabody voters if the recent revoking of jitney licenses causes the cessation of bus transportation of the High school scholars. After several years of the benefits of getting the scholars to school on time and of getting them home again before 4.45 P. M., it would be very unpleasant to go back to the old system. No person should be blamed for choosing to live in the country, for in these days the benefits of city life seemingly outstrip those of the rural districts. And if a person chooses to be a producer of foodstuffs, it should be no reason that the stumbling blocks of late arrival at classes and very late arrival at home after school, should be placed in the path of his children. The city should either subsidize the Watkins bus, so as to make the continuance of service further possible in that way, or arrange with the street railways to allow that one bus to operate between Peabody and Salem during the time that it is not busy on the West Peabody run, in order that that bus may maintain itself without subsidy.

JOHN HOWARD.

John Howard, a Civil War veteran, and a former resident of West Peabody, was buried at Oak Grove Cemetery last Saturday afternoon with full Grand Army honors. He lived for many years on Lowell street, his property being that recently purchased by Rufus Condon, and was living in Andover at the time of his death, which was caused by a stroke. Before the Civil War he belonged to the State militia at Salem, and was one of the famous first battle of Bull Run. He was a member of Grand Army Post 90, of Danvers. He is survived by five children and several grandchildren and great-grandchildren, his children being Mrs. Frank Stickney, Mrs. George Horner and Mrs. Susan Decatur of this city, George Howard of Richmond, Me., and Lorenzo Howard of Providence.

On January 2 the officers of West Peabody Grange will be installed by Mrs. Margaret A. Sarre, Lady Assistant Steward of the State Grange. She will be assisted by Miss Esther Danforth.

Frank Croughwell, William Moore and Harry White, have been appointed census enumerators, their labors commencing January 2. Their territories are in the southern, the western, and the central parts of the city, respectively.

George Thurrel is working for the A. C. Lawrence Co.

Forest Southwick is temporarily working for a contractor who is razing an old building at the National Calfskin Co.

Howard Johnson, Joseph Brooks and Irving Hatch have recently accepted work at the Essex Analine Co., South Middleton.

At last Sunday evening's special Christmas service at the West church, the principal speaker was Robert Munroe, who gave an interesting account of the way Christmas is observed in Bermuda.

He expects to sail from New York on January 7th, for his winter home at Bermuda, being accompanied by his wife and family.

Mrs. James H. Flint is reported as progressing favorably after her horrible experience of last week. On the morning of Dec. 18th Mrs. Flint was found by her housekeeper, Mrs. Dennis, nearly dead from the effects

THE LIBRARY OF CONGRESS.

A LIBRARY for congress was an unquestioned necessity. Consequently, the congressional library was founded about the same time the government was first established, or in 1800. It was entirely destroyed by fire in the war of 1812 and also suffered seriously from fire at a later date. So, congress authorized the construction of a building that could not be burned. Result, the present structure, completed in 1897, said to be the most perfectly adapted for the convenient use and storage of books of any large library in the world, likewise the largest, costliest and safest.

It consists of three stories, a basement and a dome, covers almost three and one-half acres and has a total floor space of about eight acres. You can better grasp the magnitude of this building, when I tell you that it contains 22,000,000 brick, to say nothing of the other materials, and has 69,200 shelves with a total length of about forty miles.

It now houses considerably more than one million books and pamphlets, which is the largest single collection on the western hemisphere. Its estimated total capacity is about 1,900,800 publications. Its more than 2,000 windows render it the best lighted library in the world.

The colorings of the reading room are soft, quiet, rich and warm, being conducive to the greatest comfort. The walls carry many helpful and inspiring inscriptions. Its conspicuous beauty or charm, however, is in the wonderful mural decorative scheme, it being, unquestionably, the most gorgeously decorated public building in America.

SAWYER BACK BULL CAMPAIGN.

I. H. Sawyer of Topsfield, the noted Holstein breeder, has come forward with some real tangible support to the Pure Breed Bull Campaign. He believes in pure bred bulls and in the improvement of Essex county dairy herds, and offers to exchange a pure bred Holstein bull from his herd for your scrub bull, without cost, as long as his supply lasts.

Warm Rooms For Early Risers

The more sensitive and accurate regulation of the fire in the heating boiler—the more fuel you will save. Prevent the fire from running away or dying out and you have solved the secret of uniform heating with greatest fuel economy. This is all accomplished automatically by the

Arco Temperature Regulator

easily and quickly installed on any kind of a heating plant—radiators or hot air.

It is always on the job—opens and closes the dampers automatically according to the needs of the weather. The ARCO Thermostat will also turn off drafts at night and turn them on early in the morning, so that rooms are warm and comfortable at arising time.

Eliminates all attention to regulation and gives you the most sensitive and accurate control of the burning of your fuel, so that you get the maximum results with the greatest fuel saving.

Let us submit an estimate for an ARCO TEMPERATURE REGULATOR for your house and give you full information about its reliable and satisfying service.

The railways of the United States are more than one-third, nearly one-half, of all the railways of the world. They carry a yearly traffic so much greater than that of any other country that there is really no basis for comparison. Indeed, the traffic of any two nations may be combined, and still it does not approach the commerce of America borne upon American railways.

—United States Senator Cummins.

Ask Any Doughboy Who Was "Over There" and he will tell you that American railroads are the best in the world.

He saw the foreign roads—in England and France, the best in Europe—and in other Continental countries—and he knows.

The part railroads have played in the development of the United States is beyond measure.

American railroads have achieved high standards of public service by far-sighted and courageous investment of capital, and by the constant striving of managers and men for rewards for work well done.

We have the best railroads in the world—we must continue to have the best.

But they must grow.

To the $20,000,000,000 now invested in our railroads, there will have to be added in the next few years, to keep pace with the nation's business, billions more for additional tracks, stations and terminals, cars and engines, electric power houses and trains, automatic signals, safety devices, the elimination of grade crossings—and for reconstruction and engineering economies that will reduce the cost of transportation.

To attract to the railroads in the future the investment funds of many thrifty citizens, the directing genius of the most capable builders and managers, and the skill and loyalty of the best workmen—in competition with other industries bidding for capital, managers and men—the railroad industry must hold out fair rewards to capital, to managers and to the men.

American railroads will continue to set world standards and adequately serve the Nation's needs if they continue to be built and operated on the American principle of rewards for work well done.

The Bubble Burst.

Young Tom was spending Christmas in the country and had been invited to the beautiful home of a sweet young thing named Agnes.

"What a charming place!" he said enthusiastically, to Agnes' proud parents. "Does it go as far as those woods over there?"

"It does," remarked the somewhat unsympathetic father.

"Ah," said Tom, still cheerily; "and to that old stone wall over there, sir?"

"It does," came the gruff answer;
"and it goes as far as the river on the south, and to the main road on the north."

"Beautiful!" put in Tom.

"Yes," went on the old man, "but it doesn't go with Agnes!"

Then Tom faded peacefully from

C. of C. Debates Freight Rates

The Peabody Chamber, through the members who are interested in traffic matters, are discussing the recommendation made by the New England Freight Traffic League that the ferry car minimum weight be reduced from 2,000 to 6,000 pounds and the charge from $3.50 to $2.00 per car.

At a meeting of the traffic men representing the Peabody manufacturers held in the Chamber onces Tuesday afternoon, they were of the unanimous opinion that the present weight and rate was a hardship on the manufacturers and that it would be of great assistance to the railroad company to reduce the weight to 6,000 pounds which it was previous to the railroad Administration taking charge of all railroads.

It was brought out by several members that it would relieve the local freight house crew from handling considerable freight that they now have to handle, as the goods would be loaded in cars at the plants and shipped direct to transfer stations without being handled. It was the opinion of those present that it would materially assist in keeping cars moving with loads and help to relieve the car shortage. The Chamber has entered a protest to the N. E. Freight Traffic Committee, in connection with the Traffic League.

The Chamber is in a position to furnish some valuable information to those contemplating making investments by purchase of stock, through reports that they receive from the United States Investor of Boston.

A joke Christmas tree made a lot of fun for the Main office force Tuesday afternoon. Over 100 of the office people were remembered with humer-ous gifts, accompanied by nonsense verses which were read by Santa Claus, in the person of Uncle Joe Clothey, assisted by Frank Woodhouse and Will Parmenter. Refreshments were enjoyed at the close.

The three-string bowling record for day from a business trip to New York

ing in the shipping room over the

at the National, is fast disappearing, being torn down to make room for the new structure that is to replace it.

The National Christmas party, a regular feature of the office force on the afternoon before the holiday, took place as usual this year. The office was handsomely decorated with evergreen, Christmas bells and a large American flag, and a victrola furnished music for the happy gathering.
Presents were distributed by Daniel Conroy, as Santa Claus, and candy and refreshments were enjoyed.

Milton McDonald, of this city, has entered the employ of the company in the tannery.

Miss Grace Goldthwaite, of the Main office, who has been confined to her home on account of illness for the past two weeks, is getting along nicely, and hopes to be back at work another week or so.

Ralph Chapman, foreman of the Seamhouse, was presented with a handsome Masonic ring by his brother seasons at the plant, on the occasion of his taking the third degree in that order.

Tom Woodbury has returned to the city department after a long illness and recuperation.

An enthusiastic committee composed of foremen from the Sheepskin department is busy at work planning the next meeting of the superintend-ants and foremen, which is to be held on Jan. 8. They promise to make the annual meeting run by the waters over foremen in December.

Hubert Leach of the National office has been absent from his duties for a few days on account of sickness.

A New Year joke tree will be held by the Japan Shop folks on next Wednesday afternoon, when all the plant people will be remembered with a gift.

Lester Brooks was presented with a handsome traveling bag, and Maureen Ryan with a purse containing $20, the gift of the men in their respective departments last Wednesday. Other foremen at the Japan shop were also presented with ap-

The National and Sheepskin plants

WAR VETERAN KILLED

leg was so badly mangled that amputation was declared necessary.

Watson made his home with his aunt, Mrs. Edmond S. Dixon, 42 Clement avenue, for the past several years, being employed at the A. C. Lawrence Leather Co. He saw fighting in France, but escaped wounds. He figured in two other automobile accidents last fall, but escaped personal injuries.

When he left his home on Clement avenue, yesterday, for a short ride, his aunt, Mrs. Edmond Dixon, urged him not to go, declaring that she had a presentiment that something might happen. "Oh, I'll be all right," rejoined young Watson, and together, with his chum, he went forth to his death on Christmas night.

Watson had been in the employ of the A. C. L. Company for the past three years, leaving to go overseas into action, from which he returned without a scratch. He was devoted to his aunt, who had been his foster mother from a small boy, and he had many excellent traits, at all times being gentlemanly and good natured.

Funeral services will be held this afternoon at Stockwell's undertaking rooms, and the body will be sent to New Brunswick tonight for burial at his old home. He is survived by a brother, Spurgeon, a popular A. C. L. employee, and a sister, the latter formerly of this city, but now of New Brunswick.

Watson is the second Peabody war veteran to become a victim of the motorcycle, the first one being Harry Lawrence, whose untimely death resulted some months ago, when he crashed into a tree, near the American Glue company.

JITNEYS

at the next regular meeting of the City Council.

It is not requiring any argument to get plenty of names, and the men who are passing the petition are confident they will secure more than enough to insure the measure going on the ballot.

One of the jitneys which ran between Peabody and Lynn appeared in Peabody Square Wednesday afternoon with large placards calling attention to Peabody voters to their petition for the referendum and asking for signatures. Hardly had the jitney taken up its old position in front of the South church when Police Inspector Pierce made his appearance and conferred with the driver. The law allowed the jitney to stand 10 minutes in any one place, but Inspector Pierce was on hand to see that no passengers got into the bus. The driver had no intention of taking passengers, however, his sole desire being to give publicity to the referendum.

How poorly the Bay State handled the traffic from Peabody to Salem last Tuesday night was evidenced by the fact that for a period of 35 minutes between 7.05 and 7.40, not a Salem bound car passed, and only two cars for Peabody Square passed Holten street in the thirty-five minutes.

It was a deplorable service that rightly invoked the wrath of the eager shoppers, who were compelled to stand in the fog and mist, waiting for the belated trolley cars.

CHECKS TO EMPLOYEES.

The Snyder Brothers, leather manufacturers of this city, tendered a surprise banquet to their foremen and office force last Tuesday evening. A very fine dinner was served and the guests were presented with substantial checks as a token of appreciation for their work. The party broke up with a vote of thanks and many good wishes to the Snyder Brothers.

DOLL WINNER.

Winners in the doll contest held at Curtis' Drug Store, which ended Christmas eve, were Francis Ryan, Ethel avenue, 27,864; Mary Morris, Emerson street, 21,902; Louise Moura, Shamrock street, Julia Sheridan, Beacon street; Pearl Poeten, Clement avenue; Rose Glass, Lowe street; Jennie Sylva, Shamrock street; M. McGinnes, Pierpont street; L. Levin, Franklin street; Sarah Stern, Foster street.

Holiday Mail Well Handled

Peabody's postoffice handled the greatest Christmas mail in its history. Both the incoming and outgoing parcel post mails were very about one-third larger than the outgoing. Most of the packages were insured, and were in good condition when received. Five teams and one jitney, in addition to the mounted carrier's parcel post delivery truck were pressed into the service to deliver the huge amount of parcels.

Extra men were employed in distributing the parcel post packages. The postmaster and regular clerks routed up the parcel post packages by streets, so that the delivery of the packages could be done expeditiously. Every street within the postal service limits in the city was covered. All of the parcels that arrived up to and including the early morning mails on Christmas day, were delivered by noon on Christmas day. Many of the patrons of the postal service expressed their appreciation of the splendid service given them by the postoffice force.

The volume of first class mail was much larger than any previous year at Christmas time. The regular clerks and carriers were obliged to work overtime to keep the heavy mails moving, and all of the first class mail that arrived up to and including the early morning mails on Christmas day was delivered by noon on Christmas day. In order to accelerate the work at the stamp window, parcels were insured at the general delivery window, after the stamps were affixed to the packages. This new feature gave the patrons an opportunity to obtain desired information relative to the dispatch of their parcels. Belated heavy mails will arrive at the postoffice today and Saturday, and some of the extra help will be kept on to keep the mails moving.

International Expositions.

The first international exposition in this country was held in New York in 1853. The centennial exhibition took place in Philadelphia in 1876, the World's Columbian exposition in Chicago in 1893, the Pan-American exposition in Buffalo in 1901, Louisiana Purchase exposition in St. Louis in 1904 and the Panama-Pacific exposition in San Francisco in 1915. These were the most important exhibitions having an international character.

Dan Manning Rolls 170 For Alley Record

Daniel J. Manning, owner of the alleys which bear his name, put up a record string of 170 this week, the highest string at candles, ever made at the local alleys. The score is within a few points of the world's record. The pins sure did fall for the "boss," as he sent ball after ball for a succession of strikes and spares, with only two off-color boxes to prevent him from equaling the world's record.

Manning reaped three strikes in rapid succession, only to fall into an eight score for his fourth box. Then he recovered his eye and added three 19 spares. His next box gave him only nine, and his ninth box, one less pin, but he hit an 18 for the final box with the record total of 170.

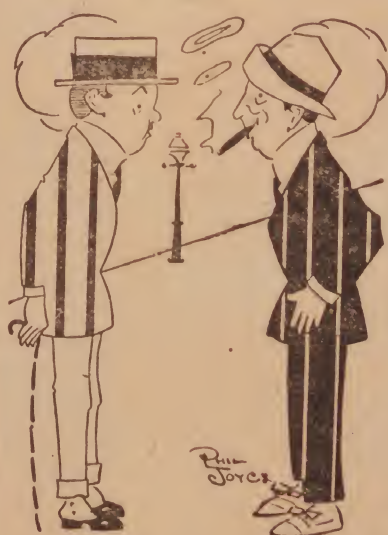

Although Peabody's new champion bowler rarely issues a challenge to the top notch artists of his emporium, he stands ready at all times to accommodate his patrons, and he has long enjoyed the reputation of being an expert on the smooth alleys.

The record score:
30-24-16-8-19-19-19-9-8-18—Total 170

FINE NOVELTIES AT ELKS BALL

There are more than 60 Peabody members of the Salem lodge of Elks and each one is doing his part to make the annual charity ball of the Antler herd, one great big success, New Year's night, in the Salem Armory. An even better entertainment than the Elks' last function is in store for the ball this next week, and many Peabody friends of the Elks will attend the ball, judging from the number of tickets sold in this city. The Elks will give away 400 pounds of sugar in 10-pound packages, to holders of the lucky tickets, the sugar being contributed by the members of the order. Thomas A. O'Shea is one of the committee.

Victor Alleys To Open Jan. 1

January 1 is the date set for the opening of the new Victor bowling alleys in the Herbert Trust Co. building opposite City Hall with Henry D'Entremont, one of the best known bowlers in the city, the proprietor. There will be five alleys. The bowling game in this city ought to see even greater interest in the local sport with rival matches between the new alleys and Mannings. Some of the local teams which have been using Salem alleys through lack of alleys here will probably transfer their games to Peabody.

PERSONALS.

First Lieut. Francis Flanagan and wife were guests of the former's parents on Caller street, for Christmas. Lieut. Flanagan is records officer at Camp Devens, and expects to remain in the army service. He was commissioned at Plattsburg in 1917, and has been stationed at Devens since.

Charles E. Barrett and family of Walpole spent the holiday with the former's parents on Andover street.

Leigh Miller, son of Rev. and Mrs. J. G. Miller, reached Boston, yesterday, from Brest, France, in time to have Christmas dinner with his family. He is supercargo on one of the shipping board fleet.

Ticket number 14 was drawn in the contest held for the Christmas cake at Klemm's bakery last Wednesday night, and the holder of this number will be given the cake on presentation of his ticket. Keen rivalry marked the two-week contest. A ticket was given to every purchaser of 50 cents' goods at the store.

FRIENDS OF JUDGE FARNHAM
GROOMING HIM FOR MAYOR

If friends of City Solicitor Horace P. Farnham have their way, it is a hundred to one shot that his name will go before the voters as a candidate for Mayor of Peabody. The ball has been started and like the boys' snowball, has been growing larger and larger, until today there is a pretty well crystallized sentiment, which gives the Associate Justice of the District Court a considerable following and strength for the contest, if, of course, he elects to run.

There is no denying the fact that there is some sympathy expressed for Judge Farnham in being replaced as City Solicitor, and this fact has much to do in the making of his candidacy.

Judge Farnham became town counsel the last year of that form of government and was carried along with the change to a city, being named by Mayor Donnell. To some extent Judge Farnham aided in the legal work which started the machinery of the city government, but he found a hard working assistant in the person of Mayor Donnell.

There has been much talk about the coming change in the office of City Solicitor since the Enterprise exclusively printed the story on Dec. 5. As the Enterprise first obtained the story, it was given out that Judge Farnham would relinquish the office, making it easy for Mayor Donnell to appoint his close friend, Judge Fay. Judge Farnham corrected this impression in a statement to the Enterprise, declaring in substance that he was being forced to resign the office, but which he would not do.

It appears that the first signs of trouble, if that word may be used advisedly, cropped out at the State primaries back in September, when the Mayor was working every avenue to garner in the necessary votes to land him the nomination for District Attorney. The Mayor believed, according to some of his close friends, that he had a right to expect his friends to vote for him, and that his candidacy should have the first support of all of his appointees to office.

Judge Farnham was a supporter of Senator Nason, while the latter was not even a caller at the office of the Mayor, when in this city looking for patronage. It is known that the Mayor and City Solicitor Farnham had a personal talk on this subject, and

Geo. Houghton
Dies In Room
On New Years

The dead body of George Houghton, aged 65, a well-known leather worker, was found in his room in the Foster House last evening, evidently the victim of Peabody's jakey concoction. He had been known to be drinking during New Year's day and several empty extract bottles found in his room gave mute evidence of his frequent libations.

Houghton was employed at the A. C. Lawrence Leather Co. and had been a resident of this city for many years. He had separated from his wife who made her home in West Springfield. Two grown up children also survive him.

The police were notified by one of the lodgers that Houghton was believed to be dead in his room and investigation disclosed the fact that the man had passed away but a short short time. Medical Examiner Foster was called and ordered the body turned over to Undertaker Harry Stockwell.

ENGAGEMENT

Cards are out today announcing the engagement of Miss Helen Flynn, teacher at the Center school, and Leo R. Murphy, one of Peabody's young business men and war veterans, who saw service with the Y. D. division. Murphy won his commission as lieutenant in France. Miss Flynn is the daughter of John W. Flynn of 16 North Central street.

PRES. GILES' RE-ELECTION IN HANDS OF HOGAN

Peabody's City Council will organize for 1920 next Monday morning at 10 o'clock and interest centers in the election of the president. Friends of Councillor Giles are hoping that he will be chosen to succeed himself and there are those who concede his re-election by a narrow margin. Councillor Dennis P. Hogan of Ward 4 is the man of the hour today in the candidacy of President Giles to obtain a re-election and those who know the doughty representative from the Eastend are confident that he will prove a man of his word and give his ballot for Giles.

The Giles' election is entirely up to Hogan and with his vote on the first ballot there will be nothing to it.

It is reported today that Councillor Duggan is unpledged.

Dr. Varney Will Succeed Himself

Dr. Elton M. Varney, who has served as city physician for the past two years, will succeed himself and not give way to Dr. Harry Halpern, as reported to be the coming event in the way of 1920 appointments by Mayor Donnell. The latter did not authorize the published statement in another paper, that he might appoint Dr. Halpern, and the Enterprise is informed that Dr. Varney was promised a reappointment some time ago. He has rendered efficient service, being willing at all times to attend night calls.

CITY HALL GOSSIP

They are saying the only thing lacking at the fare-the-well meeting of the 1919 Council was Dutchy saying a kind word for his friend City Engineer Frank Emerson.

It is reported that one or more resignations of office appointees under Mayor Donnell is coming. It is known that the Mayor has expressed himself on one case of an appointee, but that the latter "will fight it through."

City Clerk Poor is said to have the backing of at least six of the Councilors for his re-election next Monday, and possibly one or two others. The six votes in sight are those of President Giles, Councilors Ryan, Duggan, McKen, Reed and Brown. It is reported that Councilor Jones of Ward 2 will give his vote to Jeremiah Sullivan, and Councilor Hogan is expected to vote for William McCarthy, the well known Eastend candidate. It is reported that Horrigan and Sullivan will not take part in the opposition to the present City Clerk.

The Council will convene at 10 o'clock, Monday morning for organization. It looks like Giles for President to succeed himself.

Peabody's city government, including City Solicitor Farnham and City Clerk Poor and the press representatives will attend the complimentary dinner, Monday night, to be given to Councilor Cotton at the Thorndike hotel, Boston.

Mayor Donnell has gone back to his old program of day and night service, now that he has started the machinery for his administration as District Attorney. He plans to present most of the cases before the Grand Jury, which comes in January 2. The Mayor will become District Attorney in due form next week.

The city contract for collecting the ashes may go begging this spring, and the city be forced to take over the work as a municipal project, unless more convenient places are found to dispose of the ashes and refuse matter collected. It is also certain that the price of the contract must be considerably higher this year to interest bidders, owing to the increased cost of labor and maintenance of teams. The long hauls from one ward to another to dispose of the loads of ashes has reduced the income of the contract, so that it has lost most of its alluring inducements. What few dumps are now being used will soon be closed.

A Franklin street family, consisting of parents and several children, are reported to have been made ill by drinking the city water last week.

Among the new permanent firemen who will be named is James Carr, who has been called on for much work at Central fire headquarters. He is an experienced driver of the motor kit, and as a call fireman, has proved his mettle on many occasions. The fire engineers will be one of the most popular municipal boards this coming year.

in making the appointments, announcements of which will probably be made by the middle of this month. The two platoon system goes into effect early in February.

Health Agent James J. Ray is doing yeoman work to see that the scarlet fever cases are checked, and he appears to be successful.

Peabody square? This is a question

Who will be named traffic officer in that is causing interest among the bluecoats, and especially the reserve men, from whose number the appointment will probably be made, if the Mayor sanctions the added money to pay for the berth. Councilor Ryan will make this his 1920 swan song, until the traffic cop becomes a reality in Peabody's busy mart.

Something should be done to lay a permanent roadway into Cedar Grove cemetery. The street at present is well nigh impassable and certainly dangerous to hack travel. The road needs a hard surface, which would do away with the mud and frozen ruts.

Among the appointees to be named to succeed himself by Mayor Donnell will be that of George R. Nelson, clerk of the Board of Assessors, who has rendered an efficient service to the board, during the present administration.

Peabody school committee will meet next Tuesday evening for its 1920 organization, when Louis F. O'Keefe, the young attorney, will be sworn into office, succeeding Capt. Louis P. P. Osborne, whose defeat by a minority vote at the city primaries, is a distinct loss to the city government. The school board was the stronger because of Capt. Osborne's membership on the committee.

One of the first acts of the 1920 Council next Monday will be to set a date for a special election on the jitney referendum. The jitney owners have filed their necessary signatures for the special election to see if the citizens will support the action of the Council, which revoked their licenses.

True Poetry.

True poetry, like true eloquence, is the voice of nature appealing to the heart with its utmost sublimity and power. Instead of teaching merely, it persuades, elevates, inspires. It excites a feeling where the other leaves an opinion or a maxim. It proposes examples of ideal excellence, and raises virtue into heroism.—Hugh Swinton Legare.

Watch the Sun's Halos.

The sun's halos are good weather signs. Many weather proverbs based upon the observation of halos are founded upon sound scientific principles. Studies of the relation of halos to rainfall show that during the summer months 56 to 60 per cent of all halos are followed by rain within 36 hours. During the winter months 70 to 75 per cent are so followed.

BRUSH UP MEMORY NOW FOR CENSUS MAN STARTS TODAY ON COUNTING NOSES

James L. McCarthy, Supervisor of the Census for the 5th Massachusetts District, announces the following appointments for Enumerators for the city of Peabody: Henry King, James H. Murphy, David P. Collins, Mary R. Sheehan, James Waters, George N. Skaliotis, John J. McGlone, John H. Higgins, Henry White, William B. Moore.

The men and women appointed to serve as enumerators of the Fourteenth Census are charged by law with the collection of all facts necessary to fill out properly the printed census schedules, which each enumerator will carry when making the house-to-house canvass of the territory assigned to him. Each enumerator must visit personally each house in his district, and make his inquiries of the head or some other member of the family, who is competent to answer the census questions.

The Act of Congress, providing for the Census, gives each enumerator the right to enter every dwelling in his district for the purpose of obtaining the information required. Enumerators will carry with them at all times their identification cards, and also their written commissions from the Government, which they will show, whenever requested to do so. They are instructed to be always courteous and considerate, but in those rare instances where information necessary to fill out the questions is denied them, they are empowered by law to insist on correct answers. There are legal penalties for refusing to answer the census questions or willfully giving answers that are false.

Each enumerator is prohibited by law from publishing or communicating any information obtained through the census regarding any individual or his affairs. This obligation to secrecy likewise applies to all persons connected with the Census. After the schedules are all filled out they are sealed up and sent to Washington, where the information is tabulated by means of machinery, names being discarded entirely. No person, therefore, need fear that his personal affairs will be disclosed, or that the information given, will be used to harm him in any way.

Questions covering the following points will be asked of every person in the United States:

- Sex;
- Color or race;
- Age at last birthday;
- Whether single, married, widowed or divorced;
- Birthplace of person enumerated and birthplaces of father and mother, giving names of both country and province if foreign born;
- Occupation, specifying trade or profession, also industry in which employed;
- Whether attending school;
- Whether able to read;
- Whether able to write;
- Whether able to speak English;
- Whether home is owned or rented, and if owned whether home is free of encumbrance or is mortgaged.

To Visit Every Farm.

Enumerators also will call at every farm in this community to secure the information necessary to fill out the questions contained on the agriculture schedule. Each farmer will be asked questions concerning the acreage and value of his farm; whether he owns, rents or partly owns and partly rents the land he farms; the value of the buildings, machinery and implements belonging to his farm; the quantity of all crops raised on his farm during the year 1919; and many other questions which cover all possible farm operations.

COMM. HOUSE WANTS $15,000

Charles C. Hills, News correspondent; Frank W. Penniman of the Enterprise, and Supt. Carl Kilham of the Community House, have been appointed the committee on publicity for the campaign for fund for the Community House, which will be started next month. It is hoped to raise $15,000, and it is believed that this amount will be easily obtained. The benefit of the Community House has long since become a matter of public acclaim and generous contributions are expected to echo the regard in which the project is held by the citizens in general.

that they didn't part just like Damon and Pythias. In other words it appeared they had fallen out.

During his term of office Judge Farnham has given his best effort to the work before him, attending the Council meetings regularly up to the time he became seriously ill.

Judge Farnham has his friends, and they are many, and his decision to enter the Mayoralty lists this year, to succeed Mayor Donnell, is bound to upset the calculations of some of the avowed candidates, who are known to be warm personal friends of his.

It remains for Judge Farnham to say the word if he will run or not.

NINETEEN HUNDRED AND TWENTY.

At the beginning of this New Year, we should turn back to the years now gone down in history, and ask ourselves what shall be done to make life better. How often we have heard the expression, if I could live my life over again. We can live it over, by taking the good things from the past and add to them, as we live along. Life is as we make it, and we have only ourselves to blame in so many cases, where we lay it all to fortune. Peabody in the year 1919 has much to be thankful for. We have been skimming the cream from the milk of life, as it was never before skimmed. With all the misfortune of living costs, anyone who has been the least frugal can count himself better off than ever before. It is true we cannot dance without paying the fiddler, and the fiddler costs much more than under normal times. But we do not need to dance to the extent of depleting our pocketbooks. We regret that many people are doing this same thing, and such people will complain of misfortune. Our new year, and may it be a happy one to all our readers, has great promise. Not the promise for those who elect to sit down and have the good things of life come to them, but to those who are ambitious to thrive, who wish to make a mark for themselves, and will go the limit to accomplish it, such we say will become leaders in the grind of industry. We have no use for the grumbler, for the man whose socialistic ideas leads him to admit that this world's goods should be divided, taken from the ambitious and given to one who helps himself as little as living will let him. Not so many years ago, Peabody was known as a leather town. Spoken in a casual way, it was only a coincidence. It was then considered as one of the leather places. Today, there are but few localities that can claim bigger production. Philadelphia, Milwaukee and Newark have many tanneries. But being large cities, tanning is insignificant as compared with other industries. In Peabody, practically the whole soul of the community is absorbed in leather making, or factoris using the offal. It is leather here, there and everywhere. Its population is made up largely of leather workers, so that it can be truly said the body of our city is leather with Pea for a side dish. The future looks bright. There are clouds in the horizon, which may bring us stormy weather, but the barometer points to fair. Our city, we believe, will continue to grow in 1920, as it has in the past years, a steady growth, which is the healthiest. The tax problem is a feature which we have touched on at intervals, and will mean a much higher tax rate, unless strict economy is practiced. Our Legislature has seen fit to pass laws which takes money from manufacturing cities and towns to help pay the bills of residential places. It is evident we need legislators there who will grasp the situation, and at least make efforts to stop passing laws which are detrimental to the communities they represent. The state is adding each year to the burdens of cities and towns by taxing intangibles, corporations, and the places where such things happen, lose heavily. It means in a nutshell, we are paying state expenses in a much larger proportion than residential cities. It is not our purpose to go into this matter, but Mr. Taxpayer, you will no doubt complain when the tax bill is received, but do not lay it to anybody but the Legislature, who has made it possible. So, as we travel our way in 1920, everything in general looks rosy. What will happen in city politics is a matter of conjecture. Much could be undone that has already been accomplished, but we have confidence enough in the citizens of Peabody to believe that should Mayor Donnell elect to resign the Mayoralty, that the best qualified man will be elected to fill his shoes. Our Chamber of Commerce is doing much to cement the better elements together, and if such elements will unite, we will prosper, as in the past. Never in the history of South Danvers and Peabody has any more important problems been put up to the voters, and we have no fear of the results. Americanism is as important at home, as in the nation, and if practiced in one's own community, there is nothing to fear, as a nation.

HEALTH OFFICIALS ON JOB.

Investigation by the Board of Health officials discloses the fact that the 26 cases of scarlet fever at present recorded in Peabody may be ascribed to the contagion which cropped out in Salem some weeks ago. Despite the number of cases reported in this city, none appears to be malignant, and the recovery of all of the victims is happily assured. It is a reassuring message to echo the health authorities in saying that all of the cases are light ones, and no serious defects are expected to follow the illness. Whatever comment is occasionally directed at the work of our local board of health, we cannot get away from the records, which indicate forcibly that the Peabody health board is alive to the manifold duties, and that during the past year has successfully coped with its important work. For the whole year of 1919, up to last Sunday, there were only 26 cases of scarlet fever in Peabody. There were a like number of diphtheria cases, and only three cases of typhoid fever. This latter record is strong evidence of the general health condition of our city, and in the absence of any epidemic, due credit must be given to the health officials.

A 1920 RESOLUTION.

Prohibition has left us with so few bad habits to swear off this year, that there seems to be but one alternative—to swear on some good ones. One of the best of the good habits that we should resolve to form early in the year, is that of systematic saving. This is a good habit at any time, but is twice as good this year in view of the fact that the dollar of today has a purchasing value of about fifty cents, but will draw interest in a bank at from four to five and one-half per cent. at its face value of one hundred cents, and when the value of the dollar becomes normal again, the half price dollars that you saved this year will have doubled in purchasing power. Systematic saving is made easy by some of the banks through requiring weekly deposits of specified amounts, as, for instance, the plan of the Savings bank or that of the Christmas Saving Clubs. Real will power is required to save systematically without the aid of a plan like one of these, but if the resolution is made and adhered to, the habit is formed, and nothing is stronger than habit, whether it be good or bad.

ROUND ABOUT

That a man is as young as he feels was brought home to skaters enjoying the spin on the ice at Wilkins' meadow this past week, when Frank D. Hutchinson, who admits of 70 years, but says he doesn't feel that old, showed the "youngsters" how to cut fancy curves on the smooth ice. He had such a good time that he renewed the sport.

I observe that Frank T. Connor, who has been in the employ of the government for the past year, was home over the holiday, after many months duty, which carried him as far West as the coast. He is in the technical branch of the internal revenue department, having to do with mines and natural resources. He served in the war as an Ensign, and saw quite a bit of hazardous service at sea. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Connor of Central street. His brother, Harold, was also home over Christmas, having returned from France as second mate on the West El Casco, a shipping board steamer.

Peabody's Board of Health Commission, aided by James J. Ray, agent, have reason to feel pleased at their showing for 1919, and from the record, it is apparent that Peabody has fared pretty well from the health standpoint. The records from Jan. 1 up to Dec-27, showed the following number of contagious cases: Scarlet fever, 26; diphtheria, 26; tuberculosis, 44; typhoid, three cases.

Miss Alice Chamberlain will be missed in City Hall on her retirement to the law office of Mayor Donnell. She has made an ideal secretary, obliging at all times and eager to promote the many duties of the office of the chief executive. As "acting Mayor" on various occasions, she well proved her ability to represent the Mayor. Her place will be taken by Harold Powell, brother of the Mayor's law partner, Charles H. Powell.

I have heard no opposition to the plan to increase the pay of the call firemen from $150 to $200 a year, and give the West Peabody firemen at least half of the amount paid to the "down town" men. The West Peabody men have by far the more arduous work in fighting wood fires and they deserve an increase. Last year they fought 23 wood fires and got $25. Some of the fires kept them at work 10 hours.

Rev. Dr. Francis L. Beal of St. Paul's was again installed as Worshipful Grand Chaplain of the Grand Lodge of Masons in Massachusetts at the last session.

The deepest sympathy goes out to Mr. and Mrs. Roy M. Cushman of Thorndike street in the death of their only child and son, Thomas Merrill Cushman, who passed away on Christmas Day. The little fellow was 21 months old, and a more robust baby was difficult to find. Bronchial pneumonia caused death, after a brief illness. The funeral was held last Saturday afternoon.

1920 automobile plates are white with blue letters, and they made their appearance quite plentiful in Peabody square, Wednesday, on the last day of the old year. I observed that Frank H. Edgerly & Son were among the first to display the 1920 auto number on their trucks.

I hear that Alfred Boettner, probably the worst wounded Peabody war veteran, is showing a remarkable recovery at the government hospital at Staten Island, where he has been for some months now. A piece of bone was taken from his back and placed in his head, and the operation has proved very successful. He hopes to return home in the near future. He writes that everything is being done to restore him to his health.

Master Mechanic Joel E. Ballentine of the A. C. Lawrence Leather Co. was presented with a handsome Hamilton watch by the men in his department this week, the presentation speech being made by George Estes. Mr. Ballentine was completely surprised at the token of esteem. He was given three rousing cheers upon the occasion of the presentation.

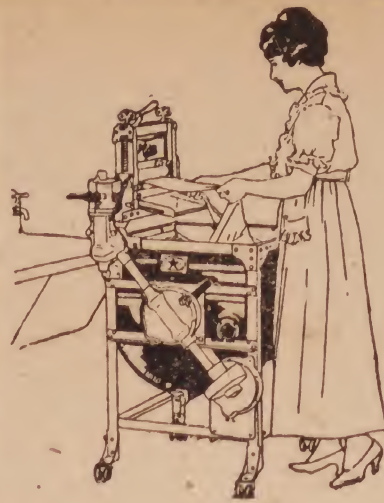

Here's wishing all of our readers a Happy and Prosperous Year for 1920.

We have no use for the grumbler, for the man whose socialistic ideas leads him to admit that this world's goods should be divided, taken from the ambitious and given to one who helps himself as little as living will let him. Not so many years ago, Peabody was known as a leather town. Spoken in a casual way, it was only a coincidence. It was then considered as one of the leather places. Today, there are but few localities that can claim bigger production. Philadelphia, Milwaukee and Newark have many tanneries. But being large cities, tanning is insignificant as compared with other industries. In Peabody, practically the whole soul of the community is absorbed in leather making, or factoris using the offal. It is leather here, there and everywhere. Its population is made up largely of leather workers, so that it can be truly said the body of our city is leather with Pea for a side dish. The future looks bright. There are clouds in the horizon, which may bring us stormy weather, but the barometer points to fair. Our city, we believe, will continue to grow in 1920, as it has in the past years, a steady growth, which is the healthiest. The tax problem is a feature which we have touched on at intervals, and will mean a much higher tax rate, unless strict economy is practiced. Our Legislature has seen fit to pass laws which takes money from manufacturing cities and towns to help pay the bills of residential places. It is evident we need legislators there who will grasp the situation, and at least make efforts to stop passing laws which are detrimental to the communities they represent. The state is adding each year to the burdens of cities and towns by taxing intangibles, corporations, and the places where such things happen, lose heavily. It means in a nutshell, we are paying state expenses in a much larger proportion than residential cities. It is not our purpose to go into this matter, but Mr. Taxpayer, you will no doubt complain when the tax bill is received, but do not lay it to anybody but the Legislature, who has made it possible. So, as we travel our way in 1920, everything in general looks rosy. What will happen in city politics is a matter of conjecture. Much could be undone that has already been accomplished, but we have confidence enough in the citizens of Peabody to believe that should Mayor Donnell elect to resign the Mayoralty, that the best qualified man will be elected to fill his shoes. Our Chamber of Commerce is doing much to cement the better elements together, and if such elements will unite, we will prosper, as in the past. Never in the history of South Danvers and Peabody has any more important problems been put up to the voters, and we have no fear of the results. Americanism is as important at home, as in the nation, and if practiced in one's own community, there is nothing to fear, as a nation.

HEALTH OFFICIALS ON JOB.

Investigation by the Board of Health officials discloses the fact that the 26 cases of scarlet fever at present recorded in Peabody may be ascribed to the contagion which cropped out in Salem some weeks ago. Despite the number of cases reported in this city, none appears to be malignant, and the recovery of all of the victims is happily assured. It is a reassuring message to echo the health authorities in saying that all of the cases are light ones, and no serious defects are expected to follow the illness. Whatever comment is occasionally directed at the work of our local board of health, we cannot get away from the records, which indicate forcibly that the Peabody health board is alive to the manifold duties, and that during the past year has successfully coped with its important work. For the whole year of 1919, up to last Sunday, there were only 26 cases of scarlet fever in Peabody. There were a like number of diphtheria cases, and only three cases of typhoid fever. This latter record is strong evidence of the general health condition of our city, and in the absence of any epidemic, due credit must be given to the health officials.

A 1920 RESOLUTION.

Prohibition has left us with so few bad habits to swear off this year, that there seems to be but one alternative—to swear on some good ones. One of the best of the good habits that we should resolve to form early in the year, is that of systematic saving. This is a good habit at any time, but is twice as good this year in view of the fact that the dollar of today has a purchasing value of about fifty cents, but will draw interest in a bank at from four to five and one-half per cent. at its face value of one hundred cents, and when the value of the dollar becomes normal again, the half price dollars that you saved this year will have doubled in purchasing power. Systematic saving is made easy by some of the banks through requiring weekly deposits of specified amounts, as, for instance, the plan of the Savings bank or that of the Christmas Saving Clubs. Real will power is required to save systematically without the aid of a plan like one of these, but if the resolution is made and adhered to, the habit is formed, and nothing is stronger than habit, whether it be good or bad.

ROUND ABOUT

That a man is as young as he feels was brought home to skaters enjoying the spin on the ice at Wilkins' meadow this past week, when Frank D. Hutchinson, who admits of 70 years, but says he doesn't feel that old, showed the "youngsters" how to cut fancy curves on the smooth ice. He had such a good time that he renewed the sport.

I observe that Frank T. Connor, who has been in the employ of the government for the past year, was home over the holiday, after many months duty, which carried him as far West as the coast. He is in the technical branch of the internal revenue department, having to do with mines and natural resources. He served in the war as an Ensign, and saw quite a bit of hazardous service at sea. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Connor of Central street. His brother, Harold, was also home over Christmas, having returned from France as second mate on the West El Casco, a shipping board steamer.

Peabody's Board of Health Commission, aided by James J. Ray, agent, have reason to feel pleased at their showing for 1919, and from the record, it is apparent that Peabody has fared pretty well from the health standpoint. The records from Jan. 1 up to Dec. 27, showed the following number of contagious cases: Scarlet fever, 26; diphtheria, 26; tuberculosis, 44; typhoid, three cases.

Miss Alice Chamberlain will be missed in City Hall on her retirement to the law office of Mayor Donnell. She has made an ideal secretary, obliging at all times and eager to promote the many duties of the office of the chief executive. As "acting Mayor" on various occasions, she well proved her ability to represent the Mayor. Her place will be taken by Harold Powell, brother of the Mayor's law partner, Charles H. Powell.

I have heard no opposition to the plan to increase the pay of the call firemen from $150 to $200 a year, and give the West Peabody firemen at least half of the amount paid to the "down town" men. The West Peabody men have by far the more arduous work in fighting wood fires and they deserve an increase. Last year they fought 23 wood fires and got $25. Some of the fires kept them at work 10 hours.

Rev. Dr. Francis L. Beal of St. Paul's was again installed as Worshipful Grand Chaplain of the Grand Lodge of Masons in Massachusetts at the last session.

The deepest sympathy goes out to Mr. and Mrs. Roy M. Cushman of Thorndike street in the death of their only child and son, Thomas Merrill Cushman, who passed away on Christmas Day. The little fellow was 21 months old, and a more robust baby was difficult to find. Bronchial pneumonia caused death, after a brief illness. The funeral was held last Saturday afternoon.

1920 automobile plates are white with blue letters, and they made their appearance quite plentiful in Peabody square, Wednesday, on the last day of the old year. I observed that Frank H. Edgerly & Son were among the first to display the 1920 auto number on their trucks.

I hear that Alfred Boettner, probably the worst wounded Peabody war veteran, is showing a remarkable recovery at the government hospital at Staten Island, where he has been for some months now. A piece of bone was taken from his back and placed in his head, and the operation has proved very successful. He hopes to return home in the near future. He writes that everything is being done to restore him to his health.

Master Mechanic Joel E. Ballentine of the A. C. Lawrence Leather Co. was presented with a handsome Hamilton watch by the men in his department this week, the presentation speech being made by George Estes. Mr. Ballentine was completely surprised at the token of esteem. He was given three rousing cheers upon the occasion of the presentation.

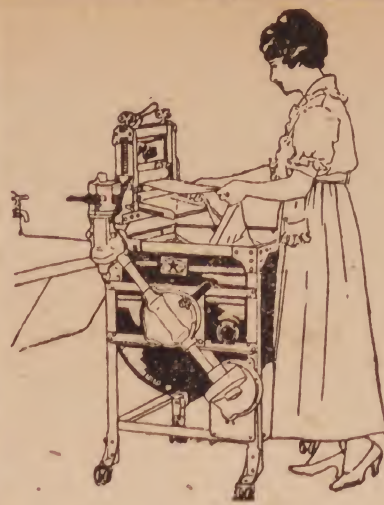

Here's wishing all of our readers a Happy and Prosperous Year for 1920.

EIGHT PEABODY GIRLS SERVED

There were eight Peabody girls enlisted in the U. S. navy during the World War. They were: Helen M. Sullivan, chief yeoman (F); Marie Comeau O'Rourke, yeoman (F) first class; Catherine Conners, yeoman (F) first class; Elizabeth Rossely, yeoman (F) first class; Ruth Manning, yeoman (F) first class; Beatrice McManus, yeoman (F) first class; Marion Ellis, yeoman (F) first class.

Some of these girls enlisted under third class ratings and won their promotions. During the war Miss Sullivan served in the Navy Dept. at the Custom House, Boston; Miss Conners and Mrs. O'Rourke at the Charlestown Navy Yard; Miss Flynn in the Navy Appraisers stores office; Miss Ellis at the First Naval Headquarters, Little building, Boston, and Miss Rossely and Miss Manning at the Burgess plant handling naval correspondence at their Marblehead office. The signing of the armistice prevented Miss McManus from performing active service in the navy. These yeomen (F) have been released but will not be discharged until the expiration of their four years' enlistment.

Miss Rossely and Miss Manning are now at the Great Lakes Naval Training Station, Michigan, as civil service stenographers. Misses Conners, Sullivan and Ellis are serving in a like capacity at the Boston Navy Yard.

BOY SCOUTS TO OBSERVE FEB. 8

With an invitation to every man, woman and child in the United States to adopt for one week at least their habit of doing a good turn daily, 470,000 members of the Boy Scouts of America are developing plans to make the celebration of the Tenth Anniversary of the Scout movement, the week of February 8th to 14th, the most pretentious program of democratic good-feeling and genuine Americanization the nation has witnessed.

Peabody has over 100 Boy Scouts.

In every one of 16,000 communities where troops of Scouts are organized, programs of definite service and celebration are planned, and it is the hope of Scout officials that the response to the invitation to every citizen and every child to do a good turn will be so universal as to make every community in the nation feel the definite benefit that will inevitably result from this nation-wide campaign of mutual helpfulness.

Efforts are being made to have every church service for Sunday, Feb. 8, devoted to the doctrine of the Good Turn, and in co-operation with church officials, Good Turn services are being planned for churches of all denominations everywhere.

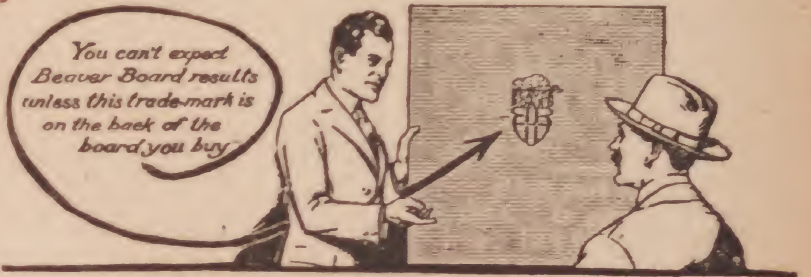

On Sunday evening, Feb. 8, at 8:15, Scouts of every city and every village throughout the United States will unite in a renewal of their Scout oath, and wherever he may be at that hour and time, every one of the 470,000 members of the Boy Scouts of America will stand at Scout salute, and take anew his obligation to do his best to do his duty to God and his country and to obey the Scout law; to help other people at all times, and to keep himself physically strong, mentally awake and morally straight.

National Calf Awards $300,000 Contract For Big Tanning Building

(By Energy)

When the larceny of leather at Hunt-Rankin Leather Company was announced this week, it created as much talk as a murder. That there has been much leather stolen from factories today and yesterday no one will deny. But particularly during the high prices of the last three years, it has been tempting bait for the unprincipled to get leather from their employers for there are many on the outside who will buy it at figures which insure a healthy recompense. It seems easy to steal leather from factories, perhaps in large amounts no, but to conceal a side cut in pieces about one's person is no trick.

In the Hunt-Rankin case, there appears to have been a plot and how many will be connected with the case is not known at present. But if skins were taken from this factory at intervals without being detected, an outsider would say something was loose to say the least. This case may be the forerunner of a closer supervision of leather factories. There is no doubt but what better systems could be installed as to keeping better records of what is doing in leather factories. It is probable that some tanners have improved on their methods of keeping track of skins in process. The tanner who takes in work must deliver the proper amount to the owner. But I hear of so many cases where lots do not figure out as to number, it is evident that this larceny will tend to new methods of keeping track of lots. It is a good bet that the value of leather stolen in Peabody factories the last three years would buy a pair of shoes if they do cost big money.

In the allied shoe and leather trade, the year is winding up not exactly in a blaze of glory, but still in a way that is entirely satisfactory to most of its members, so says Current Affairs. Hides have dropped off in price from 44 per cent in country hides to 30 per cent in the packer product. This appears to be a heavy drop. It not only appears but is a heavy drop, but with a shortage of 25,000,000 hides in sight, and any business ahead, no figuring of the present kind would indicate that prices will recede much farther.

We are in a turmoil. Like a ship at sea, the storm is raging, and if we can weather the storm the placid water will return, and we can set sail for our destination. The trouble is, however, if we happen to be near ledges or land, there are not life savers enough to go around, if too many flounder. Some of the big fellows in the shoe industry tell us that shoes need not be so high. Telling us does not make it so, and feasting on hot air of this breed is apt to give us tanner's colic. Those who have experienced this colic which includes failures, loss of credit, not to speak of loss of sleep, is some disease if you may know. The latest dope as to shoe prices is something like this: "Warned perhaps by recent individual experiences, trade prophets, both bull and bear, have latterly displayed unusual caution in the making of predictions, and it may be that the prices to be charged for footwear during the fall and winter of 1920 and 1921 will depend somewhat upon the state of mind in which the purchasing public finds itself about that time."

The general country-wide movement for the establishment of fair prices for all of the principal articles of apparel may turn out to be a factor in this matter. Now if my readers can figure out just what prices are to be or what is going to happen to the public-be-damned, I am happy to think this poetry in prose has struck home. Surely the public may stand on its hind legs some day, but up to now they appear to have no hind legs that are useful. In fact they seem to enjoy spending their money for the high price article, perhaps with the idea they are rich and wish everybody to know it.

The National Calfskin Company have given the contract to a Boston concern for a building on Webster street to cost $300,000. I am of the opinion that this structure will be the last word in tannery construction. Surely this corporation has had experience enough in building factories suitable for making leather. It may be possible that better leather can be made in better factories, but from what I have witnessed over there, it will be difficult to improve on their quality. I admit I am not an expert on leather. I admit I once thought I was an expert. But I have seen stock produced at this plant that looks good from my standpoint. Eight hundred dozen skins daily are enough to supply several shoe factories. And as this concern have ground out this amount for many, many years, it is plain somebody buys them and comes back after more.

Building this factory is the first sign that we are still growing. It is true the A. C. Lawrence Company has added and added, but it became so common there as not to create comment. The National plant has been depreciating. Wooden buildings and not too well constructed, has given Father Time a chance to get in his work. But when he tackles the new structure, he will realize that even he has his troubles. The National Leather Company should receive thanks (they are cheap) for their new venture. But I believe this is only the beginning. I wish them a Happy New Year.

I do not hear of any coal shortage among the factories. It was fortunate that the shortage did not reach Peabody, for it meant much to all. Although I do not know of conditions, I am lead to presume that all is well.

I ask as a special favor that my readers desist from sending cigars, confectionary and the like this year. I attempted to digest the assortment last year and the doctor got the benefit.

Peabody Post, 153, American Legion, will be represented at the State convention to be held in Faneuil hall, Boston, tomorrow, by Charles M. Boyle, John Quinlan, Bertie Poeton, Leonard Cassidy and Fred Shea. The principal business before the convention will be the ratification of the constitution and by-laws and some lever debate is anticipated. A large number of resolutions are expected to be adopted, among them being one on the sugar market, Bolshevism, military service and pensions.

It is said that State Commander Logan may appoint Charles M. Boyle on the legislative committee.

Discharged soldiers, sailors and marines, who have dropped their War Risk Insurance, may reinstate it without paying all the lapsed premiums, providing that they make application within 18 months after discharge from the service. It will be necessary to pay premiums for two months and sign a statement to the effect that the applicant is in as good health, as he was at the date of discharge. No physical examination is required. It will not be necessary to reinstate the $10,000. A person may reinstate $1000 or more.

Provision has also been made to permit persons to convert their war insurance to other kinds of government insurance, such as Ordinary Life, Twenty Payment Life and Twenty Year Endowment. The Government is to remain in the insurance business for the benefit of those who served in the war.

Every discharged soldier or his dependents should be interested in the above matter and immediately write to or call on the "Department Insurance Officer, room 717, 99 Chauncy street, Boston, Mass." All information will be furnished and assistance given at that office or through the mail.

THEY WERE ALL THERE.
In the Bureau of War Risk Insurance, the files of our fighting forces indicate that many prominent men were represented by namesakes. Of "George Washingtons" there were 123; "General Washington," 6; "Robert E. Lee," 119; "John Quincy Adams," 47; "Abraham Lincoln," only 5. General Grant, General Wellington, General Pickett, General Jackson, and even Napoleon Bonaparte, were all there, although their rank in the world war was that of private.

LAUGHING STOCK.
Are you laughing at me? demanded the professor sternly to his class.
Oh, no sir, came the reply in chorus.
Then, asked the professor even more grimly, what else is there in the room to laugh at?

A vast amount of work now remains to be done which the intervention of war has necessarily delayed and accumulated, and the result is that very large capital expenditures ought to be made to make up for the interruptions inevitably due to the war, and to prepare the railroads to serve adequately the increased traffic throughout the country.
WALKER D. HINES,
Director General of Railroads.

Work more—Produce more—Save more—

But we can't continue increasing our production unless we continue increasing our railroad facilities.

The farms, mines and factories cannot increase their output beyond the capacity of the railroads to haul their products.

Railroads are now near the peak of their carrying capacity.

Without railroad expansion—more engines, more cars, more tracks, more terminals—there can be little increase in production.

But this country of ours is going to keep right on growing—and the railroads must grow with it.

To command in the investment markets the flow of new capital to expand railroad facilities—and so increase production—there must be public confidence in the future earning power of railroads.

The nation's business can grow only as fast as the railroads grow.

HOUDINI IN SENSATIONAL AIRSHIP CRASH AT STRAND

Dorothy Gish and her company of fun-makers in a characteristic picture called "Turning the Tables" will be presented at the Strand today and Saturday. Miss Gish plays the part of an heiress, railroaded to a private sanitarium by a scheming aunt, who is trying to steal her fortune. The air Dorothy disguises herself as a nurse and proceeds to cause havoc to the proprietor and several manly hearts. A fake spirit medium, played by George Fawcett, adds to the hilarity.

The final episode of William Duncan in "Smashing Barriers" will be another feature for today. "Smashing Barriers" has been one of the most successful serials the Strand has ever offered, and all who have followed any of the previous chapters, should make it a point to see this smashing climax. "A Roman Scandal," one of Al Christie's celebrated comedies, rounds out the program for today.

Bert Lytell in "The Spender" will top a big bill for Sunday evening. Mr. Lytell became a popular star over night, because of his excellent work in "Lombardi Ltd.," a picture that all patrons of the local playhouse will remember. "The Spender" is one of those clean-cut comedy dramas. It is full of laughs that alternate with a dash of smiles and just a few tears caused by the delightful philosophy that permeates the story. It tells in the manner in which a crabbed old business man was brought to a full realization of his unhappiness by a scathing denunciation of his nephew, and how, with the help of the nephew, he found life worth living again. Beside Lytell in "Caroline of the Corners" will be the other half of the Sunday evening bill.

One of the most amazing air accidents in the history of aviation forms the sensational climax of the "Grim Game," a Paramount-Artcraft special, starring the famous handoff king, Houdini. This picture will be shown on Monday and Tuesday, and according to the story, Houdini in an airplane is pursuing a murderer, who is trying to escape in another machine. At the height of 3000 feet Houdini is supposed to glide above the other machine, let himself down into the cockpit beside the murderer by means of a rope, and throttle him.

All went well with the stunt, the two machines circling one above the other, and a third, containing the photographer, about a hundred yards away, until Houdini was just about to loose his hold upon the rope. Then suddenly a gust of wind lifted the lower plane into the upper one, and their propellers locked. Both machines dropped like rockets, revolving nose on nose, with Houdini still dangling on the rope and the two aviators making frantic efforts to control their machines. Death seemed certain. But a few hundred feet from the ground, with both propellers gone, one of the airmen by a miracle, succeeded in falling into a glide, and though the other crashed nose on into a field, the only injuries sustained were a few broken ribs. This was a real accident, reported by the Associated Press. It is just one of many in this picture, which comes with the reputation of being the limit in motion picture thrills. "Salome and Shennadoah," a Mack Sennett comedy, with Ben Turpin and Phyllis Haver, will also be shown on Monday. It is some comedy and the funny cross-eyed man has never been more laughable.

Planned to Seek Sunny Clime for Lung Trouble But Has Discovered

Allen's Lung Healer

A Very Interesting Statement

To the People of Peabody:

For three years I suffered from a lung cough which I could not shake and it continually grew worse, despite all I could do. I used about every known remedy, even Creosote at $5.00 an ounce, but got little relief. I got so bad that I could not sleep on account of the racking, tearing cough. My lungs were sore, I was short of breath and I became all run down. I got so discouraged that I decided to give up my business and go south to escape the severe winters. Fortunately I heard about Allen's Lung Healer and I began to take it. The result was marvelous. I began to improve rapidly and after using two bottles my cough was entirely cured, my general health restored and I felt like a new man. I believe this medicine saved my life for I feel certain I was on the verge of consumption if not actually in its grip. I heartily recommend it to everybody for a lung cough.

The Wonders of America

"THE CATHEDRAL OF COMMERCE."

THE Woolworth building, New York city, the highest office building in all the world, is often referred to as "The Cathedral of Commerce." This marvelous building is 792 feet or 60 stories tall. About 8,000,000 human beings reside within the bird's-eye view visible from the observation gallery on the fifty-eighth floor. This view, so unusual, so wonderful, has attracted representatives from more than sixty different countries.

About four hundred feet of the outside of the upper portion of the tower is flood lighted at night. This causes the building to present a bold and imposing spectacle—visible, 'tis said, 40 miles at sea. The structure weighs 223,000 tons, this tremendous weight being supported by 69 caissons, the largest 19 feet in diameter, all going down to bed rock or 110 feet below the sidewalk. Engineers claim its construction is so solid and safe that it would withstand a wind having a velocity of 200 miles per hour.

About 250 people are required to operate and maintain the building, which contains almost thirty acres of floor space. The tenants and their employees number about ten thousand. To serve them and those who enter to transact business with them, 28 elevators are required. About 25,000 people, on an average, ride in them daily. Approximately 250,000 pieces of mail matter are delivered in the building daily. The two elevators which operate to the tower are the fastest elevators in the world, having a speed of 700 feet per minute.

Another Linotype Machine Added To Peabody Press Co. Plant For Newspaper Work

The Peabody Press Co., home of the Enterprise, has this week added another linotype machine to its plant equipment to meet the increased demands for type production. The new machine is a model L from the Mergenthaler Linotype Co. which supplied the model 8 to the Press Co. shortly after the Peabody Enterprise came to Peabody.

The L model equipped to carry a single magazine is particularly adapted for newspaper and magazine composition but the machine can be fitted with any of the magazines carried on the model 8 machine. The inter-changeable feature of the two linotypes now in operation in the Peabody Press Co. plant was stipulated by the management in order to get increased production.

The linotype is called one of the most human-like machines ever devised by inventors and, as well known, its introduction revolutionized the printing business. It is a machine but little understood by the layman, however, and the Enterprise is interested in setting forth to its readers some of the attributes of this wonderful invention.

The linotype performs every function of typesetting, from melting its own metal to the assembling of the complete lines of type ready to print. The complexity of its operations is bewildering. Their result is as simple as that of a typewriter. The operator sits before a keyboard, and touches it with a touch actually lighter than that needed for many typewriters. What he "writes" assembles itself so that when he is done the complete narrative lies at his left hand in metal, perfectly arranged, ready to be placed in the page forms that go to the press.

In 1886 the first newspaper was set by linotype. It was the New York Tribune. Today newspapers are being set daily by this instrument not only throughout America and Europe but in the far-off places of earth—in towns a thousand miles up

In his communication on the budget to the Council, Mayor Donnell predicts a tax rate of $20 for this year. He includes in his new budget $117,000 for more permanent street construction to complete work on Endicott, Wallis and Tremont streets, recommends $60,000 to be bonded for water service this year and provides for the payment of $59,100 for street construction done last year. The budget also provides for payment of $243,000 out of the revenue this year.

COUNCIL IN PROTEST AT TROLLEY ORDER TO PULL OFF CARS

Peabody's City Council adopted resolutions last night vigorously protesting the notice of the Eastern Mass. Electric Railway that it would take off its Peabody and Salem cars at midnight Jan. 14 and voted to have the City Clerk inform the railroad officials that this city will consider it a breach of good faith to remove the cars until the matter of the jitneys is definitely settled. Several of the councillors expressed themselves forcibly while a representative of the road took down their effusions in shorthand.

Councillor Hogan was for issuing licenses at once to the jitney owners to resume business, while Councillor Duggan introduced a motion asking the Boston and Maine to run a shuttle train between Peabody and Salem during the rush hours. It was Councillor McKen who got by the motion of protest to the railroad. Councillor Eagan making his initial speech, supported Councillor Duggan's motion on the grounds that some adequate transportation be assured the commuters if the trolley cars were taken off.

Councillor Giles asked for investigation as to why the conductors on the Peabody-Lynn cars were not supplied with the 16-ride tickets to sell the patrons, declaring that the tickets were no longer being sold at Raymonds, but by the conductors of the Salem-Peabody lines.

Some of the debate was cut short waiting the outcome of the jitney cases in the district court today.

The Mayor's veto of the referendum on the jitneys was sent to the Council last night. His reason as announced in his opinion that the Council has not the right to order a special election on the jitneys, their action not being a "measure" within the provisions of the Plan B charter.

The Mayor also let it be known that the proposed ordinance increasing the pay of the call firemen was illegal and he cited a decision of the Supreme Court which gives City Councils only the right to reduce the Mayor's budget instead of increasing items in it.

1920 BUDGET PROVIDES SALARY INCREASES FOR DEPARTMENT HEADS

Mayor Donnell in the role of Santa Claus gave salary boosts to various appointees of his administration in his 1920 budget submitted to the City Council last night and which was referred to the finance committee that will be named next Monday by President Horrigan.

The biggest raise in the Mayor's budget goes to City Auditor William E. Goggin whose new salary is placed at $2400, an increase of $600. City Engineer Frank Emerson is raised to $3200, a raise of $200. Chief Grady is given a boost of $300 to $2100 and the Assessors' office which digs up the money for the municipal machinery was well remembered. Chairman Quirk is raised from $1500 to $2000, Clerk Nelson from $1800 to $2200 and Assessor Bomer from $1200 to $1500. City Collector Hershenson is increased from $1800 to $2000. Raises of $200 are given to Supts. Wyman and Barrett of the streets and water departments and Supt. of Sewers Murphy is jumped from $1250 to $1500. City Almoner Ray is raised from $1500 to $1800. Tree Warden Callahan is raised from $1200 to $1700. The Mayor sets the pay of the police and firemen at $4.75 per day. City Solicitor Fay is raised from $1600 to $1700. An increase of $200 is given to City Treasurer Poor, from $800 to $1000. Assistant City Collector Childs is jumped

High Grade Shoes To Cost Double By Early Summer—Fine Leather Show In Hub

(By Energy)

At a meeting of shoe dealers recently it was predicted that high grade shoes would sell for double the price of today, before the summer is over. The reason for such a condition it is claimed is that the purchasing public demand the high grade shoes. Dealers say there are plenty of low cost shoes on the market, but they do not sell. It comes back to the extravagance which marks this era. It shows the public have not come to think of economy and will not come to think of it until such time as they are compelled to by stress of circumstances. This is human nature. The thrift of old New England days appears to be over. The world has moved on as it were, to a new state of affairs only to change again as time goes on.

There appears to be every probability of shoe prices going higher. Raw material, particularly hides has dropped. I cannot see any reason why hides will go much lower, and from a hide standpoint they are not worth the price of hides taken off in the summer and early fall. It has always been the practice of tanners to purchase a sufficient supply in the fall to last through until the short haired hides came again. With the present price it would take much money, but I assume the big fellows carry out this plan as far as practicable.

Pickled sheepskins remain firm, which must mean that they are being absorbed as fast as they come into the market. Finished leather is slow. So many shoe manufacturers have purchased ahead, new orders are few. The trade feel that this condition is of short duration, and that the demand will be brisk in the near future. This only means that prices will hold firm, and it would take little for such prices to rise. With so much leather in process that has cost high, either the prices must hold or big losses face the tanners. Time could and will tell.

The National Calfskin Company will not use the new building as a factory proper. It is planned to use it as a storehouse for all kinds of leather in process and for materials. Insurance enters into this program. Transferring from the wooden buildings will simplify the insurance problem. But a building seven stories high will hold some leather represented by millions of dollars.

The big meet of the National Shoe Retailers Association January 12 to 15, will gather those most prominent in the trade. Arrangements have been completed to house and feed the large number who will attend from all parts of the country. Each day will witness a series of entertainments for all, and business with pleasure will be the slogan. The problems of the trade will be discussed, which means the styles, how best to manage a shoe store, then will come pop concerts, meals with and without, informal teas, theatres, and visitors want to see the North Shore even if ice takes the place of the water. Wives of the retailers will be there, which probably accounts for the afternoon teas.

I note that the United Shoe Machinery plant will be visited, and it will no doubt be an innovation to those who have never seen such machinery as they produce. It cannot but make them feel that the industry is bigger than they could hope to realize. I believe that Sidney Winslow was one of the big factors in placing shoe making where it is today. Through him it was possible to place the business on levels so much higher than before, that a new era came and with it shoes of better quality and finish.

I have always contended that leather machinery could have been placed on the same plane. Instead of copying old ideas from year to year, a radical departure would have tended to improve all leather machinery. It needed a man of the Winslow type to do this, however, and it is evident no such man appeared. The original makers of machinery played the game to make money without regard to perfection. Just so long as competition did not compel new ideas, it appeared to them useless to try and build machines of a different type. Inventive brains were not employed to the extent of constantly adding to machines already running. I am told that at the U. S. Machinery plant, that five machines were made into one after hard months of experimenting.

I do not hear much about the larceny cases. I do hear, however, that most of the factories are waking up to the fact that they have been losing leather and figures how large quantities. Nothing would suit me better than to see a wholesale investigation of the illegitimate dealers in Peabody and elsewhere. There is no doubt but what some of them, to say the least, have thrived by doing a business in stolen property. One prominent manufacturer told me this week, it was being felt on the selling end, where leather was offered at prices which indicated it was stolen leather, for it could not be finished for such prices. There are stories that little will be done with the Hunt-Rankin case, but time alone will tell.

Legion Boys Open Basketball Play

Peabody Post, No. 153 basketball team opens up its season Saturday evening, this week, at the Marblehead Y. M. C. A., playing the fast Marblehead Legion team. This will be the initial appearance of both teams and it is expected that each will have a large following to urge them on. Manager Jack Quinlan of the Peabody outfit will have fairly good material to represent the Tannery Town Legion in the persons of Jim Murphy, Percy Meldon, Buddy Shea, Gus Chenery, Tommy Ray, Bill Walsh and Joe Beggs. Manager Quinlan has been flooded with requests for dates by fast Boston teams, and it looks as though the old Tannery Town will see some hotly contested games in the near future. The Peabody manager has booked several star attractions who will perform in the large City Hall in the very near future.

It is planned to have at least two games each week and if the Peabody baseball rooters become interested in the net game, there is sure to be some warm sessions in Peabody this season. Manager Flergel of the Marblehead quintet has not yet announced the lineup of his team, but promises to put on an outfit that will have a large following to urge game will start at 8 p. m. and special jitneys will run from Peabody.

Next Wednesday evening the local outfit will play the St. Mary A. A. quintet of Lynn at the Lynn Casino. The Tanners will find Sambo Kirstien of Cornet fame facing them in this game.

The Wonders of America

By T. T. MAXEY

THE ARLINGTON NATIONAL CEMETERY.

FITTING, indeed, it is, that the national cemetery should occupy a position atop the Virginia hills which line the placid Potomac opposite the capital of the nation.

The grounds comprise about 1,100 acres and once were the property of the grandson of Martha Washington, whose only child married the conspicuous military leader, General Robert E. Lee, through whom it passed into the possession of the United States, in 1864.

So peaceful and beautiful is this spot that one half suspects nature just lovingly shaped it for the very purpose for which it is being used. The portion now used for burial purposes is inclosed within a wall of red sandstone. It is divided into sections, with tastefully-arranged avenues, drives and walks.

In this consecrated spot sleep the silent hosts "who gave their lives that the country might live"—approximately 25,000 of them at the present writing. Any honorably-discharged soldier, sailor or marine of the United States service is entitled to burial here.

In one section rest the remains of the sailors who were killed in the wreck of the Maine in the harbor of Havana; in another the remains of 2,111 nameless soldiers gathered from various battlefields, camps and abandoned cemeteries. Here, too, are the graves of many of our brave generals and admirals, including that of Quartermaster General Meigs, who suggested to President Lincoln that this site be converted into a military cemetery. Also some time-worn stones marking the graves of several officers of the Revolutionary war.

CITY HALL GOSSIP

It is reported that Councillor Giles might have succeeded himself in the chair had he been willing to promise that he would vote against the appointment of City Engineer Frank Emerson. When this proposition was put up to him he is said to have replied that he would not stoop to any such bait.

Anent joy riding in city gasoline buggies, it's a pleasing ride to inspect the sewer gates at 10 p. m.

Councillor Reed palmed the names of Giles for president and Poor for city clerk before the Council.

Mayor Donnell came to bat with an alibi for the municipal garage when he said the low cost of caring for 20 machines would prove the wisdom of the garage.

Fred Sherry, driver for M. & A. express, and Charles Lawrence, both war veterans, are among the candidates for permanent firemen to be named on the adoption of the two platoon system next month.

It will be of interest to note that the Board of Health spent money last year in the care of children's teeth.

President Richard W. Horrigan who will rule the Council this year thanked his supporters in the following language:

"Gentlemen, I thank you and I promise to do my best to be fair to all. All that I ask of everyone is to try and be fair to me. This is the place to settle all matters coming before the Council." The new president then took up the reins of his office with complete confidence and acquitted himself exceedingly well on his initial appearance with the gavel.

Councillor Hogan was the man of the hour, all right. He used a woman's prerogative and changed his mind. He had promised to vote for Giles for president. Party went ahead of promise, and there you are.

It is rare that any opposition crops out in the re-election of a true and a tried city clerk. There can be no question as to the fitness of City Clerk Francis L. Poor. City clerks are re-elected without opposition in 99 cities out of 100.

Former President Giles proved himself a good loser by moving the election of President Horrigan be made unanimous.

Councillors Reed and Ryan whose arguments induced the Council last week to vote to increase the pay of the special police and janitors in City Hall for services at dances and parties can point to Malden where the city has recently voted to pay special police $5 for their attendance at dances.

The dinner given in honor of ex-Councillor Charles H. Cotton, the retiring member of the body, at the Thorndike hotel, Boston, last Monday night must have made Mr. Cotton feel he was going to be missed by the members of the Council with whom he has collaborated for the past three years. Nothing lacked to make the party a big success. The table decorations including roses were the last word in perfection and the menu an elaborate affair. The dinner reflected great credit on the committee and particularly Councillor Duggan who was master of ceremonies. Mr. Cotton warmly thanked his colleagues for their testimonial.

Councillors Jones, Eagan and Sullivan cast their ballots for Jeremiah Sullivan, candidate for city clerk. The other eight votes of the Council went for the re-election of City Clerk Poor. Councillor Sullivan then moved the election of Mr. Poor be made unanimous.

Among the gallery of spectators at the inauguration of the 1920 Council were these prominent city officials. Chief of Police Grady, City Auditor Goggin, City Almoner Ray, City Sealer Sawyer, Assessors Quirk and Bomer, Assistant Collector Childs and Police Inspector Pierce.

Ex-Councillor Cotton was among the spectators. He declares a great load is off his shoulders which might bear out the assertion that all is not rosy with politicians.

Councillor Giles declared at the Council meeting Monday that the hardest vote he was ever called on to cast was against the jitneys. He believed the trolley company should greatly improve its service.

Failure of the 1919 Council to permit the Mayor to buy cast iron water pipe for 1920 without advertising for bids cost the city $3000, according to Mayor Donnell.

Candidates for the new positions in the fire department are waiting the call for the civil service examination. Already a large number of men have entered their names, including some of the present call firemen.

For changing his mind and voting for Councillor Horrigan for president, Councillor Hogan is being panned pretty hard by a dozen or more members of the Republican the Orinoco, in South Seas islands whose names still suggest cannibals, in Africa's lion-land of Uganda, on the Persian Gulf, in Mandalay of the luring temple-bells celebrated by Kipling, in Iceland, on the Equator and far north of the Arctic Circle.

It can speak in more than 40 languages, ranging from English to Arabic. Compositors in American newspaper offices set more than a column in an hour with it, and many can set two—far more rapidly than the quickest reporter can write on his typewriter, and from 10 to 15 times more quickly than can be set by hand.

Every time a key is touched, innumerable operations ensue simultaneously within the machine. Strike the key "A" and the matrix "A" glides from its place among all the others and moves smoothly on an intricate course to the place where it is needed. "Matrix" as the little brass thing is called is in layman's English simply a mould for casting a letter. Matrix follows matrix as the keys are touched, and each goes so swiftly that when the operator strikes the last letter of a line on his keyboard, the line of matrices is completely assembled. While he continues writing, a plunger draws molten metal from a pot within the machine, the matrices and the hot fluid impinge on each other, and a solid line of type is cast and delivered.

Types must be accurate to a hair's breadth. Few readers realize, probably, how microscopically fine are all the dimensions in a type page. A tiny discrepancy in any dimension makes havoc under the press. Therefore the machine must not only assemble matrices and cast them, but it must space them perfectly, level them, trim them and deliver an absolutely true line or "slug." Furthermore, it must send the discharged matrices back while the operator is writing new lines.

The range of the marvelous instrument is as unlimited, practically, as are the demands of the printer. It sets the smallest paragraph in the finest of types such as agate, and it casts and sets the great flaring type-letters used in our big department store advertising. It can set a straight column, or it will set type stretching clear across a page. It sets type around an illustration, no matter how irregular its shape.

Chamber Loses Valuable Aid In Death of Timothy A. Sweeney

The Transportation committee of the Chamber has received advice that the Interstate Commerce Commission has held the two year and one day limitation on carriers' bills of lading to be unreasonable. "The proceedings before the Interstate Commerce Commission regarding the matter brought in issue the construction, reasonableness and propriety of the provision with respect to the filing of claims or the institution of suits on account of loss, damage or delay.

"1. Defendants' bill of lading provisions with respect to the filing of claims or the institution of suits on account of loss, damage, or delay found not to prohibit the payment of meritorious claims, if seasonably filed with the carrier, after the two-year-and-one-day period, prescribed in the bill of lading as the maximum period for instituting suit, has elapsed.

"2. The above bill of lading provisions found to have been and to be unreasonable, unjustly, discriminatory, and unduly prejudicial, and defendants directed to modify these provisions in accordance with the conclusions announced herein."

The Chamber's Transportation committee recently met with Mr. Lamoure, Freight Traffic Manager, and Mr. Miller, Superintendent of Transportation, and arrangements were made to have a survey made of the local conditions pertaining to package cars to the various transfer centers to see if more speedy delivery of freight shipments could not be accomplished by the railroad.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors held Monday evening, Jan. 5, the following resolution was adopted: Peabody, January 6, 1920.

Mrs. Thomas A. Sweeney and Family:—

At the regular meeting of the Directors of the Peabody Chamber of Commerce it was voted to adopt and spread upon the records the following resolutions:

Resolutions on the death of Timothy A. Sweeney.

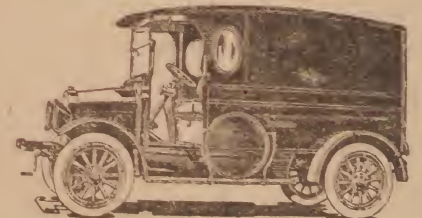

Whereas, It has pleased the Creator of All Things to remove from our midst our late member, Timothy A. Sweeney; and

Whereas, The close relations long held by our deceased friend with the members of this Board render it most fitting that we should place on record our appreciation of his services;

PRESIDENT RICHARD W. HARRIGAN.

Friends of the newly elected President of Peabody's City Council see in Councillor Richard W. Harrigan, a man well qualified to guide the destiny of the 1920 Council, and those who have seen this Councillor in debate from the floor, were not surprised to see him take up the duties of the presiding officer with complete confidence in his ability to handle the many trying situations that confront the President. He is possessed of the best speaking voice in the Council, which of course, will be largely lost in the chair, but his rulings are bound to be heard from all angles of the Council Chamber. It is evident from his first appearance, that he will not hesitate to ask the opinion of the City Solicitor on various matters. President Harrigan is gifted with a pleasing personality, that has made him many friends since he essayed the public lists back in 1916, and his success in the important role to which he was elected this week, seems well assured. He has pledged himself to be fair and impartial, and he has a right to expect a similar attitude from all of the Councillors, who go to make up Peabody's legislative body, charged with making the city progress.

OPPORTUNITY FOR PEABODY LEGION.

A national movement along real and constructive Americanization lines is to be inaugurated by the American Legion during the week of Feb. 16-22. This week is to be devoted by the country. This live, virile organization, composed of the nation's most American young men, men who fought to save America, are continuing the fight for the upholding of America's ideals by the recognition of the vital need for absorbing into the life of our nation all the best of the many millions of alien population. This week can be made a great deal of right here in Peabody, if the local post will avail themselves of the splendid opportunity to do some of the most patriotic work that peace has left us to do—the encouraging of our foreign-born to stay with us and become American citizens. This business of "making friends" with aliens is even more beneficial to the country than that of combatting radical activities, for it is prevention work, rather than a cure. Think what a different city Peabody would be if she were 100 per cent. American! She can be made so only by each one of us lending encouragement to our foreign-born friends; encouragement that will make them feel that America wants them to stay and be part of America, without which he can never become a true citizen. As a suggestion to the Peabody Post, it might be well to get in touch with the Americanization Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, as well as that of the A. C. Lawrence Leather Company, both of whom are actively engaged in constructive Americanization plans.

THE JITNEY QUESTION.

It is not to be wondered at that there is a growing dissatisfaction on the part of commuters over the revocation of the jitney licenses, for the Bay State Street Railway has done little, if any thing, to appease the extra demands made on its cars for transportation between Peabody and Salem or Lynn. The long waits in Salem for quick and regular service to Peabody surely make the public, dependent on the trolleys, wish that the jitneys were again operating. The failure on the part of the railroad to fill this present void has made many citizens, some of whom sided with the trolley, wish the motor busses were again giving the people service. There can be no denial of the statement that the jitneys would not be able to properly handle the traffic of Essex county, if the trolleys were to be removed from the service, and for this reason the fair-minded citizen leans to the railroad in its argument for the monopoly. Yet in the busy lanes of travel it appears to be taking the railroad a long time to give the traveling public adequate service. It may be that the road is handicapped and needs time in which to get its bearings and provide the transportation that now devolves entirely on its shoulders. The commuter who values his time, cannot be blamed if he chafes under the delay attendant at terminals. There are not enough cars during the rush hours, and those at the disposal of the patrons do not operate often enough. One criticism directed at the railroad in Peabody is its insistence on collecting fares as the passengers board the cars in Peabody Square. Much time is lost in the slow process of punching tickets or making change, and during the rush hours at night, it is frequently observed that the patrons of the trolleys are blocking vehicle travel in waiting their turns to board the cars. The road has hit on the happy plan of collecting fares on some of the Salem cars when the passenger leaves. Why not try it in Peabody, and do away with some of the criticism from the toilers who are hardest hit by the slow process of paying as you enter.

TIMOTHY A. SWEENEY.

Peabody has lost another good citizen in the passing of Timothy A. Sweeney, one who was found solidly behind every progressive measure for the good of the city and one, too, who gave his time and generously of his purse, to insure success of every undertaking. This was his record in all of the war drives for funds, no matter what society was seeking the money for the relief of our war veterans. He was found anxious to boost the Chamber of Commerce, and make that organization take its rightful place in the important work behind it. He made friends and kept them, and in all of his fraternal organizations he was always welcomed and active. The Enterprise extends its sincere condolences to his widow and family.

ROUND ABOUT

One of the handsomest New Year's cards received in Peabody last week was that of Mayor and Mrs. Donnell.

Ever see Frank T. Lummus, the contractor, ruffled? I can't run across anybody who will admit he ever saw this elongated citizen out of sorts, which proves he has a disposition which is always under control.

The New England Appraisal Co., which makes a specialty of appraising factory plants, is filling a great void in this district, so I am told, and judging from the number of calls from local leather plants, the concern is being kept very busy. I am told the company has several plants in Maine on its list.

I heard many compliments for Rev. N. J. Murphy, pastor of St. John's church, in his invocation at the inaugural of the City Council last Monday.

I am told that a number of married couples living in Ward Five are learning the art of dancing at the middle age of life and finding real pleasure in their lessons on the polished floor. The parties are held in the hall on Endicott street.

Rev. Herbert Howard, newly called pastor to Baptist church, is a native of Iowa, and a product of the Missouri schools, and later a seminary in New York. He has held the pastorate in Randolph, whence he came, for the past seven years. Prior to that he was located in Rochester, N. Y. Under his direction the local church holds great promise of growth. He is much impressed with Peabody's good streets, and is looking forward to his work in this city.

Miss Amy D. Dorsett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dorsett, is meeting with much success in her teaching of horthand and bookkeeping in the Attleboro High school. She is in her second year as a member of the faculty. Previous to going to Attleboro, Miss Dorsett taught in Gardner. She is a graduate of Simmons College.

I have heard many compliments for the editors of the "A. C. L.," the twice a month publication, issued by the A. C. Lawrence Leather Co. employees on its New Year's number. The magazine came from the press on this issue in a handsome new dress, with holiday colors, the drawings made by the staff of artists at the big leather plant.

Few Peabody women keep more active in organization than does Mrs. Jesse Barrett, wife of the Peabody fire chief. She always is foremost on committees where there is work to do, and her past record leaves little to be desired, when it comes to efficiency. She is now active in planning the details for the sale and entertainment to be held in Boston, Feb. 4, by the Woman's Auxiliary of the Massachusetts State Firemen's Association.

I observe that Charles M. Boyle was made secretary of the Essex county delegation of war veterans to attend the State convention in Boston last Saturday. There were 113 delegates from Essex county present. Mr. Boyle was named a member of the legislative committee by State Commander Col. Logan. Boyle knows more State solons than any other Peabody man.

By actual count 900 men and women customers were handled at the Warren National Bank last Saturday night, so I am told by President Lyman P. Osborn, which goes to show that the patrons appreciate the accommodations of a general banking business on the week-end evening. The Christmas Club savings which closes this week, has an enrollment of over 2000 depositors.

Bert Cilley, resident of Gardner Park, has a wide acquaintance with Essex county printers in his capacity as salesman for the American Type Founders' Co. of Boston. He has been with the concern for some years.

Principal Joseph Gilmore of the South school presented each of his eighth grade pupils with a thrift stamp for Christmas to encourage them to begin saving in 1920. The present had its effect, for this week the class of 25 pupils possessed 61 stamps.

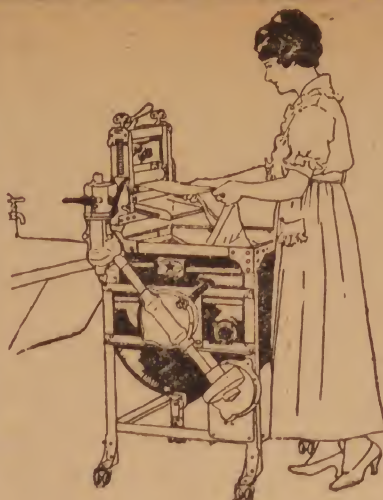

A WAY TO LEARN.

"What would you do if I should dare To steal a kiss from you?"
asked he.
"To answer that I do not care,
But there's a way to learn," said she.

NOT FLATTERING.

He — I love you better than my life.
She — Considering the life you lead, I am not surprised.

A good spot-light on the apparatus would make it easier to find the roads into these brush fires after dark.

Trials of Matrimony.

We were stopping at a hotel, while on our honeymoon, and were trying to hide the fact that we were newlyweds. We succeeded quite well until dinner time. Just as we had reached the center of the big dining hall, a rot stood up on her chair and shouted, "Which one is the bride, mamma?" Every one then knew, by my telltale blushing, that it was I—a most embarrassed bride.—Chicago Tribune.

Mrs. Leon Phillips of 17 Raddin Grove avenue, Lynn, formerly of South Peabody, gave a New Year's party to about 25 friends of South Peabody, Danvers and Salem. The home was very tastily decorated with evergreen. A turkey supper was served, and at each plate a fancy hat and favor was placed, the hat being worn during the supper.

Dancing was next in order with selections from the Victrola. Mrs. Minnie Bryer in behalf of the friends presented Mrs. Phillips with a purse of money. Each guest was presented with a diary book for the year 1920.

High School

Efforts so far to muster up enthusiasm for basketball among the high school students has failed to show any real interest. Supt. Killam of the Community House has tried to get some teams together.

Principal Woodman is finding a valuable assistant in Mr. King who seems able to turn his hands to about everything on the high school program. He has been acting traffic cop at the lunch counter. His efforts went far to speed up service.

The football team is looking forward to the usual banquet in recognition for its stellar work of the past season. Eddie O'Connor is the 1920 captain of the eleven. He was a big tower of support in the games last fall, being a sure tackle and a ready line plunger.

The committee on nominations composed of David Shaktman, Edward O'Connor and Mr. King of the faculty have submitted these names: For football manager, Jack Anglin, Edward Ferguson and John Connor; for baseball manager, John Carten.

Morning exercises were held in the assembly hall last Wednesday, the seniors and juniors being present. The program was as follows: March, Katherine Bresnahan; Scriptures, Robert Johnson; The Y.D. Memorial, Alice Mulcahy; piano and violin selections, Sylvia Gaines and Frances Merrick; The American Legion, Stephen Cross; piano solo, Olive Goldthwait; march, Katherine Bresnahan.

Nicholas Clare has been absent the past week with illness.

John Sweeney, sub-freshman class, has the sympathy of the school on the death of his father, Timothy A. Sweeney.

There will be an election of the Athletic Association today.

Winifred Driscoll, Room 10, was absent from school last week.

"IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE" IS STRAND FEATURE TODAY

When it comes to pictures you have got to hand it to the local playhouse for securing the best on the market. For instance the show the Strand is offering for today and Saturday compares favorably with any offered in any theatre in the country. Bryant Washburn in his smashing success "It Pays To Advertise" is the feature attraction. Briefly the story of this play concerns the young son of a millionaire soap manufacturer, who refuses to work for his father in the soap factory. The father turns him out, whereupon the son, staking his all in his belief in the value of advertising, builds up a trade mark and finally has the laugh on his father when he sells him his business for a large sum, also winning the girl he loves. "Fatty" Arbuckle in "Hayseed" is the second number for today. "Fatty's" antics down on the farm are furiously funny and his supporting cast contribute generously to the merriment. Ruth Roland in the first chapter of "The Adventures of Ruth" rounds out the program. All three numbers have scored the biggest kind of hit wherever shown and when offered together they make up an irresistible show.

Bessie Love in "The Little Boss" and Marguerita Fisher in "Money Isn't Everything" will be the attractions Sunday evening. Miss Love's picture tells a romantic story of life in the Redwood forests of the west. There is a brilliant ball-room scene "The Invisible Bond," the picture starring Irene Castle, which the Strand will offer on Monday and Tuesday. Miss Castle does very little dancing in the picture as she is too much interested in the whereabouts of her young screen husband, who according to the story has gone for a wild automobile ride with a scheming vampire of his acquaintance. The photoplay is an adaptation of Sophie Kerr's well known novel "The See-Saw," and is said to furnish Mrs. Castle with an opportunity to show quite remarkable talents as an emotional actress and also to wear some stunning new gowns.

Will Rogers, the popular star of the Zeigfield Follies, will also be offered on Monday in "Almost A Husband." Mr. Rogers has developed a style of comedy all his own and his releases have been received with great enthusiasm in theatres all over the United States. This is Mr. Rogers second appearance in Peabody and patrons of the Strand will recall his excellent work in the Rex Beach story "Laughing Bill Hyde."

Elsie Ferguson in "The Counterfeit" will be presented on Wednesday and Thursday. This is an exciting story about counterfeiters and society life at Newport.

Maurice Tourneur's special "Victory" and Marguerite Clark in "A Girl Named Mary" will be shown at the Strand soon.

Out of accumulated capital have arisen all the successes of industry and applied science, all the comforts and ameliorations of the common lot. Upon it the world must depend for the process of reconstruction in which all have to share.

—JAMES J. HILL

The Successful Farmer Raises Bigger Crops

and cuts down costs by investment in labor-saving machinery.

Good prices for the farmers' crops encourage new investment, more production and greater prosperity.

But the success of agriculture depends on the growth of railroads—the modern beasts of burden that haul the crops to the world's markets.

The railroads—like the farms—increase their output and cut down unit costs by the constant investment of new capital.

With fair prices for the work they do, the railroads are able to attract new capital for expanding their facilities.

Rates high enough to yield a fair return will insure railroad growth, and prevent costly traffic congestion, which invariably results in poorer service at higher cost.

National wealth can increase only as our railroads grow.

Poor railroad service is dear at any price. No growing country can long pay the price of inadequate transportation facilities.

High School

Efforts so far to muster up enthusiasm for basketball among the high school students has failed to show any real interest. Supt. Killam of the Community House has tried to get some teams together.

Principal Woodman is finding a valuable assistant in Mr. King who seems able to turn his hands to about everything on the high school program. He has been acting traffic cop at the lunch counter. His efforts went far to speed up service.

The football team is looking forward to the usual banquet in recognition for its stella work of the past season. Eddie O'Connor is the 1920 captain of the eleven. He was a big tower of support in the games last fall, being a sure tackle and a ready line plunger.

The committee on nominations composed of David Shaktman, Edward O'Connor and Mr. King of the faculty have submitted these names:
For football manager, Jack Anglin, Edward Ferguson and John Connor;
for baseball manager, John Carten.

Morning exercises were held in the assembly hall last Wednesday, the seniors and juniors being present.
The program was as follows: March,
Katherine Bresnahan; Scriptures,
Robert Johnson; The Y.D. Memorial,
Alice Mulcahy; piano and violin selections, Sylvia Gaines and Frances Merrick; The American Legion, Stephen Cross; piano solo, Olive Goldthwait; march, Katherine Bres-nahan.

Nicholas Clare has been absent
the past week with illness.

John Sweeney, sub-freshman class, has the sympathy of the school on the death of his father, Timothy A.
Sweeney.

There will be an election of the Athletic Association today.

Winifred Driscoll, Room 10, was absent from school last week.

Dorcas Club Make Gift To Teachers

The January meeting of the Dorcas club was held at the home of the teacher, Miss Warner, 3 State street, Wednesday evening of this week. Thirty-two members and friends were present including guests from Dorchester and East Pepperell. A special feature of the meeting was a "joke tree" which caused much merriment as the presents were distributed. During the evening Mrs. Alice Gordon in behalf of the class presented Miss Warner, in a few well chosen words, with a beautiful black opossum muff. It was a complete surprise but Miss Warner responded in a happy vein, expressing sincere appreciation of the gift. The social committee, Mrs. Nafis and Mrs. Perley Randall furnished an entertainment. Refreshments were served and the meeting broke up at a late hour, after a most enjoyable evening.

Y. W. C. A. PLANS WORLD PROGRAM

$3,000,000 NEEDED FOR WORK.

Leader Calls Association a "Stabilizing Influence" in Outlining Post-War Program for Women—Federal Council of Churches to Announce "Y. W. C. A. Sunday."

Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., chairman of the National Educational Campaign Committee of the 1920 World Service Program of the Young Women's Christian Association, has made the following statement:

"Since the war we are more than ever aware of the economic, industrial, educational, social and religious diff-

MRS. JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER, JR., Chairman of the Educational Campaign Committee of the Young Women's Christian Association.

culties which beset the lives of girls and women everywhere. In meeting the post-war needs of women the Young Women's Christian Association stands as an instrument of service, tested and proven by war, and organized to meet the manifold problems of peace.

"Because of its fifty odd years of experience in meeting fundamental problems affecting girls, the Young Women's Christian Association is an organization particularly fitted to exert a stabilizing influence upon the troubled times through a consistent program of service for girls and women.

"American women are asking how they may share in the world's reconstruction. They can do so by enlisting the support of their communities for this World Service Program, which will insure to the world a healthier and better womanhood.

"This campaign of the Y. W. C. A. to tell the people of the United States about its work and to raise $3,000,000 with which to carry on Y. W. C. A. work during 1920 in the United States, Europe, China, Japan, India, South America, Egypt, Siberia and Mexico will close the week of February 22 to 29, which will be known as Y. W. C. A. Week.

"The Federal Council of Churches will probably set one Sunday as a time for ministers throughout the country to address their congregations on general conditions affecting women and the Young Women's Christian Association as an instrument of service.

"The immediate task is to bring to the people of the United States a knowledge of conditions affecting the lives of women in all parts of the world. We can no longer ignore the character, the manner of life and the ideals of other peoples, whether we want to or not. A special call is now coming to the Association from China, Japan, India and South America, where work was held back during the war because of the necessity for special activity in France and the United States.

"The World Service Program calls for $4,500,000. Of this amount $1,500,000 has already been secured."

The educational campaign committee includes among its members Mrs. Robert E. Speer, president of the National Board of the Y. W. C. A.; Mrs. Henry P. Davison, Mrs. William Van V. Hayes, Mrs. Robert L. Dickinson, Mrs. William Adams Brown, Mrs. Van Sanford Merle-Smith, Mrs. Lewis H. Lapham, Miss Ellen Hale Stevenson, Mrs. Frederic B. Pratt and Mrs. Herbert Lee Pratt.

SMALL Y. W. C. A. IS COMMUNITY CENTER

Recreation for Girls Is Important Feature of Work.

Fifty-two young women in the United States are known as Y. W. C. A. "town secretaries." All of which means that the fifty-two are organizing recreation work for girls and for the community at large in towns of less than 10,000 inhabitants.

The Y. W. C. A. may be in one rented room or more. It may be a whole building, but at any rate there is a recreation room and if possible a kitchen, reading and writing rooms. If the Y. W. C. A. has a building of its own it becomes a community center, where all women's organizations may meet.

MAYOR PREDICTS $20 TAX-RATE IN LETTER WITH NEW BUDGET

water extension appropriation and taking about $37,000 worth out of surplus, the tax rate on the present valuation would be approximately $20. The surplus at the beginning of the year was large enough to permit of $37,000 being taken from it. I have a plan in mind whereby I hope to secure for the city this year a considerable sum of money, but until I am certain that it will be successful it will be impossible to count upon it.

In this budget $59,150 is for the street and sidewalk construction of last year, $5000 is for the street light extensions, $2500 for water extension to West Peabody, $98,000 for other water extensions, $5000 for sidewalks, a new chassis for the police patrol and a new car for the fire chief amounting in all to $178,000 and the increased salaries and wages with the double platoon next year will add about $65,000 more, making $243,000 which will all be paid for out of the current year's tax levy with the exception of $60,000 to be bonded for water extensions. You will readily see, therefore, that the present administration can not hope to find money for all the requests that are being made, but allowing for the permanent increases in salaries and the bond issue of $60,000 you still have a leeway of about $117,000 for permanent improvements yearly, and this after paying the bond interest payment on the street construction loan bonds, so there is no reason why some of these improvements should not be left until another year, although I expect to ask the Council to later borrow the usual $30,000 to finish Wallis street, part of Endicott street, and I hope part of Tremont street.

I have also attached a list of salaries which is the maximum amount I feel the city can afford to pay the present year.

Respectfully,
S. HOWARD DONNELL,
Mayor.

With the Employees of

A. C. LAWRENCE LEATHER CO.

The January meeting of the superintendents and foremen of the plant was held last evening on the 6th floor of Q building, under the direction of a live committee of sheepskin foremen. A number of original ideas were worked out in planning the meeting, with the result that the evening was filled with instruction and entertainment. Roy S. Bonsib, director of the Industrial Bureau, Tanners' Council, presented an interesting lecture entitled "The Romance of Leather-Making" illustrated with stereopticon views, many of which depicted A. C. L. scenes and people. The Belmont orchestra furnished music, most of its members being employed in the sheepskin department. Michael Ray, reader; William Parrish, with banjo and mandolin; J. Ten Eyck, buck and wing dancer, and Jo Lalor and Carrol Loveday proved conclusively that there is a wealth of talent in the plant. The next meeting will be run by the National foremen in February.

Warren Blake, firemarshal at the shop, is out with Buick Big Six touring car this week.

Antin Elchuck, of the Japan boiling room, suffered a severe burn on his hand the first part of the week, but is getting along nicely.

Miss Alice Wilson has returned from a week's trip to New York City.

The A. C. L. bowlers who suffered defeat at the hand of the K. of C. team last Monday by a close margin are on their toes waiting to clean up in the second match next Monday. A few of the A. C. L. men were way off form, so Desmond's high string went for nothing.

Miss Mildred Calvert of the main office is suffering from an attack of pleurisy, and has been obliged to be absent from her duties this week.

Anthony Foster, of the sheepskin department, is receiving congratulations on the arrival of a baby girl, born Thursday morning.

Lester Phinney, clerk in the hide tacking room, severed his connection with the company this week.

Miss Doris Kingsley, of the main office, leaves today to enjoy a brief rest before her coming marriage. Miss Kingsley has made a host of friends in the company.

Jerry Murphy, who has been with the company off and on for a number of years, is back with us again in the chrome tan glove department, after having toured the country for the past several years. Mr. Murphy has worked in all the leading tanneries of the country during his career, but comes back to the A. C. L. as the best of them all.

Miss Marion Quint of the cutstock office has been out on account of illness for the past two weeks.

Ed. Carbery, the popular cornetist and leader of the Waverly orchestra, joined the A. C. L. this week and has started work in the glove finish department.

Walter Honnors of the book leather office has been confined to his home in Swampscott with an attack of the grip this week.

The Evatt Construction Company are starting work on the new National administration building this week.

George Abbott, John Donovan and Charles Rennicks of the book leather department are on a business trip to Newark, New Jersey this week.

Samuel Brown, who has been doing State Guard duty in Boston for several weeks, is back to the book leather, having been honorably discharged from the company.

Fred Hodgkins of Peabody is a newcomer to the nubuck department this week.

John Broch, kneestaker in A building, appeared in the New Year boxing carnival in Madison Square Garden, N. Y. Mr. Broch is an athlete of considerable note.

Edward LeBlanc, of the mechanical force, has just returned from a two weeks' trip to Canada. He reports the weather as being extremely cold, the thermometer ranging around 30 to 40 below zero.

The cartoon of Peabody Square, shown in the last issue of the "A. C. L." magazine, came in for considerable favorable comment from the readers. Harold Van Voorhees, the artist, also designed the attractive front cover of the New Year number as well as other decorations in the magazine.

The sympathies of the National are extended to C. Burton Huntress, of the finishing department, who suffered the loss of his mother this week.

Carl Kieley, of Goodale street, has commenced work in the beamhouse at the main plant.

James Sweeney of this city entered the employ of the dyehouse this week.

The merry bowling matches between the main office girls and a team from the league continue to be a source of pleasure to a number of enthusiasts. The match this week resulted in another win for the ladies, who, with their handicap, rolled 1436 as against 1344 by the leaguers.

Carl Monroe and John Welch, both of Danvers, are newcomers to the Japan shop this week.

One way to reduce carbon trouble

Heavy carbon deposits in the combustion chamber and on piston heads cause lots of engine trouble ranging from pre-ignition of the fuel charge to the destruction of the lubricating oil. This can be avoided. With uniform, high grade gasoline that possesses even vaporizing and ignition qualities, carburetion can be so perfectly regulated that the fuel charge is burned up completely, leaving a minimum of carbon deposit.

SOCONY Motor Gasoline meets every motor fuel requirement. It is carefully refined to a definite standard of high quality. It is as uniform as modern science can make it. Its carburetion and ignition qualities assure dependable power under all weather conditions. Standardize on SOCONY for motoring economy and satisfaction.

McCHURCH—BRESNAHAN.

A very pretty wedding took place at St. John's rectory, Wednesday evening, when Mary Frances Bresnahan of this city and William Edward McClinch of Bridgeport, were united in marriage by Rev. N. J. Murphy. They were attended by Margaret E. Moroney and Henry Bresnahan, brother of the bride. The bride was prettily attired in white georgette crepe, with a veil, and carried bride's roses. The bridesmaid wore pale blue satin with plush hat to match, and carried Kilarney roses. The bride's gift to her bridesmaid was a string of pearls. The groom's gift to his best man was a stick pin. A reception followed at the home of the bride's parents, 132 Washington street. After the reception the couple left for a wedding tour to New York. Following their trip, they will make their home in Bridgeport, Conn.

Bowlers Hail Newhall Champ For Night Only

Work is being done this week at Manning's alleys and the alleys are all improved on and much faster than ever. In the near future some pretty big 10-string matches are to take place at these alleys and some good rolling is sure to be recorded.

At these alleys some four years back, Paul Phoeler and Archie Walsh the king pins of the bowling game, rolled strings equal to the high scores they are rolling throughout the State. Phoeler rolled 1142 for 10 strings and Walsh rolled 1098. Later in the season Phoeler and Walsh will probably be seen again on these same alleys.

Charlie Newhall defeated Fred Weisberg of Boston 65 pins in a 10 string match, Newhall rolling 953 and Weisberg 888. This match was for $50. Charlie Raymond then challenged the winner right away and Newhall bowled him a 10-string match. Raymond won by the margin of nine pins. Newhall rolled 925 and Raymond 934.

Charlie Raymond will roll any bowler in Peabody a 10-string match for $25.

Chet Hays' American Express team defeated L. B. Southwick's team this week by a margin of one pin.

Holman, Macauley, Rackliff, Burns and Daley of the A. C. Lawrence bowling league challenge the five bowlers that were defeated by the Knights of Columbus last week to match game some night next week.

The Knights of Columbus would like to roll any team in the city. They would like to hear from the American Legion.

Some of the high scores that won the daily prize at Manning's alleys the past week:

Monday—Chet Hay142
Tuesday—Frank Silva120
Wednesday—Huby Lawrence139
Thursday—Kildeery129
Friday—Mike Desmond127
Saturday—Frank Kiernan141

George Gill won the prize for the week for the best single string without a spare or strike with 96.

Legion To Hold Sunday Concert

Peabody Post 153, will have plenty of business to transact Monday night at its meeting, among the items being the resolution to increase the dues from $2 to $4. The committee appointed to arrange details for the Sunday concert on Feb. 15 will meet. Another committee having the joke Christmas tree in hand will consider a date on which to hold the get-together meeting and steps will be taken to provide a suitable entertainment.

Changes in the constitution will be discussed and the members will have a chance to digest the so-called Stover constitution which all Posts are asked to consider before the next State convention to be held this coming month.

The Peabody Post wants the City of Peabody to welcome home the veterans who returned home since last June.

American volunteers who served in the Canadian forces will hold a meeting tonight in Carpenters' hall, Lynn, to discuss resolutions introduced at the State convention of the American Legion in Boston. Other matters of importance will be brought before the meeting.

John W. Hayes Not To Go South

Planned to Seek Sunny Clime for Lung Trouble But Has Discovered

Allen's Lung Healer

A Very Interesting Statement To the People of Peabody:

For three years I suffered from a lung cough which I could not shake and it continually grew worse, despite all I could do. I used about every known remedy, even Creosotal at $5.00 an ounce but got little relief. I got so bad that I could not sleep on account of the racking, tearing cough. My lungs were sore, I was short of breath and I became all run down. I got so discouraged that I decided to give up my business and go south to escape the severe winters. Fortunately I heard about Allen's Lung Healer and I began to take it. The result was marvelous. I began to improve rapidly and after using two bottles my cough was entirely cured, my general health restored and I felt like a new man. I believe this medicine saved my life for I feel certain I was on the verge of consumption if not actually in its grip. I heartily recommend it to everybody for a lung cough.

FORRESTER'S HONOR WAR VETERANS

George Peabody Court, F. of A., tendered a rousing welcome home to its 37 members, who served in the various branches of the war service with a banquet in Moose hall, last night. Two of the members died in the service.

The principal speakers were Ex-Mayor Murphy of Lowell, who is State Chief Ranger of the order, and William Mitchell of Boston, State Secretary. Both speakers eulogized the war veterans, who represented the order in the service. Each of the veterans was presented with a handsome medal suitably inscribed, as a token of the occasion. A snappy entertainment was provided.

CHAMBER POLL ON LONGER DAY

The Peabody Chamber of Commerce recently mailed to its members a referendum on the proposed Daylight Saving law in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. Voting on this referendum closes Saturday, January 10, and the directors of the Chamber are very anxious that a full expression of the membership be in before that time. Any member who has mislaid his ballot can secure a copy at the secretary's office.

Mulcahy Girl Holding Her Own

The condition of Nancy Mulcahy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Mulcahy of Lowell street, is reported today as slightly improved, following two major operations. The little girl was stricken with scarlet fever, and it became necessary to perform an operation for mastoid. Another operation for the removal of an abscess on the brain was performed Wednesday night.

Bowditch School Teacher Resigns

Miss Sarah Gordon, teacher of the seventh grade, Bowditch school, tendered her resignation to the School Committee today to accept a position in Lynn schools. She asks for immediate action on the part of the local committee. The committee, however, will insist on a full month's notice, as it did recently in the case of another teacher, who resigned after being appointed for the year. Miss Gordon has been in the employ of the schools here for the past six years. Her home is in Groveland.

P.H.S. Must Have Expert For Coach

Football for 1920 may be lost to Peabody High school, champion holder of the North Shore league, unless a coach of proven ability is retained to shape up the available players. This appears to be the dictum of the undergraduates and the sentiment which is being expressed by the players has found an echo on the part of the Advisory board. The latter body is to meet in the near future and take steps which may lead to the hiring not only of a football coach, but one who understands baseball, as well, and can take charge of the spring players.

Haverhill high has asked Peabody to go to that city on November 20, the Saturday before Thanksgiving, offering a substantial guarantee. They want an immediate acceptance, so that their 1920 schedule may be completed. As yet Peabody has not returned its answer, and the acceptance is up to the Advisory board for consideration at its meeting set for this coming week.

Haverhill High in both football and baseball is a championship school because it has a permanent coach for athletics, and secondly, because it has a stadium or enclosed field. Peabody High lacks both of these essential things, and there is a growing demand here for both.

The enclosed field would go far to making both sports self-supporting and with proper seating, would draw larger crowds, say the players and fans, who have witnessed the results in Beverly and Haverhill.

The first requisite for a champion—

PEABODY FILES BILL TO BORROW $600,000 FOR NEW HIGH SCHOOL

Mayor Donnell and members of the School Committee filed with the Legislature today, a bill, which, if passed, will give the city the right to borrow $600,000 for a new Junior High school and stadium. The bill will be delivered to the clerk of the Legislature by Rep. Duggan.

While the bill will give the city the right to borrow $600,000 for school purposes, Mayor Donnell believes this amount will be cut down by the city paying for the stadium from other funds. The amount designated in the bill is the outside future for the new school project.

Peabody's school committee has yet to hold its first meeting of the year, and it is planned now to hold a joint conference with the City Council next week Thursday night, when the Council has its next regular meeting. The Junior High school will be discussed. The question of the stadium which will give Peabody an enclosed field may also be considered.

RESTRICTED TROLLEY SERVICE WILL CONTINUE TILL JAN. 27

There will be no further action on the part of the Peabody City Council, looking toward a relief of the present travel conditions, until after the city election in Salem on the question of the jitneys on Jan. 27. The present restricted service on the part of the "Bay State" Street railroad, which is merely caring for the mass of workers during the rush hours of the day, will probably continue to be the portion of accommodation given Peabody, until after the voters of Salem say if they favor the return of the jitneys or the exclusive patronage of the trolleys.

Mayor Donnell blames Salem city officials for their attitude against the railroad, declaring that he has it from

State Tax Will Be 8% Higher

An increase of eight per cent. in the State tax levied against the cities and towns is reported coming, as a result of the Governor's budget submitted to the Legislature. The fact that the State has deprived cities and towns of so much intangible property taxes, will go far to halt municipal improvements this year, not only in Peabody, but in other cities. Mayor Donnell believes that a tax rate of $30 will be a common necessity among cities in 1921, because of the loss of taxes on intangibles.

Peabody Moose Lodge Fair Opening Feb. 9th, Will Have Many New Alluring Features

The third grand fair under the auspices of the Loyal Order of Moose will open at Moose Hall, Tuesday evening, Feb. 9 and continue for five nights. It will conclude with a ball on Monday evening, Feb. 16. A committee of 35 members has been working on the affair for several weeks and is very enthusiastic to see this fair surpass all previous ones, which were a financial success and very attractive to the public.

On Monday night last, an open meeting was held and about 40 ladies were present to offer their services. The women of Mooseheart Legion who helped to make the last fair a success were on hand to lead the way. The ladies got right to work and organized and are ready to take care of the different booths and contests put in their charge. After the meeting refreshments were served. Solos were rendered by Charles P. Cooney and Miss Gourley, and dancing was enjoyed to the music of the Waverly orchestra.

The chief contest of the fair this year will be the contest to decide the most popular driver of the Peabody fire department, and as all the drivers are entered the contest should be a lively one.

There will be dancing each evening of the fair and some special feature of entertainment will be given which will meet with the approval of the public.

There will be a meeting of the general committee on Sunday morning at 9.30 o'clock at Moose hall. The officers of the fair are William Robinson, chairman; Gardner Viles, secretary; Alfred Labelle, treasurer, and the distribution of tickets is under the supervision of P. M. McDonald.

The present dictator of the lodge, P. T. Langan, has been a tireless worker for the Moose and all the members will give their best efforts to make this fair the most successful event the Moose have held.

P. T. LANGAN, Dictator.

Chamber To Have March Drive For Membership

At a recent meeting of the executive committee a report from a special committee on conducting of an art display was received and the recommendation that a display be conducted some time in April were approved by the executive committee and a committee consisting of L. P. P. Osborne, A. Couris and E. W. Weaver was appointed to make the necessary plans and arrangements for conducting this display. This display will no doubt be held in the City Hall and arrangements be made for having a and concert each evening. A small admission fee will be charged to help pay the expense of putting on this exhibit.

E. H. Merrill was appointed as chairman of a committee to conduct a membership campaign in March.

The executive committee approved of a report of the committee on investigation of advertising and charities, endorsing the campaign of the American Legion for securing funds to furnish their permanent quarters. Also offering to the Legion their assistance and co-operation in this campaign.

Harry Whidden and Secretary Thomas attended the meeting of the Massachusetts State Chamber of Commerce held at the Westminster Hotel Thursday, Jan. 15.

Census Wants To Include All Farm Industry

Editor Enterprise:

As the 1920 Census is drawing to a close, and as it is our aim to make it as complete and thorough as possible, we request that people conducting small agricultural enterprises make sure that the enumerators in their respective districts have made returns on Agricultural Schedules, if they conducted farm activities, as defined for Census purposes, during 1919.

Under the Census Act a farm is defined as an agricultural enterprise producing agricultural products amounting to $250. There are many residents of Essex Co. following some other occupation, who have orchards, flower gardens, bee hives, poultry yards, etc., who are not farmers, but produce enough agricultural products, such as fruit, flowers, honey, milk, eggs, garden truck and vegetables, to have their industry classed as a farm under the Census Act.

All persons who have small gardens, hen yards of 30 hens or more, two or three cows, for which no Farm Schedule has been filed, should consult Supervisor James L. McCarthy, Fifth Massachusetts District, 20 Munroe street, Lynn, Mass., or the Special Agent in charge of their territory, or the enumerator who has made their enumeration, to make sure they have been properly enumerated.

JAMES L. MCCARTHY, Supervisor.

TELLS OF SIGHTS ON BATTLE FIELDS

On Monday evening the Universalist Men's Club held its January meeting in the vestry of the church. A committee consisting of Messrs. Charles Goldthwaite, Childs, Jones, Griffen, Gardner and Hayes, served supper to about 50 men. J. Foster Smith of Salem was the speaker of the evening. His address on "Six Weeks in France and Belgium," was a splendid portrayal of conditions of the country that was in the area of fighting in the Great War. With his son, Captain Smith, U. S. A., who was in the service for two years, he visited towns and cities, battlefields, some of the very trenches that his son had been in, under fire, the Hindenberg line. They also made a hurried trip over the Alps by motor machine.

The speaker's account of the great parade in Paris on that memorable July 14th was a vivid word picture of the mighty armies of men from all the allied countries, which was led by Generals Joffre and Poch, the American forces being led by General Pershing. It was very interesting to the club to have present at this meeting Horace Bodger, who marched behind General Pershing in the parade. The next meeting will be held on Monday evening, February 9th, and plans are being made to add to the growing enrollment of members.

West Peabody

A son, Harvey Jr., was born to Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Chase at the Thomas hospital, Sunday.

George W. Hackett is confined to his home by illness.

Mrs. W. B. Phillips is convalescent from man attack of grippie-pneumonia.

Forest Southwick is now working at the Essex Analine Works at South Middleton.

Edward E. White, who is planning to visit R. B. Munro in Bermuda, has reserved his sailing for Feb. 18.

Rebecca, the youngest child of Mr. and Mrs. Perley Small, has recently been seriously ill with stomach trouble.

Attention is again called to the supper to be held January 22 in the church vestry. It is to be remembered that every member of the community is urged to patronize the affair and that there will be music and speaking from Boston, as additional attractions.

Mrs. Daniel Sheen has been seriously ill at her home on the Newburyport turnpike.

Miss Mary O'Donnell is confined to her home with the grippie.

Joseph Brooks had the misfortune last week to be overcome by escaping gas, while working at the Essex Analine Works. Found in an unconscious condition, he was carried out of the building, but it was several minutes before he came to. He suffered, however, no serious effects, and was later able to continue his work.

Mrs. Benjamin Mason of Russell street entertained the weekly whist party, Saturday evening.

Benjamin Mason returned Saturday from Lebanon, Maine, where he has an extensive lumber business.

Cannot West Peabody parents do anything to teach their children not to daily walk the railroad tracks on their way to grammar school? A large number make a practice of waiking up the Lowell track from the turnpike or crossing both tracks near the railroad. Little children cannot be trusted to be careful on this dangerous territory, and unless they are taught to keep to the legitimate thoroughfares, there may some day be an accident.

C. OF F. INSTALL NEW OFFICERS

A public installation and supper of the Companions of the Forest held last evening proved to be a great success. After supper, at which 100 people sat down to, they all sojourned to the meeting hall for installation. The deputy and grand officers installed the officers for the new year: Past chief, Mrs. Edith Evans; chief companion, Katherine Meade; recording secretary, Ethel Grady; financial secretary, Julia Cassidy; treasurer, Mrs. Katherine Flynn; right guide, Mrs. Mary Gucy; left guide, Mrs. Mary Smith; inner guard, Mrs. Annie Driscoll; outside guard, Mrs. Margaret O'Connor; pianist, Mrs. Edna Masterson; physician, Dr. John Shanahan; trustees, Mrs. Margaret Nelson, Mrs. Katherine Daley, Mrs. Albertina Nelson.

After the installation was over a short entertainment was in order, with solos by Companions Mrs. Edna Masterson and Katherine Meade, assisted by Mrs. Helen Generto at the piano.

Why The Prices On Rubbers Should Be Low

Jos. Robinson, of Robinson's Shoe Store, explains why you should not pay high prices for rubbers.

The prices of rubbers are set by the manufacturer only once a year—Jan. 1st. Then the salesmen go out and take orders for the following winter at the prices set. Most merchants buy enough to last them through the winter. On Jan. 1, 1919, the prices of rubbers were set extremely low and most every shoe dealer owns his rubbers at a low price. On Jan. 1, 1920 the prices of rubbers advanced about 25% which means 25c. advance on a $1 pair of rubbers and 75c. to $1.00 advance on all overshoes and rubber boots.

Some shoe dealers figure their selling prices on what they would have to pay for them now. Therefore, their prices automatically go up with the market. But, I don't figure that way—I figure a profit on what the rubbers actually cost me.

So, if you are in need of any rubbers, come and buy them now while my low-priced stock lasts. For as soon as I have to go and buy at the new schedule of prices I certainly will have to charge more.

A few of our prices:

Children's Rubbers.....59c up

Ladies' Rubbers 75c, 90c and $1.00 pr.

Men's Rubbers.....$1.00 pr. up

Gent's, ladies' and children's overshoes, rubber boots, in fact everything in the line to keep your feet dry, at the good old low prices.

Coal's Uncertain History.

The story of coal is a very uncertain one. No one seems to know when it first began to be used for fuel. All through the centuries it pops in and out of English literature as something taken for granted, and when it was finally found well in the van of the great industrial expansion of a century or more ago it occasioned no special comment.

The Peabody Legion Post refused this week to get behind another carnival to be run as most carnivals are, for the chief benefit of the paid promoter, and by an overwhelming vote nullified unlicensed action, which caused notice of the coming show, Jan. 21. The Legion may run a carnival, probably will, at some not far distant date, but the boys who fought the kaiser, and those who wanted to, but didn't get overseas think they can run their own show, and turn in all of the dollars to the treasury.

ARTIFICIAL LIMBS.

As a result of war injuries suffered by the U. S. forces overseas, it is estimated that the number of major amputations (amputations of an arm or leg, or both), was about 3800. One of the functions of the Bureau of War Risk Insurance at Washington is to supply artificial limbs to those disabled in the service. To date, 1266 artificial legs and 704 artificial arms have been thus supplied.

BOYS WHO LEFT THE FARMS.

Of America's mighty war forces of more than four and a half million of men, 1,200,000, it is estimated, came from farms. Records in the Bureau of War Risk Insurance in Washington, D. C., indicate that these farm-bred or farm-raised boys carried Government life insurance amounting to over $10,000,000.

During the earlier demobilization, it was so difficult to keep track of the discharged service men that it seemed as though a very large proportion of them did not return to their former addresses or homes. So many of the service men who had come from the farms seemed to be listening to the call of the city that it was feared more than one-half of them were not going back to the farms. Later the tide of migration set in toward the country, and now it is believed that the loss in man-power to the farms as the result of former service men settling elsewhere, may not be more than 500,000.

CAN'T FIND SERVICE MEN.

Nearly one-third of the former service men who were insured by the Bureau of War Risk Insurance cannot be reached by mail at their old home addresses, as shown by the letters returned to the Insurance Bureau as undeliverable. This fact shows the state of transition following demobilization of our forces. The problem confronting the Bureau is to find these men and bring home to them the importance of insurance reinstatement, as many soldiers upon discharge from the service, dropped their insurance.

50 Girl Scouts Will Put Over Drive In City

Girl Scout week in Peabody will see the 50 odd girls of the two fine troops, working diligently to make a house-to-house canvass for associate members in order to advance the work of the great organization. Troop One, at the Universalist church, under the leadership of Mrs. Howes, wife of the pastor, and that of St. Paul's church, in charge of Miss Anderson, have become very active groups, and they are accomplishing much good by their efforts.

The campaign will be for one week from Jan. 26 to 31 inclusive.

Like the Boy Scouts the Girl Scouts will be a factor in the Community House drive next month for funds. They have played strong parts in the more recent war campaign drives. They stand ready to help any worthy cause where concerted effort is the thing that puts over the success of the undertaking.

The Girl Scouts are taught the practical arts of domestic science, they study botany at first hand, by exploring the fields and woods, and they're taught civics, as well. The physical drill is an important adjunct to the training the girls receive.

Great educational movements like the Girl Scouts cannot support themselves. They are not a money making institution. Their policy is far broader than that, and they deserve the whole-hearted support of the public. There is a great need of money to meet the increasing demands of a rapidly growing organization. Trained brains, as well as leaders, with vision are necessary for the proper supervision and advancement of this movement. Funds must be contributed to this cause by the general public as well as by the friends of the Girl Scouts.

Every Girl Scout is expected to work personally for the campaign and through individual interest only, can it be successful.

It is a mistaken idea that the Girl Scouts tend to make a girl a "tomboy." From the uniform and military drill the public is apt to decide that it is a girl's organization run on army lines. The uniform is purely for practical reasons, its usefulness, its uniformity, causing lack of distinction between girls from rich or poorer homes; military drill is used entirely for discipline.

PEABODY YD WAR VETERANS GETTING MONEY FOR HOME

Peabody and Salem are asked to raise $3000 for the Y. D. home in Boston, and this city will do its usual part to assume its rightful share of the sum desired. Charles R. Durkee

ENTERPRISE HOPES LEGISLATION WILL CURB SALE OF REVOLVERS

January 11, 1920.

PEABODY ENTERPRISE:

Dear Sir:

There is every reason to suppose that certain enthusiasts in the Legislature of your State are going to try to foist on the people a notorious Anti-Home Protection law, known as New York Sullivan Revolver Law.

Should such a law be enacted, there is not a citizen in the State, whether he lives in unprotected suburban districts or in isolated country districts or not, who would be permitted to buy a pistol or a revolver for home protection without first buying a permit to purchase such an arm, and without going through a rigmarole of red tape that would make purchase next to impossible.

In New York State, when this law went into effect the sale of pistols to respectable citizens dropped off ninety-four and one-half per cent. during the very first year, while murders increased twenty-two and one-half per cent., and burglaries, robberies and hold-ups increased forty per cent.

In these days when crime has increased, as never before, when "Reds" and Bolsheviks are running riot and threatening to sweep the country, it is the duty of every thinking citizen to provide his home with a revolver or pistol or other fire arm, and be ready to defend not only his own life and the lives and honor of his dear ones, but equally prepared to stand shoulder to shoulder with the municipal and State authorities in enforcing law and order.

"A pistol in each and every law-abiding home," not "Anti-Home Protection" is the slogan.

Never can a small, armed minority repeat the Russian trap of conquering, tyrannizing and enslaving a majority, unless that majority is unarmed. It is this very contingency that our forefathers had in mind when they provided the "right to possess arms" for all citizens in that far-seeing, famous instrument, the United States Constitution. It would be ludicrous to suppose that they had in mind "punch burglars" or "second story men."

We are sending this letter to all newspapers throughout the State, so that the public may be warned. We

ELECTRIC CARS OR JITNEYS?

The public have had a proposition put up to them of late, electric street cars or jitneys to handle the traveling public? The electric cars were chosen and those interested know they did not meet the demand. Jitneys appeared again in Salem, and tried to do business in Peabody. Then service became a jumbled mess and the public were the big losers. There is no doubt in our minds but what the majority of people favored the street railroads at the beginning of this controversy. Today, the sentiment has shifted to the jitneys for the reason that the management of the electric have not filled the bill. In fact, the whole trouble appears to be mismanagement by the railroad. When one could ride from Salem office to Putnamville for five cents, or from Peabody to Beverly for five cents, or to Lynn for the same money, it was not good business judgment by those who made such a price. Such business served to spoil the public, as it were. They learned by such methods to get something for less than cost. When the jitneys became their competitors, private business would have been to meet the lowest fares the jitneys had to offer. But instead they placed the jitneys on the map of progress, and they swarmed around the squares like flies around the molasses jug. In fact, the street railroads have made blunders enough to practically wreck themselves. Having arrived at this state, they are trying methods which is fast converting the whole public against them. There has not been any of the large corporations who served the public directly, that has thrived under public control. The Eastern Massachusetts Electric is being run by a commission appointed by the Governor. To all appearances they are not making a success. It is our belief that electric cars would drive the jitneys out of business under equal conditions. By that we mean equal fares and accommodations. But at this writing, the muddle existing is serious to those who travel daily to their occupations. Shoppers can wait as can movie pictures. It might be well for us if they did keep their money a while. If factories must have their help, they could provide some means of transportation. Already some are doing this. If we look at it in a selfish way, our stores and theatres will benefit by no car service. An introduction to home stores might convince those who have traded elsewhere that they need not spend their dimes for travel but get an extra loaf of bread by staying at home. Beside the benefit of saving, it will help to knock out H. C. L., which is worth while. Perhaps a waiting game will be the way out of the matter. It would mean that many would be put to much inconvenience, but in the end the sacrifice would bring permanent results. If the railroad will not play, get the jitneys together, place someone at their head capable of handling the situation, drive those who are not fitted, out of the business, and soon the public will be conveyed to their destination and the railroad may be lost in the fog of industry.

C. OF C. CITIZENSHIP CLASS

Ten weeks ago, under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce, a class in citizenship was inaugurated. This class was free to any Peabody resident who had taken out his first papers and was anxious to receive instruction that would make it comparatively easy to take the final steps in the process of becoming an American citizen. On Monday night of next week twenty-two prospective citizens will complete their course of training and will be fully prepared to assume the duties and privileges of citizenship. There must be in the city of Peabody several hundred men who have at some time declared their intentions of becoming citizens, or "taken out their first papers." Another class is to start immediately. One of the best instructors in the State is in charge—a Peabody man, the Rev. Robert A. Bakeman. It would be a splendid thing if this class should receive applications enough so that two or three evenings a week would find the C. of C. rooms filled with eager students of the fundamentals of our form of government. While the expense of carrying on this class was borne by the State, they are unwilling to allow Peabody any more monetary assistance, as they claim that other cities who have not previously received aid will have the first opportunity. This, however, does not prevent future classes being held here, as arrangements have been made with the teacher and the Chamber whereby they will see the thing through.

WASHING DISHES

(From the Lynn Item.)

When the wife begins to swish the rag around in the soapy water, mere man vamooses. Unless he is an exceptionally sympathetic man, and then he grabs a tea towel and makes the glasses look like the cat had been washing them. Dishwashing is the most grinding drudge of women life. Sometimes we think there should be a Society for the Suppression of Washing Dishes. Surely, men join such a society when the "missus" is away. Look at the kitchen sink when she returns if you don't believe it! Bed making, sweeping, dusting, washing clothes, dressing the kids, housecleaning, canning fruit, entertaining relatives, having husband's sweetheart of other days in for dinner—those things are nothing to the eternally, constantly returning of tidying up the dishes. Woman stands for years with her hands in the dish water. Somebody ought to give her a crown for her patience. And she seldom complains. What would a man do if he saw looming up in front of him a stack of dishes 1095 times a year! And a lot of women have been washing dishes for 50 years! Give Friend Wife a lot of credit, men.

"Red Tape"

The expression "red tape" originated in the fact that tape dyed crimson is commonly and largely used in public and private business in tying up papers, hence it has come to refer to excessive formality and routine in business transactions.

Up Against the Real Thing.

Maurice was obstinate, and Robert, two years his senior, was endeavoring to make him mind. Finally he marched over to him, and, grasping him by the collar, shook him, and said, "Look here, young fellow, you haven't got your father to deal with this time."

ROUND ABOUT

By actual count last evening, it required 12 minutes to permit 48 tired toilers to board an electric car in Peabody square, bound for Salem. At the Hygrade works in Salem, it took another four minutes and the car arrived at Town House square in 32 minutes. The hour of starting from Peabody square was 5 P. M. Another car would have helped to speed up service.

Activity on the part of the Board of Health will probably be instrumental in ordering a division between a barber shop and a bedroom with four cots, which is said to exist in a certain store on Lowell street, not far from the home of the health bureau.

I observe that Rev. J. D. Hudson, pastor emeritus of the Unitarian church, and Patrick H. O'Connor, were named again this week, chairman and secretary, respectively, of the lyceum and library committee. These men have given their best efforts to promote the welfare of the Peabody Institute, and their reelection is a testimonial to their fidelity.

Ice dealers tell me that their principal setback this winter is inability to get the needed crops of harvesters. The ice on Spring and Brown ponds is 12 and 13 inches, and the dealers are willing to pay as high as $8 a day for the labor. The crop at Spring is not half harvested as yet, and hardly a scratch has been made on Brown pond.

Councillor Albert F. Reed who shoulders the municipal cares of Ward Five in addition to being foreman at the Japan department, A. C. L., is filling a new role, so I am informed. He staged a dancing bee at the big Waters River shop, one afternoon last week, and the girls had such a good time that they suggested a weekly event be made of the initial performance. The exigencies of the shop would not permit the dancing every week, so the alert Councillor suggested the girls hire a hall and hold their dancing parties every so often. Great. The idea took and Councillor Reed was delegated master of ceremonies. He couldn't back out, of course, for he had made the suggestion, and so he hired the hall. The first dance party is set for next Tuesday evening at the Endicott street hall. Girl Scouts who live in the district will dispense ice cream and cake at intermission, and the auditor promises to have the hall will accommodate about 40 couples. Councillor Reed and wife will be on hand to chaperone the party.

I observe that Cornelius J. Flynn of the General Transportation Co., is back at his office, following a severe attack of tonsillitis, which kept him confined to his home on Main street for the past 10 days. He ventured forth into Peabody square yesterday, and was greeted by his many friends.

John J. Roberts for several years chief engineer at the A. C. L., has taken a house on Abington road, Gardner Park, and is once more on the payroll of the big leather concern. He has many friends in Peabody who will be glad to know that he has returned to the city.

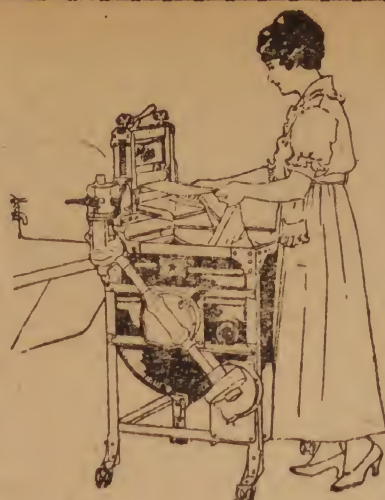

Frank Hershenson, father of the City Collector, and well known in the leather trade, will always have this laugh at his two sons. It seems some years ago his son Aaron, living in Chelsea, and the City Collector joined the Knights of Pythias in Boston. Unbeknown to either of the sons, Mr. Hershenson "rode the goat" in the same order. Still he kept his secret, despite the appeals of his sons to join the fraternity. Aaron Hershenson, one of the boys, was an officer in a certain Boston lodge, and at a meeting one night, imagine his surprise, when, in looking over the lodge members, he espied his own father occupying a seat. It sure looked as if the father had been "smuggled" in, and immediately there was a halt in the opening exercises, while Aaron ordered his own father ejected from the room. Of course, Dad Hershenson then had to prove himself a full-fledged Knight, which he easily did to the amazement of his son. How father put it over his own sons can always afford a laugh at the reunion of the Hershenson family.

How Frogs Protect Eggs.

In the manner of disposing of their eggs many species of frog exhibit remarkable peculiarities. One of the most curious, a tree frog, native of Paraguay, makes its nest in a bush overhanging a pond. The lower ends of a number of leaves are drawn together and fixed in that position by a number of empty egg capsules. The eggs are also covered with a shield of empty capsules to protect them from the sun and air. When the eggs are hatched the plug at the bottom appears to fall out and the tadpoles tumble into the water.

Old European Families.

The oldest family of Great Britain is said to be the Mar family, in Scotland, which can trace its pedigree to the year 1093. Then, too, there are the Campbells of Argyll, whose origin dates back to 1190. The Grosvenor family, that of the duke of Westminster, refers its origin to the same year that the Conqueror "came over"—1066. The Austrian house of Hapsburg goes back farther than that, its date being 952, while the Bourbons of France proudly mention 884, as the date of their origin.

And the Fly Escaped.
One of the queerest stories of automobile wrecks comes from Geneva. A man driving along the state road toward Waterloo had the windshield of his machine open. A dragonfly entered through the opening and hit him in the face. He tried to brush it off, moving the steering wheel unconsciously, ran into the ditch and through a fence and had a bad smash-up. And the worst of it is, the sufferer can't sue the fly for damages. —Buffalo Express.

CITY HALL GOSSIP

All kinds of complaints reach City Hall, but that's one reason why City Hall is there. Some are easy to adjust and others not so easy of liquidation to the satisfaction of both parties concerned. This week a woman brought in a bill for water and complained that it was 20 cents more than her last bill called for.

Another complaint that found redress at the hands of the proper official was from a householder on upper Forest street. Her bill for water seemed high and investigation disclosed the fact that at certain times of the day the water pressure in her home was practically nil because of the heavy consumption in the center of the city. Then when the water service became more normal to her home the air that had accumulated in the main, forced her meter to buzz, as if water had gone through. She objected to paying for the air, and the city saw no reason why she should be compelled to. An adjustment was made to her satisfaction.

Apropos of complaints the records show that the meters are doing their full duty, and it is seldom that the reading is in error.

Fire Chief Barrett attended the monthly meeting of the State Fire Chiefs' Association held at the Boston Elks' Home, Wednesday.

Supt. Robinson of the schools is receiving letters from John J. Mahoney, State supervisor of Americanization of aliens, who urges that school teachers be shown how they can best help the national movement to make good citizens out of the aliens within our borders. The State department of education asks that the cities and towns pay particular attention to the work this year, appropriating money with which to promote a constructive program. An instructive letter with 15 suggestions for the new work is in the hands of the school supervisor.

Reserve Officer George Kingsley, frequently alluded to as the beau brummell of the Peabody police, has again donned his brass buttoned uniform, and is keeping the peace in Peabody square on the Sabbath. Kingsley saw service in the war, and returns to the police work after a layoff of 23 months. They do come back, at least Kingsley will chirp, "I'll say so."

Reserve Officer Thomas Quinlan will be one of the several candidates for appointment to the Peabody police force this year, and his friends are helping along his candidacy. He has been counting noses in South Peabody Sundays for a long time. He has the build and the reasoning powers to make an ideal regular under Chief Grady.

To next December when the new candidates will be known for City Council, is a far cry at this start of 1920, but that fact does not prevent the friends of Michael F. Conway from getting his name before the citizens as a prospective candidate for Councilor-at-large. Conway is the man who brought the Red Sox champions to Peabody, and for a number of years was connected with the sales force at the George H. Jacobs Co. He served as a leather inspector in the war service.

It is pretty well understood that one Councilor-at-large will not be a candidate to succeed himself next December. His supporters are trying hard to dissuade him from his present decision to quit office.

A decided revision in the 1920 jury list ought to be made by the City Council this year, and care taken to eliminate names of men who have served recently, and those who are forced to stop their business in order to serve the county. There are plenty of good and true men to be had.

Mayor Donnell will probably send a batch of appointments to the City Council for its next regular meeting.

They are hailing Billy Hingston, the Walnut street copper, as hero for his discovery of a fire last Monday morning. With Marty Quinlan, Hingston makes a team that is capable of taking good care of the section in which many of our aliens abound.

Anent the police, Chief Grady is devising a program for laying out the old court room as a guard room. He will move in the lockers used by the patrolmen, and lower some of the electric lights to allow the coppers to pour over police circulars. We may see "45" introduced with the new rest room at the disposal of the policeman.

Introduction of the eight-hour day for the police will call for at least six more officers, it is said.

Says the Lynn Item: "A beneficial change in the two-platoon system in the fire department is almost ready to be put into operation. Seventy new firemen will be added to the department, and we shall have that greater force to guard our city against fires big and little. The insurance of such an increased available force is considerable, but the side that will appeal to the ordinary man is that the firemen will be able to live as other men live, with continuous hours of sleep, recreation and labor."

They are laughing at the talk of a referendum on the bill to increase the salary of Peabody's Mayor to $3500, because the opposition talk is from the opposition to a city form of government that is dead, and doesn't appreciate the fact that it is very dead. There is plenty of good argument in favor of the proposed increase for the Mayor's salary. Mayor Donnell was worth $10,000 a year to Peabody in the office he has so far filled since 1917, and any kind of a qualified Mayor who succeeds him will earn $3500 if he makes good, and guides the destiny of the best city on earth, as well as S. Howard Donnell has.

President Horrigan of the Council appears to have chosen excellent committees for 1920. Here is the official list:

Fire—Reed, Jones, Hogan.
Finance—Sullivan, Duggan, Brown, Water—McKeen, Hogan, Egan.

OCEANS OF LAUGHS WILL GREET CHARLIE CHAPLIN IN HIS FLIVVER

A fairly common situation in British high life, which is non-existent in this country, owing to our lack of a social order of nobility, is treated in Cosmo Hamilton's celebrated Cosmopolitan magazine story, "The Miracle of Love," which will top the Strand program for today and Saturday. The hero is a younger son in a nobleman's family, who has no hopes of the title, is without funds, yet cannot go to work like an ordinary man, owing to the disgrace it would bring to his family. The youth finally solves the problem by planning to leave the country and earn money in a land where his precious family is unknown. However, he meets a woman who completely changes his life. The great and almost tragic love which springs up between the two, leads rapidly to a startling climax. Mr. Hamilton knows society, as perhaps no other author in the country does today, and his story gives a clearer insight into the problems of the British nobility. Wyndham Standing heads an all-star cast.

Pearl White in "The Black Secret" and Ernest Truex in "The Night of the Dub" are the other attractions. "The Night of the Dub" is adapted from the Saturday Evening Post story of the same name by Albert Payson Terhune.

Mary Miles Minter in "The Eyes of Julia Deep" and the World production "Ginger" comprise the program the Strand will offer for Sunday evening. "Ginger" tells a charming story of young manhood with several "shots" taken in France.

Charlie Chaplin's fourth million dollar comedy "A Day's Pleasure" will be offered on Monday and Tuesday. Those instrumentalities that have caused gales of laughter in other Chaplin productions have all been incorporated in this picture. Charlie takes his family out in the old flivver for a day's vacation, and this is the start of the fun. A close examination shows that it is not only the funniest of all the Chaplin comedies, but that it is one of the cleanest comedies ever filmed. Jack Pickford in "A Burglar by Proxy" will be the feature picture. Mr. Pickford plays the part of a rich young idler, who turns crook to obtain some valuable papers that have been stolen from his sweetheart's father. He is so successful in his adopted profession that it is some time before he is able to convince his sweetheart and family of his innocence. Marie Walcamp in "Tempest Cody Hits the Trail" will be an added feature for Monday and Tuesday. William S. Hart in his first picture in months, "John Petticoats," will be shown Wednesday and Thursday. It presents this popular star in a new and novel role. Being quite unlike any of Mr. Hart's previous releases, it is bound to strike a responsive chord in the breasts of his many admirers.

Manager Chet Bent announces a showing of the season's greatest successes "The Miracle Man" and "Male and Female" in the near future.

The Scouts have a reputation for producing good entertainments and this year's is said to be the "Best Ever." One can imagine what they will look like when dressed as old maids.

Suffered 20 Years From Brnochial Cough Cured by Alien's Lung Healer

The following letter from Mrs. C. C. Maxwell of Danville, Me., speaks for itself:

I. J. Allen Co., West Lynn, Mass.
Gentlemen:—I am so enthusiastic about your Lung Healer that I want you to know what it has done for me. I had given up all hope of ever curing a cough that began 20 years ago. It was a hard, rasping cough that used to keep me awake 4 or 5 hours almost every night. My throat was parched and there seemed to be bunches in my throat.

Other medicines, even cod liver oil, had no more effect than water, but when I first took the Lung Healer it seemed to clear a path through the fullness in the throat and allay the irritation as nothing else had ever done. After taking the first bottle I was wonderfully relieved and the bunches in my throat disappeared and I slept without coughing a bit.

After a few weeks I was rid of the cough, and you may rest assured that life took on a rosier aspect to me after that. Today I have no lung trouble or cough at all and I give the Lung Healer all the credit.

I have given it to my children at different times, with just as effective results. It is also a splendid body builder. Yours gratefully,

MRS. C. C. MAXWELL.

Poor Fuel is Partly to Blame

When your motor heats up, do you blame the lubricating system, tight piston rings, the spark too much retarded, poor water circulation in the cooling system? Poor fuel often has a lot to do with it.

Low-grade gasoline burns slowly and incompletely, producing high heat—deposits carbon on the piston heads and in the combustion chamber which retains the heat and prevents quick radiation.

The remedy? High quality, quick-burning gasoline that is uniform in its vaporizing and ignition characteristics, that burns up completely and delivers maximum power in all weathers—SOCONY Motor Gasoline. Standardize on SOCONY and you will avoid lots of engine trouble and secure big mileage per gallon of gasoline.

At filling time look for the red, white and blue SOCONY Sign.

The Wonders of America

By T. T. MAXEY

THE WASHINGTON MONUMENT.

THIS gigantic shaft, unique, imposing, dignified, yet simple to the extreme, is a most fitting and suitable memorial to the Father of the Country. It occupies a site near the River Potomac, selected by the man whom it honors, in 1783.

The cornerstone was laid on July 4, 1848, and the last stone set on December 6, 1884. It was dedicated on February 21, 1885. The proportions of this mammoth obelisk are colossal. The foundation goes down 38 feet and is 55 feet square. The walls are 15 feet thick at the base, 1 1/4 feet thick at the top and taper one-fourth of an inch to the top. 23,000 stones were used. The cap stone weighs 3,300 pounds. It is 555 feet high and is said to be the highest monument in the world. The white marble used in its construction came from the quarries of Maryland. It is claimed that there is room enough in the interior to house an army of 12,000 men. The stairway to the top contains approximately 900 steps. An elevator makes the top easy to reach, so that all visitors may see and enjoy the magnificent view of the national capital, its historic surroundings and the romantically beautiful river the man it honors so well, which is visible in the bird's-eye view from the top. On a clear day, a prominent peak, Sugar Loaf, in the Blue Ridge mountains, fifty miles or more to the northwest, is plainly visible.

Leather Output Shows No Signs of Slackening

All eyes of the leather trade are turned toward the Retailers' meeting in Boston this week. It has been pushed by an up-to-date management and that means success in every direction, because not only has the exhibition of shoes been extensive, but he wants of the legion of visiting retailers have been filled to the limit. When the Boston papers devote a page to leather, it certainly will have a healthy effect on the trade in general.

A firm leather market for first six months of this year is what is hoped for by the big fellows. Harry L. Thayer whom Peabody can claim as one of its large tanners, says so, and why he could not have made it longer, I am not qualified to answer. Perhaps it is better these stirring times to prophesy for short periods. The old story of costs will keep prices up, he says, for everything which enters into the manufacture of leather is high, with no chance of its being lower. In fact, they are higher today than when hides were at a high point. A big demand and a short supply tells the story why prices of finished leather will not recede.

In his speech to the retailers he said in part: "I believe our industry is on a sound basis, so far as values are concerned, and we should not expect to buy shoes or leather proportionately cheaper than we could buy cotton, woolen goods or any other staple commodity. In fact if you will give me matter a little thought that the supply of raw material of cotton or steel or flour is largely produced in America, but the raw supply of leather is only about 80 per cent. produced in America. For this reason we will never have control of hides that we do in other lines. We should not expect to buy hides cheaper here than in other parts of the world."

It is with confidence that I hope the retail shoe dealers will feel a sense of stability facing them, as far as the markets of raw material are concerned for the year 1920. It seems to me they are on a solid basis with a probable higher price rather than a lower one facing them in the near future. I have a conviction that the decreased producing power, shortage of supplies, aggravated by shortage of production is bound to maintain a continued active business for a number of years."

High priced footwear is facing us. All the articles I have read lay these high prices to the women. The female of the species, the deadlier, they claim will not purchase only the high cost shoes. The cheaper ones remain on the shelves to be passed up with heads high in the air. But I have a few men friends who are only buying the high priced shoes. I think if the truth was known this is the rule. Fat pocketbooks make high notions. Therefore only such as myself will lower our dignity to purchase a shoe made of the cheaper stuff. I have an idea it will not always be so, but when?

The problem of getting the public to buy shoes of medium quality is facing all concerned, but there has not been any plan advanced which would solve the situation yet. But why lay it to the women when the men, in my opinion, are the ones to blame. Some of them cram their wives' pocketbooks with money and demand they go to the big stores and show people they have money. Show some of the millionaires they are not the only ones who can be spenders, even if the mortgage still holds on the house. There has been the Waterloo of many a man in this age and in all ages.

"Shoemakers 53 years" is what Rice and Hutchins have grown to. Again Peabody is interested, for the Essex Tanning Company is one of the branches of this big concern. Rice and Hutchins make shoes. Like many other progressive shoe makers, they make a part of their leather. William F. Langmaid conceived the idea of making patent leather. Associated himself with this company, he has built up a business which has come to be a leader in the trade. Without trumpets, he makes and sells a quantity of leather which compares with others, and a visit to his plant would not signify that such was the case. Most concerns have a store in Boston which entails big expense. No so with the Essex Tanning Company. Their produce is sold at the factory, and the chore of disposing of 1200 sides and the splits daily is not so easy.

I was asked this week if the leather business in Peabody was slackening down. The party quoted the fact that 50 men were discharged in one factory. Such an event seemed out of the run of things lately. But as this happened in a line of leather which might be termed out of the regular lines, I call it only one of the happenings of the trade. One concern here, and one which might be termed of only ordinary size, purchased recently a lot of pickled sheepskins amounting to $181,000. This amount represented the largest bill ever purchased by this company. The prices were top ones, and this sale is only one of many that have been made for many months.

It seems to me that the tanners have confidence in the future. They believe when they risk their good money that the business has bright prospects. They are not able to keep up with the demand and this being so, is the surest sign that there are no breakers ahead. Cheap side leather made from China hides has lowered the price of cheap grades, but leather made from the best hides will bring the price. High grades have the call a leather, as well as in shoes.

Importance of "Now."

"Now" is ever ticking from the clock of time. "Now" is the watchword of the wise. "Now" is on the banner of the prudent. The young ladies of the Japan department are selling tickets for a dance to be held on Tuesday evening of next week, the music for which is to be furnished by an orchestra composed almost entirely of Japan shop people. This live department promises a rattling good time to those fortunate enough to secure tickets, which are limited to the capacity of Endicott hall.

Miss Annie Gavigan, daughter of Supt. James H. Gavigan of the sheepskin department, is recuperating from an operation for appendicitis performed this week at Thomas hospital by Dr. Fields.

Attractive calendars, issued by the National Safety Council, and bearing colored cartoons on safety subjects, were distributed to all the departments this week.

John A. Flynn of Lowell street entered the employ of the company this week, starting in the tannery.

Mrs. John McGrath, formerly Elizabeth Luby of the Main office, is receiving the congratulations of her former office associates upon the arrival of a baby daughter, born last week.

George Estes, clerk in the Mechanical office, has been suffering with a badly ulcerated tooth during the past few days, and his work is being carried on by Karl Rickers.

The American Legion basketball team, of which there are several A. C. L. players, will meet the strong U. S. M. C. team at Beverly on Monday night. A home game will be played in the near future, when the rooters at the plant will have the opportunity to witness a fast exhibition.

Roswell Taylor has been transferred from the Hide department to the Mechanical department of the Main office.

The disruption of the trolley service caused much serious inconvenience to hundreds of A. C. L. and National employees, who depend on the trolley for transportation. The fact that the weather was around the zero mark did not aid any in soothing their feelings toward the management of the street railway.

William Urquhart, the building inspector in charge of the new construction going on at the Main and National plants, has been confined to his home for a few days on account of illness.

Louis Urban, the popular captain and backstop of last summer's A. C. L. baseball team, was elected captain of the Boston College football team for 1920 this week. Urban captained the B. C. baseball team last season, as well as the basketball team. He was the idol of the local fans during the heat of the season here last summer, and his many friends will be pleased to learn of his new honors.

John Cloutman of B. building, was judge of the French bulls at the dog show in Paine Memorial hall in Boston last Wednesday. Mr. Cloutman has an enviable reputation as a breeder and fancier of this popular canine.

George Hayward, formerly a kneshtaker in B building, was a visitor to the plant this week, coming up from Gloversville.

Frank Hinchon, timekeeper in the Curry department, was drawn as a juror, and is serving with the jury of the Supreme court.

Sleighride parties are popular at the plant during the good sledding, and hardly a night passes, but some department is represented in the good old-fashioned outdoor sport.

Joe Lalor, who was injured in the Thanksgiving Day football game in Salem, is filling in his time editing the St. John's College publication "Timely."

The A. C. L. bowlers were again defeated by the K. of C. team this week.

Three newcomers to the tannery this week are Raymond and Merrill Rooney and John Boyle, who have engaged for the past few months as lumbermen in the Maine woods.

David Ahearn, well known as a boxer of considerable skill, entered the employ of the Aclossuede department this week.

A large steam shovel used in excavating the basement of the proposed new storehouse and office building at the National is rapidly making way for the cement workers who will follow.

PEABODY HIGH NEEDS COACH

ship team this year lies in securing a coach that can deliver the goods. The material available for both baseball and football is admittedly first class at the local school, and under skillful direction, a pennant winning team is sure to result, say those in a position to talk.

It is generally conceded that had Peabody High football team had a professional coach last fall the Tanners would have proved the sensation of the Essex county gridiron for the team comprised some of the best talent the school ever sent onto a chalked field.

Some of the Advisory board members have let it be known that they are determined to make an effort to get a professional coach this season, one who can take the baseball team, and put it across as contenders, and also be able to whip into line a championship football team next fall. It will cost some money to secure this talent, but already the men behind the project have their eyes set for the goal, and if their efforts avail anything, it seems sure that P. H. S. will have a coach for athletics that can deliver.

Leo Guild Has Star Soloists For Its Party

Leo Guild charity party to be held in City Hall, Jan. 26, gives every promise of being the most successful party ever run by the society. The committee has secured the services of Joseph Lawlor and Carroll Loveday, entertainers, who scored such a fine hit in the Salem K. of C. concert recently. Miss Marion McBride, Chris Relihan and Frank Sonigan, each a talented soloist, will also be heard. An excellent vaudeville show is arranged for the evening's entertainment.

Trolley Service As At Présent

a spokesman for the jitneys, that they cannot expect to handle the situation permanently without an organization, better than they have today.

Patrons of the trolleys today complained bitterly of the lack of heat in the cars and irregular running time. The trustees have given orders to have all of the cars well heated, but this essential comfort has been sadly overlooked by the trolley employees, and the patrons have suffered.

On the Lynn cars early last evening motormen danced to keep warm on the front end of their cars.

The absence of the regular trolley service yesterday made many Peabody people seeking to reach Salem bide their time, and use the Boston & Maine trains, and the rush hour travel found the steam cars heavily patronized. The Bay State kept up a good service between Peabody and Lynn, and operated hourly to Danvers. Lowell and Central street cars kept running as far as the Salem line, where, if a jitney is handy, the commuter gets on his way to Town House Square.

Free Sugar At Big Bazaar

Under the management of Harry H. Ingalls there will be a grand bazaar in the large City Hall on the evenings of Jan. 21, 22, 23, 24 inclusive. Three acts of vaudeville have been arranged direct from the Keith's circuit. There will be a midway, dancing, and 100 pounds of sugar will be given away absolutely free, 25 pounds each night to the person having the lucky number on his admission ticket. Four hundred pounds more will be given away as prizes at the different booths. Music will be furnished by a five-piece orchestra each evening.

Mr. Ingalls has run similar fairs throughout the Commonwealth, in Connecticut and New York, including a bazaar for the American Legion in Dorchester, the Sam Sam in Beverly, and ran a bazaar for the Odd Fellows in Salem in November which was a great success, and in addition has produced shows in Peabody on three occasions, the most notable one being the outdoor fair held in the rear of the Carroll school in this city and had charge of all the amusements at the welcome home celebration for the Peabody boys in June.

Tickets sold for the bazaar on those dates over which the controversy arose will be accepted and are good for admission as they read. Mr. Ingalls had all arrangements made to put on this bazaar for the American Legion when they voted not to have it run under their auspices or have anything to do with it, consequently Mr. Ingalls was given the hall for the purpose of producing the bazaar as he had planned.

Pitman Last Overseas Vet
To See Home

Sergt. Irving Pitman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Pitman of South street, is believed to be the last Peabody man to return home from France. He is on board of the Martha Washington transport, which arrived this week in New York, and he is expected to reach home not later than Sunday. He has been stationed in France since early in the fall of 1918, having been shipped overseas several weeks before the armistice was signed, ending the war.

Sergt. Pitman won his chevrons overseas. He was an electrical engineer engaged for a New Jersey firm on a contract in the Chicago stockyards, when he was called into the army in September, 1918. He graduated from the Northeastern college, and at once secured a position with the New Jersey firm. In a letter to James Small of Washington street, Sergt. Pitman writes interestingly of sights in Paris. His letter:

PARIS, France, Dec. 23, 1919.

I received your welcome letter of Sept. 18th, (Nov. 24th) on Friday, and was glad to hear from you, as usual. The mail is coming very slow these days; 25 days to make the trip. An orderly just brought me your letter of Nov. 29th, this minute. There isn't anything very important this morning, so I am glad to hear that everyone had a good time on Thanksgiving. I have already written you about my feast. According to my mother's letters there is quite a lively time at home these days with a nouse full of young people and beaucoup de musique.

The work in connection with getting the files ready to loan to the French for use in settling the outstanding as per the contract, and in connection with closing up the service, is progressing rapidly, and is expected to be finished by the end of the month. The civilian employees have received notice of the expiration of their contract for that date. I finished my files on Saturday and turned them over to the Requisition Department, under whose jurisdiction this section is, although our work was entirely different from any other work under the jurisdiction of this service, being claims arising out of the Leave Areas contracts. This section is officially closed now, but the Captain still has a

But it is mighty good business to see that the bridge is built before you come to it.

If there isn't any bridge, you can't get across. WAIT SUPREME COURT RULING ON SPECIAL ELECTION FOR JITNEYS

Pending the decision today of the Supreme Court on the right of the Salem City Council to order a special election on the jitney question, Peabody's City Council last night deferred action on Mayor Donnell's veto of their recent vote for the referendum in this city next month on the same question. The Council will meet again next Thursday night for a joint conference with the School Committee on the proposed new High school, and at that time may be heard on the Mayor's veto of the special election. The Mayor's veto would have been over-ridden, it is believed, had it come before the Council last night.

Chairman Ryan of the ordinance committee had a proposed ordinance for introduction last night to curb fast auto speeding through the business sections, but withheld it, declaring that the acts of 1910 gave the police full authority to regulate this evil and he asked the Council to go on record as requesting the cooperation of the police through Chief Grady to put an end to reckless driving in this city. His motion was carried

BEST HIGH SCHOOL COMPOSITIONS

Beginning next week the Enterprise will offer prizes for the best two compositions to be written by high school students. The compositions are not to be less than 500 words nor more than 750 and the subject is left entirely to the teachers and students of English. For the best composition the Enterprise will pay $2 and for the second $1. Announcement of the contest was made at the school this week through Principal Woodman of the faculty. The Enterprise will conduct the contest for a period of ten weeks, publishing each week the best two themes or compositions. The contest is bound to aid the students in their English and should be of great interest to the parents of the students. There are over 500 students in the school. The contest is open to all of the classes from the sub-freshmen or ninth grade to the seniors.

Basketball Gets Boost By Legion

Local basketball got away with a flying start Tuesday night at City Hall, when the American Legion team battled with the T. O. U. Club of Nahant. The war veterans came out on top with a score of 9 to 8. The game provided plenty of thrills, and from all accounts basketball is going to come back in this locality.

The principal sport gossip on the street this week is about the coming series between the Mats and the Legion teams. The Mats' clean victory over the Athletics Tuesday night has put the Temperance boys very much in the running. Their followers are out to back them the limit in the contest with the Legion.

Both managers will refrain from going outside for players, which will do much to promote local interest in the series.

Notes of the Games.

The first ticket sold Tuesday night went to an old Mats basketball player, Reserve Officer Joe McHugh.

Among those present was Inspector "Dive" Pierce, and he looked as though he was having the time of his life. The old fans remember when he used to toss the leather sphere around.

Jim McNiff refereed a satisfactory game and showed that he was boss at all times, even though a few were peeved because he wouldn't hand them all the cream.

Buddy Shea, who works every minute of the game, is suffering from a knee that was badly wrenched in a 32nd bout with Hyde of Nahant, who, by the way, is a member of the police force of that town.

Meldon missed but one foul out of five attempts.

The fans went wild when Billy Mahoney got a scissors hold on Gilmore of the Mats. Billy plays the ball all the time.

Some of the mixups made the much-tooted polo games look like a peace conference of conscientious objectors.

Tommy Ray, who was unable to arrive in time to play, was pressed into service from the gallery, when Buddy Shea was injured.

"Dive" Pierce was seen giving Billy Walsh and Gus Chenery, the two Legion backs, pointers before the game, and the Nahant forwards got the results.

Doody of the Athletics looks good, but the work of Jim Gilmore and Joe Connors stood out prominently during all the contest. Connors seems to be everywhere and Gilmore is sure an all slippery boy.

Kelley to Horan to the bench was the only triple play of the evening.

Bernstein played will for the Athletics, as did Fred Anglin, who jumped in late in the game.

The Athletics made a satisfactory impression considering the slight practice they have been getting.

The opening game of the series, starting next Tuesday, will probably be the start of a real rivalry between the ex-service men and the temperance boys. Plenty of excitement may be expected.

FR. MATS HAVE GREAT TEAM

Basketball started off with a bang at City Hall last Tuesday evening, when a doubleheader was staged by Manager Quinlan of the Legion team.

The Legion was opposed by the T. O. U. Club of Nahant, and they certainly gave the Peabody team a battle. The "Tanners" just emerged with the victory. Meldon shot a number of goals from foul.

The team, however, that made the best impression was the team representing the Peabody Mats. They comprise a team of former High school stars of all sports. This team put up a stellar exhibition of basketball for their first game, and it is assured that they will bear watching in their future games. They were opposed by the Athletics of the East End, whom they defeated, 28 to 10.

The "Mats' Regulars" are composed of Jim Gilmore, former captain of Salem Normal basketball team, and coach of High school athletics; Bill Meade and Joe O'Connor, who played together on Peabody High's champion football team of 1917; Hennessey, star performer at centre for Peabody last fall, and Horan, a veteran, who has played the game for three seasons.

Managers Quinlan of the Legion and Devaney of the Mats, are arranging for a series between these two teams, and they expect to get started next week at City Hall.

Mr. and Mrs. John T. Keane of South Peabody are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter, Wednesday morning at the J. B. Thomas hospital.

The marriage of Miss Alice P. Hutchinson to Mr. Harvey H. Lunsman of Lowell will take place Feb. 5.

The Cabinet of the South Church will meet on Wednesday evening at 7.30 in the study.

The motto of the Girl Scouts' Week campaign is: "For a Better Womanhood." The campaign posters also declare "We work for Home, Town and Nation."

Peabody Girl Scouts, numbering nearly 100, will start their canvass of all homes in the city for associate memberships tomorrow, and the campaign will continue for one week. It is hoped to secure several hundred members by the drive. Peabody has two troops of Girl Scouts, one at the Universalist church and the other at St. Paul's. The committee in charge of the drive in Peabody comprises Clarence W. Barnes, chairman; Mrs. Harry Trask, treasurer; Mrs. Edith

Mrs. George Howes has been confined to her home for the past week with throat trouble.

Mrs. George Piper of Concord, N. H., is spending the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Kelley of Chestnut street.

Mrs. Adin French and a few friends attended the meeting of the Pomona Grange in West Boxford, Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. George H. Howes, wife of Rev. Mr. Howes of the Universalist church, has been confined to her home on Lowell street this week with illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Tremblay are to move to Lynde street, Salem, as soon as the apartment is ready.

Miss Beth Warner of Melrose is the guest of Miss Louise King over the week-end.

Miss Julia Lynch of Ellsworth road has been confined to her home this week with a severe cold.

Mrs. Ray Porter entertained the Friday Afternoon Bridge club last week.

Holman, A. A. MacKinnon and Harry S. Pyne.

Troop 1, Girl Scouts of the Universalist church, was organized March 15, 1919, with 12 girls, and within two months all of those members had been registered at national headquarters. This shows the zeal and enthusiasm with which the Scouts are filled. The following officers were elected: Patrol Leader, Sally Lord; Corporal, Dorothy MacCharles, who soon resigned, and Alice Partridge was elected in her place; Secretary, Helen Potter; Treasurer, Florence Haines; Color Sergeant, Dorothy Lord; Color Guards, Leslie Gardner and Dorothy Tibbetts.

Mrs. George H. Howes became Captain of Troop 1 and Miss Amy H. Merrill was chosen as her Lieutenant.

Troop 1 meets in the vestry of the Universalist church on Tuesday afternoon of each week from 3.45 to 5.30.

During the 10 months that Troop 1 has been organized, it has nearly doubled its membership, and four of the first members have become Second Class Scouts: Helen Potter, Florence Haines, Sally Lord and Dorothy Tibbetts.

Troop 1 has been actively engaged in raising money by selling vanilla, collecting and selling newspapers and magazines, and early in December, held a Christmas sale and entertainment, which netted the Scouts over $125. Now they are serving ice cream at a private dancing party, which is held weekly.

Troop 1 now has two patrols made up of the following:

Patrol 1—Patrol Leader, Sally Lord; Corporal, Alice Partridge; Scouts, Lindy MacCracken, Florence Haines, Rebecca Ferguson, Dorothy Lord, Margaret Batchelder, Helen Potter, Viola Eldridge, Elizabeth Matheson.

Patrol 2—Patrol Leader, Blanche Hayward; Corporal, Leslie Gardner; Scouts, Dorothy Tibbetts, Margaret Adams, Charlotte Rich, Nathalie Lane, Judith Barnes, Florence MacKinnon, Frances Putnam, Marion Fessenden, Mildred MacKenzie, Louise Moore, Elizabeth Hanson, Dorothy Tumulty.

In the fall of 1918 a group of six girls under Miss Anna Anderson met weekly at Saint Paul's church, preparatory to starting a troop of Girl Scouts.

Owing to the epidemic of influenza and other setbacks the troop was not organized until March of 1919, when Miss Anderson received her commission as captain of Troop No. 2.

The membership of the troop, now comprising 23 girls, has been rapidly increasing, and in another year they hope to double their numbers.

The girls have been doing some fine work, and are striving hard to make an active, progressive and prosperous troop.

Court George Peabody, F. of A., will install its new officers this evening. George Sullivan is the new chief ranger.

St. Theresa Court, M. C. O. F., announces that beginning Feb. 1 the dues will be raised to 25 cents, with no fines. The increase is found necessary to meet increased rent.

MRS. MARY WILSON.

The funeral of Mrs. Mary M. Wilson, mother of J. Murray Wilson, of this city, will be held Saturday afternoon at the First Baptist church, Lynn, and burial will be in Lynn. Deceased was the widow of George W. Wilson, and has been a resident of Manchester, N. H., for many years. She was 83 years old.

The family of Francis M. Jones of Forest street, is moving to 4 Saunders street, Salem, as soon as the roads are passable.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth Graham, who formerly lived on Pine street, are now on a prosperous farm in Nova Scotia. Their niece, who attended school here, is Mrs. Bertha Riley of Berry street, this city.

The funeral of Emily Taylor Whitman, an elderly lady, was held in Lowell, Mass., on Jan. 16th. Though she had not lived here since her marriage, she was brought up here in the house now occupied by Charles Young, and was related to several families here. Her father was once the local blacksmith and taught that trade to Alonzo Small.

Miss Helen Phillips is staying with Mrs. Harry Rankin for a few days.

Lawrence Durkee has been unable to assist with the R. F. D. route during the snow blockade, because of a slight illness.

All sisters in the West Peabody Grange are requested to meet at the home of Mrs. Daniel Taylor, Lowell street, on Wednesday, Jan. 28th, at 2:30 P. M., for the purpose of reorganizing the Ladies' Auxiliary.

West Peabody streets are pretty well filled with snow. Up to Wednesday night, no auto had been completely through West street. Watkins' bus has tried to go over its regular route, but the farthest point it has yet reached is Danforth's corner.

Roy Foster has been transporting the grammar school scholars in his pung. Unless some of the snow melts, it may be some time before autos will be able to go on all of the streets.

Because of the storm there was no Sunday School nor evening services at the West Church last Sunday.

Gladys and Harlan, children of Elmer Durkee, are home from Keene, N. H., where they have been visiting their sister, Mrs. Charles Leach. Mrs. Leach returned with them for a week's visit with her parents, Russell street.

Miss Pearl P. White, who, for the past three weeks, has been a patient in a Chicago health resort, has returned home this week, much improved.

Bernice L. Haywood of West Peabody and Mable Ballentine of Emerson street, passed the week-end as guests of Miss Doris Prout of Wal-laston.

There were no services at the Union Sunday School last week on account of the severe weather.

Harry Fischer, an employee of the Essex Aniline Dye Works, suffered an attack of gas poisoning Monday, when he was overcome by gas fumes, while at work in the factory. Dr. Shanahan was called and ordered his removal to the Thomas hospital. Mr. Fischer's condition was made more serious, owing to the fact that he has had a previous attack of gas poisoning while serving in the army. He is the second victim of gas poisoning at this plant within a few weeks.

SNOW—DANFORTH.

Esther Mabel, oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin P. Danforth, was married to Edwin Norman Snow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Snow of Everett, by Rev. Howard G. Hegemen, at his residence on Boston street, Lynn, on the evening of Friday, Jan. 16th. The double ring ceremony was used. Following the ceremony, the happy couple went to Southern New Hampshire for the week-end. Mrs. Snow has always lived in West Peabody. She has worked in Danvers as a milliner for the past 10 years, first in the store of Mrs. Mary K. Trask, and later for Miss Halie M. Green. Mr. Snow was substitute station agent here in November, 1917, and at the present time is agent at the Linden station, in the city of Malden. Mr. and Mrs. Snow are going housekeeping at once in an apartment on Lowell street, West Peabody.

TROLLEY SERVICE

If the so-called Bay State Street Railway had set about to alienate the public support for its exclusive patronage it is doubtful if it could have done a better job as one views the present day service. Throttling the public during the Christmas shopping by taking off the trolleys, following this up by the edict which saw restricted service given last week in Peabody and Salem, and the continued failure to give the public a reasonably good service since, all of these conditions have avowedly caused the traveling public to express itself very emphatically in criticism. The order which still compels patrons to stand in line to board trolleys in Peabody Square, causing a real hardship for the commuters during this severe cold weather has caused many people, not alone patrons, to severely arraign the railroad officials. It is true that the railroads have been handicapped by the heavy snowfall, but this was a test that proved the efficacy of the jitney busses and found the trolley people utterly unable to cope with the elements. What the people want is service, and it cannot be said that the railroad has best risen to the occasion. Hence it is not to be wondered at that the travelling public is aggrieved and clamors for improvements. To many impartial observers it would appear that the railroad has failed to meet the issue. A notable weakness in the Peabody-Salem service is the absence of sufficient cars to handle the theatre crowds in Salem. The jitneys would have handled the situation and given service. Last Tuesday night women were elbowed by men from the steps of a Peabody car bound for Salem which was crowded to such an extent that even wading in for standing room was well nigh prohibitive. Men jeered at the conductors (it isn't the conductors' fault) and expressed themselves in very forcible language, apparently to the approval of the entire patrons on board the single car. Why cannot the railroad provide extra car service between 10 and 11 o'clock nights from Town House Square to Peabody? The Peabody cars take care of the Boston street residents, and while the majority of patrons come through to Peabody, there is a heavy demand for accommodation by the Salem people who live in the direction of Peabody. Last Tuesday night was a sample of the lack of car service given from Salem to Peabody at the late hour, and it furnishes an argument for better accommodations to the traveling public if this is the intent of the railroad. It is freely expressed that the railroad trustees assumed an arbitrary attitude in bringing about the cessation of car service and the proof of the pudding was the fact that the state police had to call on the jitneys to help out a suffering public seeking transportation on one of the coldest days of the winter. There is some ground for criticism at the road's attempt to give quick service between Peabody and Lynn. Commuters complain that they are forced to wait at turnouts and that excessive running time results. Is the road doing its best to satisfy the public? It may be that it is but the fact remains that Peabody patrons feel they have good cause to complain.

SPEED MANIACS

Action looking to the adoption of an ordinance which will make it an offense against the law to drive a motor vehicle through the business sections of Peabody at a speed in excess of 12 miles per hour will be welcomed and the strict cooperation on the part of the police should follow any accepted order by the City Council. There have been many instances of excessive speed when the highways are more easy of travel and Peabody Square has been too frequently the scene of near accidents in which human lives were at stake. The automobile driver who races through Peabody Square or any of the streets leading to the business center is a dangerous man and his delight in this almost fiendish sport ought to be curbed if by no other means than putting him into court. The initiative in bringing about an ordinance to curb fast speeding was taken by Councillor Ryan, and citizens will applaud the remedy prescribed by the City Council.

WAR RISK INSURANCE

Men who have made an exhaustive study of insurance are unanimous in declaring that the government insurance is the best that can be had. To those of the service men who were fortunate enough to carry it it is a valuable asset, and one that should not be lightly discarded. Most men of the ages that predominated in the war risk policies are too young to fully appreciate how important a sizeable insurance policy can become in their future business and social relations. They do not look upon it now as they will five or ten years later, when those who held theirs will be congratulating themselves on their foresight, and those who thoughtlessly discard it now will see the error too late to be of any advantage to them. It is not too late, if you have allowed your insurance to lapse, to arrange for its renewal. War Risk Insurance is a privilege. Peabody veterans who hold it should not look at it in any other way.

DELEGATES COMING HERE

The announcement that the State Grange will convene in Peabody next October ought to provide the suggestion to the municipal and civic bodies of this city to band together in an effort to map out a program of entertainment which will advertise the big leather city. There will be hundreds of delegates to the national convention in Boston at the time the State Grange delegates will come here, and many of the delegates from other states will undoubtedly seize the opportunity to see at first hand the home of sheepskins. An attractive program of welcome and entertainment could be arranged which would help to promote the fair name of Peabody. The local Grange should have the hearty cooperation of the local officials in making the event a success.

ROUND ABOUT

Lowell street kiddies have the same kind of admiration for Frank T. Arnold, as they did Christmas for Santa Claus, as a result of his "chaperoning" a big pung ride, at which the young people were the chief guests on last Saturday. The kids had oceans of fun, but the host also enjoyed the outing.

Among the local Harvard alumni who canvassed for the Harvard fund was Attorney Daniel C. Manning, who is a graduate not only of the college, but the law school, as well.

Apropos of the approaching natal day of George Peabody, which falls on Feb. 18, I noticed this week a bronze tablet in the corridor of the High school, which was given to the school by the Class of 1908. It reads "Education is a debt due from present to future generations—George Peabody." Above the tablet is a life size picture of Peabody's benefactor, who gave the Peabody Institute library, and also left money for medals for honor pupils at the High school.

I observed a number of Peabody faces in the Superior court last Monday morning to witness the initial appearance of Mayor Donnell in the role of prosecuting officer for Essex county, and those who saw the dynamic Mayor in action, agreed that he was right at home, and would give a good account of his duties as district attorney.

YD veterans of Peabody were handicapped last Saturday by the snow storm that made collections for their Boston Home slow. I am told that only $40 was raised in this city for the fund, but doubtless private subscriptions will make the Peabody amount much more. Mrs. Elizabeth Phillips of West Peabody sent the Enterprise $5, to be handed over to Charles R. Durkee, one of the veterans, who aided in the campaign here.

Harold Blake Withrow, the first New Year's baby born at the J. B. Thomas hospital, was started on the road to wealth by the gift of $100 in thrift stamps. The baby is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Withrow of Danvers. Mr. Withrow is a foreman at the A. C. L. Co.

Return of the 16-ride for a dollar tickets on the Bay State for sale at Alonzo Raddin's Shoe store, and Raymond's newstand, was due to the initiative of Peabody's oldest shoe dealer, who got in touch with the railroad and offered to handle the tickets as a matter of accommodation for the public. There had been some publicity on the failure of the road to supply their conductors on the Lynn cars.

Building Inspector Michael H. Bresnahan is called on to perform extraordinary feats in the discharge of his duties, among which is to enact the role of steeplejack, and climb high chimneys. He expects soon to go to the top of the big Waters River chimney, now about finished, and put his O. K. on it. Some months ago he rode to the top of the big A. C. L. plant chimney standing on the rim of the iron bucket and holding on to the steel rope, which drew the bucket to the top. Such feats as this are all in the day's work for Inspector Bresnahan, who appears to be filling the position with credit to himself and the city.

I observe that Peabody's veteran letter carrier, Flavel Goodwin, is on a five-months' leave of absence from his postal duties, and consequently is free from the troubles that this week beset the carriers in the snow and cold. He is a member of the G. A. R.

I overheard a discussion on Peabody lawyers one day this week, which was interesting while it lasted, and one man averred that there were plenty of attorneys in the city. A count shows that the city has 18 lawyers or on the old census of 18,000, one to every 100 persons.

UGLY CHARGE

"I understand Mrs. Twobble and Mrs. Gadspar have had a falling out."
"Alas, yes."
"Is it serious?"
"I fear so. Mrs. Twobble makes the charge that when Mrs. Gadspar borrowed a quarter of a pound of butter she returned an inferior brand."
